MONTREAL (UPI)—Olympic organizers said today they will recommend a go-ahead for Montreal to stage the 1976 Summer Olympics in July and that the main stadium will be ready but incomplete.

The recommendations will be made by the Quebec government Feb. 2 at a meeting with the Olympic Organizing Committee in Innsbruck.

Olympic Village 'Vast Profits'

MONTREAL (CP) — The contract for construction of the Olympic village provided the developers with an enormous and highly unusual profit, according to the Montreal Star.

The RCMP and the Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the contract awarded Les Terrasses Zarolega Inc. by the Olympic organizing committee (COJO) to build the apartment structure.

"It is a deal that astonishes Montreal building consultants in its enormous and highly unusual profit while COJO and eventually the taxpayers of Montreal and Quebec lose a fortune," the newspaper says in a copyright story. "It gives Zarolega no incentive to keep costs down."

Mayor Jean Drapeau unveiled his plan in June, 1974, for an Olympic village that would be financed, built and marketed as a condominium project, entirely by private enterprise with no cost to taxpayers.

The Star recalls Zarolega's cost estimate at the start of construction in December, 1974, was $33 million. Four months later, "when it was too late to cancel the plan," the estimate had soared to $74 million, and now is $77 million. COJO must lend Zarolega the difference without any guarantee of repayment.

The paper says Zarolega stands to earn $5.2 million in management costs, while experts consulted said the fees should be less than $2 million.

COJO and Zarolega have drawn up two contracts, the second of which is yet to be signed, the paper notes.

Under the first contract, the federal Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) was to guarantee an $18.4-million first mortgage by the Bank Canadian National (BCN), while Zarolega was to put in $4 million—$2 million immediately and $2 million later.

The Star says Zarolega put up $2 million in cash, $1.5 million in a loan from the BCN. All further costs were to be covered by COJO in the form of a second mortgage, now totalling $67 million.

In the first contract, if Zarolega did not pay back COJO's $55-million loan in five years, the loan would be cancelled outright, Zarolega would own a village it had not paid for, and COJO would own the debt.

The second contract was drawn up on the orders of the provincial government to give better protection to COJO's investment. It extends the term of the COJO loan to 38 years, but does not allow COJO to take over the property if Zarolega defaults in payment.

Zarolega is allowed $1.25 million in depreciation each year before COJO is paid anything.

Developers estimate the value of the buildings at $55 million, leaving COJO, and ultimately the taxpayers of Montreal and Quebec, with at least a $45-million loss, the newspaper says.

SEASONAL CLASH of summer and winter sports is evident at Lake Wabamun, 60 miles west of Edmonton, where ice fisherman John Mucha of Wabamun is oblivious to water skier Ken Nelson of Edmonton. Part of lake is kept ice free by hot water from a hydro generating plant.

STAMPEDE INVADED BY SPIRIT OF '76

CALGARY (CP)—The 1976 Calgary Stampede has been declared an official project of the United States bicentennial, a Stampede official said Tuesday.

Getting approval from Washington means the Stampede will be able to fly the American flag and use all insignia associated with the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution.

President Stu Barker of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede said the Stampede is the only event outside of the United States, except for an event in Berlin, Germany, to be given the official designation.

The Stampede this year is scheduled July 9-18.

A Stampede official said the designation is expected to make it easier to obtain American acts and dignitaries for the annual Stampede.

Earnings Dip 25% At BCFP

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Tuesday announced net earnings for 1975 of $15.9 million or $2.04 a common share, compared to earnings of $21.1 million or $2.73 a share in 1974. That represents a decrease of approximately 25 per cent.

The 1975 net sales were $273.4 million, compared to sales of $290 million the year before.

Ian A. Barclay, company president, said the year's results were affected by high inflation rates and production curtailment because of labor disruptions.

B.C. Rail Workers Back on the Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Rail yard crews were back on the job in North Vancouver today after a majority of Teamsters Union members voted Tuesday night to end picketing.

The union resumed picketing of the provincially-owned railway after back-to-work legislation passed last fall by the former New Democratic Party government and a two-week extension of the legislation by the Social Credit government expired.

Earlier Tuesday Labor Minister Allan Williams forced the fifth union involved in BCR bargaining to submit to a non-binding industrial inquiry commission.

Williams said the order to the United Transportation Union was the first time a labor minister has ever used his power to order a union to submit to an industrial inquiry commission.

Such commissions have been used in dozens of cases since the B.C. Labor Code was adopted in 1973 but always at the request of the parties involved.

The labor minister said the decision to order the union to submit to the commission was "not taken easily," but was made because he believes "there is a real advantage to the unions and to the company in having all of these disputes dealt with at the same time."

Before the order to the UTU, three other railway unions, the International Union of Operating Engineers, the Brotherhood of Maintenance and Way employees, and the Transportation-Communication Division of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, had agreed to submit to the commission.

Teamsters spokesman Ed Zimmerman said workers in North Vancouver and Squamish voted overwhelmingly to return to work.

He said he understood that workers in Prince George voted 55 per cent against going back to work but they agreed to be bound by the over-all majority.

$1,776 A WEEK . . . FOR LIFE

Times News Services

A 26-year-old hairstylist in Montclair, N.J. has won the largest prize ever offered in any U.S. state lottery—$1,776 a week for life.

Eric Leek was selected Tuesday at the final drawing of the 1776 Instant Lottery. If he lives to be 76, he will collect more than $4.5 million. If he doesn't, his heirs are guaranteed $1,847,040.

Leek said he plans to open a youth centre in his hometown. He also said he wants to make his honeymoon journey a trip around the world.

Meanwhile, Gerald Houde, of Asbestos, Que., is $1 million richer after Sunday's Olympic lottery drawing.

The money won't change his life or his dreams, he says.

"I won't be happy if I change my dream," Houde said Tuesday.

Houde, 33, a machinist, has always wanted to build a home himself on a plot of land he owns. The $1 million will allow him to build in a few extra luxuries — like a dishwasher and carpets.

Crashed Drunk Drivers May Be Sued by ICBC

Drivers who are drunk at the scene of an accident may be sued by the Insurance Corporation of B.C. if regulaitons being considered are approved, general manager Norm Bortnick said Tuesday.

ICBC now pays the claim although the driver makes the policy void by being intoxicated, he said. ICBC is in a different situation from private insurance firms which pay the claim but then sue the individual to recover all or part of the money.

Premier Bennett said Tuesday he hopes lower insurance premiums can be established in the future for accident-free young drivers.

The rates for young drivers who do not cause accidents are "shocking," said Bennett.

But with ICBC starting with fresh claims records, he said, the corporation will be able to study the situation and hopefully come up with some relief for drivers who don't cause accidents but are in high risk groups.

He said he hopes the changes could come in time for next year's insurance premiums.

Meanwhile, Pat McGeer, minister responsible for ICBC, said gasoline prices would increase by 28 cents a gallon if a gas tax were used to balance ICBC losses.

McGeer said a 28-cents-a-gallon increase in the price of gasoline "would be very harmful to the economy."

Price Freeze Thaw?

B.C.'s price freeze is scheduled to expire at midnight Saturday but the provincial cabinet will hold final discussions on the freeze Thursday.

Premier Bennett said Tuesday the government's anti-inflation committee will present a report on the price freeze and cabinet will make a final decision on termination of the order made by the NDP government in October.

There will be an announcement Thursday or Friday, said Bennett, if there is any change in the government's original decision to end the freeze Feb. 1.

The price freeze was instituted Oct. 24 by the former NDP government and was to end Jan. 1 but was extended to Jan. 15 and then to Feb. 1.

The cabinet committee and the staff group working on B.C.'s position in the federal anti-inflation program will have reports prepared for cabinet, he said.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe will go to Ottawa Monday and Bennett said he will be "very well prepared" on B.C.'s position in the anti-inflation program.

But the premier said he did not know when B.C. would arrive at its final position on the program. He said previously the province will decide by early February how it will participate in the scheme.

BIG ENGINES LEAD FOR SMALL AUTOS

DETROIT (AP)—Despite increasing concerns with fuel economy, small-car buyers in the United States continue to place a premium on performance by ordering bigger engines for their autos.

Ward's Automotive Reports this week showed a trend by consumers who purchased small cars in 1975 to select optional six-cylinder and V8 engines over four- and six-cylinder power plants.

The percentage of small autos sold with four-cylinder engines fell to 74 per cent last year, compared with 86 per cent the year before. Sales of small cars with V8 engines, unavailable in 1974, accounted for a 16 per cent share last year.

The shift came even though bigger engines cost more and get poorer gasoline mileage.

Small-car buyers paid an average $50 to $250 more for the better-performing engines.

Ward's concluded the trend indicates "an insatiable desire by the public for performance in virtually all U.S. cars regardless of size."

7 Months In Limbo, Epp Quits

Edgar Epp, deputy minister in charge of corrections, announced today he has resigned effective April 15.

His resignation comes after more than seven months of uncertainty as to his future with the provincial government.

Epp, 44, was relieved of his duties last June 16 but continued to receive the deputy minister's salary of $40,000 a year.

Although no reason was given for his dismissal it was believed at the time to have been over irreconcilable policy differences between him and deputy attorney general David Vickers.

John Ekstedt replaced Epp as acting head of corrections.

Following his dismissal Epp was given three months leave of absence with full pay and then returned to the government last fall to work on special projects being carried out by both the attorney general and human resources departments. He has not worked since Dec. 10, the day before the provincial election.

Regarded as an expert in his field, Epp served as vice-chairman on the Justice Development Commission, and has sought reform in the provincial jail system.

During his two years as head of the department, his aim has been to reduce the size of the institutions. The Community Corrections Centre program was one result of those efforts.

New Outbreak of Fighting Flares on Sahara Desert

Times News Service

ALGIERS — Algerian and Moroccan armed forces clashed today in violent new fighting over the former Spanish Sahara, Algeria's national news service said.

President Houari Boumedienne conferred with his aides and military commanders while diplomatic efforts were under way in various Arab capitals to stop the fighting, now in its second day.

The news agency said the fighting "related to the aggression of the monarchist army"—a reference to Tuesday's clash in the Spanish Sahara between forces of the two northwest African neighbors.

Algeria opposes the planned division of the desert territory between Morocco and Mauritania when Spain formally ends colonial rule on Feb. 28.

Egypt, Syria and Iraq launched efforts today to try to head off war between the two countries.

Damascus radio announced that Syrian president Hafez Assad had dispatched Vice-Premier Mohammed Heidar and army chief of staff Maj. Gen. Hikmat Chehabi to Algeria and Morocco on a mission "related to the explosive situation between the two countries."

In Paris, the Moroccan embassy charged Algeria openly committed an armed intervention on Moroccan territory.

The embassy was referring to official Moroccan and Algerian reports the two nations' armed units clashed Tuesday morning at Amgala, inside Western Sahara which Spain recently turned over to Morocco and Mauritania despite angry protests.

A special Algerian military mission arrived today in Tripoli for talks with Libya, which recently aligned itself with Algeria in the conflict over the phosphate-rich territory.

PM Ducks Cuba-Angola Issue

HAVANA (FP) — Prime Minister Trudeau began his first round of formal talks with Premier Castro today without once mentioning Angola.

Castro himself, Canadian officials indicated after the first 1½-hour meeting, came closer than Trudeau did to bringing up the issue over which they differ most.

The Cuban leader thanked the Canadian prime minister for making the trip which was planned well in advance even though certain major events had taken place in international affairs in the meantime.

It sounded, the way Canadian officials described the incident, as though Castro thought the involvement of Cuban troops in the Angola civil war might have forced Trudeau to cancel or at least postpone his visit to the Communist Caribbean island.

The closest Trudeau came to referring to Angola during the formal meeting was his general acknowledgement that differences of opinion exist between the two countries.

But, he added, Canada accepts the right of all countries to freedom of opinion and that if his country dealt only with those that it agreed with, there would be no need for the external affairs department.

The talks were the highlight of Trudeau's first full day in Cuba after weeks of buildup in the Cuban press and over the radio for the first visit from a NATO head of government.

His public appearances were before small crowds compared with the hundreds of thousands of cheering Havana residents who lined the streets to welcome him.

At one of the public functions, a visit to a cattle cross-breeding farm using Canadian Holsteins—that he was hailed as "comrade" and thanked for resisting pressure to support the U.S. in its blockade against Cuba.

Laurel Pt. Hotel Plans Cut

Victoria city council received assurances Tuesday that a hotel will be built at Laurel Point — but only about half the size of the one originally proposed.

Representatives of the developers Canadian Freehold Porpoerties Ltd. told council's caucus meeting the revised plan is for a four-storey structure, not eight storeys as specificed in the firm's land-use contract.

Total floor area would be reduced by about 80,000 square feet and the number of hotel rooms cut from 200 to between 117 and 125.

Banquet rooms and other public areas which were to have been provided in the earlier design would now be eliminated. CFP project manager Gordon McKenzie said there would still be some meeting rooms, but the largest would be no bigger than the City Hall main committee room.

The original plan envisaged a hotel with full conference facilities for about 500 delegates.

Mayor Mike Young noted that the proposed changes to the land-use contract would require a fresh public hearing.

"We are entitled to approve minor modifications but I think this has got to be classified as something more," he added. City solicitor Jakob de Villiers agreed that under the contract the city may not approve alterations which raise or lower the hieght of the buildings.

Several months ago the firm informed the city that it had deferred construcion of the hotel phase of the project, but earlier this month company spokesmen admitted to reporters there was little chance the hotel would be built in the current economic climate.

Subsequently, the firm indicated that it intended going ahead with the project and Tuesday's meeing was called to clarify the situation.

Ald. Ron McKenzie, recalling the earlier news reports, asked "why is it economic all of a sudden now," when the firm seemed to be saying only two weeks ago that the hotel was doomed.

His namesake representing the company replied: "We are being a little more optimistic than our accountants are telling us right now. But reducing the number of rooms we are reducing the risk and also the cost."

Both Gordon McKenzie and CFP vice-president Stanley Kwok said the company is prepared to give a firm commitment that the revised hotel proposal would go ahead, whether or not CFP finds a hotel operator to run it.

The firm's earlier arrangement with the B.C. hotel chain, Delta Hotels, fell through last December, they said.

Ald. Murray Glazier pointed out that the present land-use contract contains a clause permitting the developer to convert the hotel to condominium use, and asked if that matter could be reopened when the new public hearing is held.

The mayor said the hotel-to-condominium conversion option was "not the intent" of the particular section, and expressed confidence that if there was any "concern or ambiguity" it could be resolved.

"The hotel portion would in fact be constructed as a hotel," said Young.

De Villiers informed council that the contract remains in effect until it is replaced by another incorporating the changes, following a fresh public hearing.

Bennett Bows Over Staff Cuts for Now

Premier Bennett relented today on cutbacks in opposition support staff and for an interim period at least, no secretarial staff will be laid off.

Representatives of the three opposition parties held an early morning meeting with Bennett and the premier agreed that staffing could remain at the same level as the past until the end of the fiscal year — March 31.

But he made no promises about opposition staff levels in the next fiscal year.

Opposition spokesmen said they will lobby for a continuation of past practice despite Bennett's warning that all departments will face tight financial restrictions next year.

Earlier this month, the government said it would cut back caucus support staff in Victoria and the opposition replied angrily they would not accept any reduction.

Under the order the NDP would be allowed one secretary for every three MLAs in addition to a central staff of three for a total of nine people, and the Liberals and Tories would be allowed one researcher and secretary each for a total of two.

Last year the NDP government decided MLAs should be allowed to hire up to one secretary each and on that basis the opposition had begun hiring secretaries after the election.

When the order came down from the Socred government it appeared the Liberals and Tories would each have to fire one staff member and the NDP would have to fire or backtrack on jobs promised to several secretaries.

All three opposition spokesmen said today they were satisfied with the interim agreement and Nanaimo NDP MLA Dave Stupich said he told Bennett the NDP would not hire up to its quota.

But Stupich repeated the maxim "good opposition makes for good government" and said the opposition will continue to press for full staff allotments.

HOSKINS NAMED DRUG BODY HEAD

Herbert Hoskin, former head of the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of B.C., has been named acting chairman of the government's Alcohol and Drug Commission.

The appointment is effective Feb. 1 and Hoskin will receive a salary of $32,340.

The Social Credit government rescinded the appointment of all former directors of the commission set up by the former NDP government.

Cabinet also approved this week the appointment of two new B.C. Hydro directors, Roderick Hungerford and Charles Brazier, a Vancouver lawyer, who will join four other members of the board.

Also in cabinet orders, three persons were appointed to the council of Northwest College in Terrace.

Dr. Robert Lee, a Terrace medical doctor; Arthur Blakeney, a supervisor at Alcan in Kitimat; and Duane Gould, a boom foreman in Sandspit assume their posts Feb. 1.

Cabinet authorized the dismissal of five members of the college council earlier this month after Education Minister Pat McGeer said they ignored orders not to make any important decisions until a new council is formed later in the year.

Oil Export Cutbacks Trim Trade Surpluses

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Cuts in oil exports to the United States and increases in the price of imported world oil combined to cut Canada's trade surplus in energy by almost half in the first nine months of 1975.

Statistics Canada said Tuesday that the surplus dropped to $688 million from $1.3 billion in a similar period in 1974.

There was an over-all deficit in crude oil, the major energy trade component, but this was offset by surpluses in trade in natural gas, electricity and radioactive ores.

The value of exports during the period rose six per cent to $3.9 billion while imports went up a whopping 36 per cent to $3.2 billion.

More than three-quarters of the deterioration in the balance resulted from trade with countries other than the U.S., Statistics Canada said.

The deficit with those countries rose 27 per cent to $2.3 billion.

At the same time, the surplus with the U.S. dropped 4.5 per cent to $3 billion.

Meanwhile, the U.S. commerce department say that country established a record trade surplus last year of $11.1 billion.

Exports exceeded imports in December for the 11th consecutive month.

The huge surplus in 1975 was in sharp contrast to the previous year when U.S. trade showed a $2.4 billion deficit, the department said in its year-end report Tuesday.

Exports for 1975 were at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of $107.2 billion while imports came to $96.5 billion.

The December surplus of $578.6 million was significantly smaller than the one in November, the report said, but helped eclipse the previous yearly high of $7.1 billion in 1964.

SEXY SONAR SIGNAL TO BECKON NESSY?

LONDON (AP) — A British electronics firm hopes it can lure the Loch Ness monster into view with a sexy sonar signal.

Videomaster Ltd. has been testing a new sonar device in the Scottish lake since August and a spokesman said Tuesday that scanning beams have produced readings that might or might not relate to the legendary monster. The readings are being analysed.

A spokesman for the firm, which makes video tennis games and other electronic gear, said the next step will be focusing a sound beam on the area that has produced readings.

"This signal may act as a sexual stimulant," said test director Bryan King. "We beamed Beethoven's Fifth into a river and this brought some roach (small fish like shiners) to the surface."

the weather

Last night was mild in British Columbia. Early morning temperatures ranged from near zero in the Cariboo and the Kootenays to near 10 degrees along the outer coast. The unseasonable high readings will continue today as yet another weather system from the Pacific makes its way eastward towards Alberta. Rain will occur along the coast and move into the southern interior later today. Snow and rain mixed will mark the passage of this disturbance in the Chilcotin and Central Interior regions. Another Pacific storm will maintain above normal temperatures over the province on Thursday.

'Kept in the Dark' Library Board Says

The chairman of the Greater Victoria library board was accused Tuesday of deliberately keeping board members in the dark about financing negotiations with the provincial government.

The board is "affronted", said Edward Ward-Harris, when chairman Gordon Hutcheson refused to elaborate at a board meeting on what tact the library would take in talks with the Library Development Commission.

"I don't see why we should be kept in such abysmal ignorance," he added, complaining that mayors of the four core municipalities, who met with Hutcheson Monday, knew more about the board's position than board members.

Hutcheson said the mayors and he had decided to contact the library commission once more and try to reach a compromise. The commission has offered 20 per cent financing, compared to the current 5 per cent, if the library service becomes a function of the Capital Region District.

"When I'm dealing with the four mayors, who have a lot of weight to pull in the community I must conform to their decision," Hutcheson told the board. "I must admit it may seem like I'm keeping you in the dark.

"Once a letter is received by the commission (stating the mayor's position on fianancing) I don't see any problem in getting the information to the board," he said, estimating in two or three weeks he'd elaborate.

The commission's suggested inter-municipal cost-sharing formula would be based on property assessment rather than the present per capita method and Victoria claims it would increase its share while substantially lowering the Saanich contribution.

The issue surfaced later during discussion of a board request that Victoria include in its five-year capital expenditure plan provision for a new central library.

"We're totally in the dark on this," said Ward-Harris. "I don't know whether the library is being considered (by mayors) under the region or the four municipalities. Surely this has a bearing on whether or not the city of Victoria does anything at all."

"We're really getting short-changed," he said. "There's an enormous demand for library services by a silent majority" more interested in a library than in hockey arenas.

Rather than writing letters to Victoria council on budgetting for a central library, the board should be getting public opinion into the open.

"A totally different approach is needed."

Hutcheson, however, said the board wants the city to put provision for a new library in the five-year plan, "so they don't forget about it."

A Tacky Trip NAILED . . .

100 MILE HOUSE (CP) — A truck bound for terrace spilled part of its load of nails over a 45-mile stretch of highway 97 in British Columbia's Cariboo district Tuesday morning causing flat tires for an estimated 20 vehicles.

The driver was unaware of the spilling nails and drove from 71 Mile House to Lac la Hache before it was noticed.

An RCMP spokesman said clean-up crews were having difficulty because the nails were aluminum and magnetic devices could not be used.

Quest Goes On To Choose Hearst Jury

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — As Patricia Hearst watched intently, a federal judge questioned potential jurors on the opening day of her trial and said he hoped to complete jury selection today.

In a dramatic moment, Miss Hearst, looking thin and pale and dwarfed by the huge courtroom, stood at the judge's request, giving a first look at the famous defendant to the prospective jury panel of 120 citizens, from which 12 will be chosen to try her.

The trial began with Judge Oliver Carter's admonition to the jury panel that it would be one of the most widely-publicized in U.S. history.

But it soon became obvious that the historic nature of the case did not intimidate the judge.

Quickly questioning jurors Carter by the end of the first day had dismissed 46 potential jurors.

But a surprisingly large number, 74, remained in spite of his apparent leniency in permitting jurors to be excused.

One woman said she was afraid her home would be bombed.

A man sneered at a juror's low pay.

Another woman said she could not bear having to sit still for a month.

Those were some of the reasons offered by those who were excused.

Daniel Hutchinson, who was excused, told Carter he had a relative who had been beaten with a piece of pipe by two youths.

"I can still see old Jim lying there with the blood running down his face," Hutchinson said.

Carter zeroed in on any connections prospective jurors had with law enforcement work.

David Petty, who said he had been a member of the San Mateo county sheriff's department riot squad, replied: "That's a very difficult question."

"I know it, and that's why I'm asking you," said the judge.

"I cannot say that I would not have prejudice," Petty said, and was excused.

George Paraspolo told Carter he had two sons in law enforcement work and was in security work himself.

"I'm afraid that because firearms were involved, I'm a little bit prejudiced," he said.

"Could you be fair and impartial?"

"No, sir."

Excused.

But among those who were allowed to remain on the jury panel was Bobby Williams, who said his uncle is going on trial soon on a murder charge.

Meanwhile, civil rights lawyer William Kunstler, saying he had refused to represent Hearst, said her parents were involved in attempts to give her the public image of "a lunatic or an idiot."

"I turned the case down with great pleasure," he said. "I won't work for pigs. I only represent people I respect. I don't respect the Hearsts."

In San Francisco, the Hearsts denied Kunstler's remark.

Riel's Flag To Fly Again

OTTAWA (CP) — The Metis flag that flew at the Battle of Batoche is being revived as a symbol of the Native Council of Canada.

The flag, showing a brown buffalo on a green field, will hang at assemblies and other functions where flags are used, council president Gloria George said Tuesday.

She said it will be the first use of the flag since May, 1885, when the forces of Louis Riel were defeated by Canadian troops at Batoche, just north of Saskatoon.

Riel led the Metis and Indians into a rebellion over land rights.

The council represents Metis and non-status Indians who now number about 750,000 in Canada. Metis are persons of mixed Indian-European blood.

Riel, once a member of Parliament, was hanged in Regina after the uprising was put down.

STEAK-OUT TIME?

Profile Needs Polishing In U.S., Canada Told

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's story is not being told in Washington and the country stands to suffer considerable damage unless it beefs up its profile in the United States, a senate committee said Tuesday.

Senator George Van Roggen, chairman of the senate committee on foreign affairs, said U.S.-Canadian relations were in a complex period and interests often failed to coincide.

Canada should explain many of its moves because it stands to loose more in the case of a misunderstanding, said Van Roggen.

"It's not a question of kowtowing to the United States," he added. "But we think the United States should know more and be more concerned about Canada, and it's the government's job to get the story across."

Van Roggen's committee Tuesday released an 89-page report on Canada-United States relations focusing on the institutional framework for the relationship.

The report, scheduled to be the first in a series, took note of congress' great control over U.S. foreign relations and plugged for greater efforts by the Canadian embassy in Washington to be heard there.

Canada spent "dramatically less" on information programs in the U.S. than major European countries. Such spending by Canada amounted to $2.3 million in 1974.

Canada was spending only 10 cents per capita for information programs in the U.S. compared to 63 cents by European nations.

On a trade basis, the figures were "even more startling". Canada only spent $1 per $18,000 of trade with the U.S. on information programs. The European countries spent $1 per $200.

It was recognized, however, that Canada does have advantages in this case in terms of proximity and language.

Candor From the U.S. General

It is a tacit comment on Canadian sovereignty that confirmation of the existence of stockpiled nuclear weapons at Comox, B.C. should come from a United States air force general rather than Ottawa. Despite questions in the House of Commons and local protests about the suspected weapons, their existence has never been officially acknowledged by the federal government nor the Canadian armed forces. Now we know, thanks to a candid American military man. That we should hear such facts from a foreigner rather than our own government should give pause to any thinking Canadian.

The juxtaposition of frankness between our officials and those of an ally might have been turned into another of those defensive bits of self-deprecating Canadian humor had the matter ended there. But North American Air Defence Command Chief General Daniel James Jr. had more to say during his Comox visit last weekend. He tells us that Canadian chief of staff General Jacques Dextraze assured him that the nuclear warheads would be removed once the obsolete Voodoo jets have been replaced. That's news too. Nobody on this side of the 49th parallel has been told the hated nuclear warheads would be removed eventually. In fact nobody has even told the Canadian public that the obsolete Voodoos will be replaced for sure.

Canada has just finished spending $850 million on Lockheed patrol planes to replace the Canadian Argus. Three squadrons of sophisticated long range interceptors — the number required to replace the current Voodoos — would cost well over $1 billion. And this in a year when the country's trade deficit is expected to top $5 billion. Perhaps Ottawa is about to announce the purchase of another American design. Who knows? Certainly not the people of Canada.

Granted, the long suffering Canadian armed forces have been putting up with worn-out equipment for some time. But delays and hesitation on the part of the federal government has cost the Canadian taxpayer untold millions as the cost of war material inflated. Now it is questionable whether we can afford our erstwhile military necessities.

Among all our military committments, NORAD would seem the most expendable for an overcommitted force. Manned bomber attacks are still a threat but with thousands of nuclear missiles on each side, it seems pathetic that Canada should maintain an expensive fly swatter to hit at the periphery of some future attack. General James implicitly referred to this situation when he admitted NORAD would be of less importance once the Trident base at Bangor, Wash. was functioning.

Carrying the argument one step further, it would seem Canadians are going to get hit whether we are in NORAD or minding our own business if the unthinkable occurs. These are, of course, things for the country at large to debate. The fact that our only information source is a U.S. general says a lot about how this country is being governed.

An Accusation Requiring Rebuttal

Convict Andrew Bruce's statement, at his trial arising out of incidents at the B.C. penitentiary last June, that prison guard Albert Hollinger shot and killed prison employee Mary Steinhauser is another reason why the Farris commission report should be made public. Bruce points the finger at a guard yet the guard's testimony about facts surrounding the convicts' capture were heard in camera. The reason for all the secrecy at that time was the possibility of prisoner reprisals against testifying guards. Bruce's statement disposes of that weak rationale.

Hollinger has been accused in a public courtroom yet he has not had the opportunity to defend himself with other available testimony. The Bruce statement was not given under oath. Nor was there an opportunity for cross-examination by any counsel acting for the guard. The public has not even been told who made up the so called "tactical squad" that burst in on the convicts. All we have is the lonely statement of Andrew Bruce.

It deserves consideration along with the statements and testimony of the prison guards. In order for the public to make a judgment on this murky business, the complete transcript of the Farris inquiry should be made public now. Failing that, a new inquiry should be undertaken. Too many loose ends and unexplained statements are left in the wake of this tragedy. Until all the facts are known the Canadian Penitentiary Service and its practices remain in doubt.

JAMES GRAY

News Is Good for Alta. Oilmen

CALGARY — In the words of the opening line of the newscast of an American radio broadcaster of another era: "There is good news tonight." It comes from the Alberta oil and gas patch. And it is so good it may presage the possibility of Canadians continuing to waste their energy resources at present rates for another decade.

During the past six months the petroleum industry exploration branch began to move from gloom and doom to cherry blossom pink. In the process it is again demonstrating that an ounce of incentive is worth a ton of political bluster. The drilling business, the bellwether of the industry, is enjoying its best winter in five years and complaints are beginning to surface about the shortage of drilling rigs.

The contrast with last year is startling. Then the trek of drillers and their equipment to the United States was at its peak. Premier Peter Lougheed, for his drastic boost in royalty rates on gas and oil production, was running neck and neck with Trudeau and Macdonald as the oil industry's ogre of the year.

Royalties Abolished

The industry's attitude to anything Longheed did was — "even if it was good I wouldn't like it." It was this revulsive attitude which kept the oil men from appreciating the scope of Lougheed's new drilling incentive program. It was that program, once the industry began to nibble at it, which turned everything around.

Under Alberta's new incentive system the wildcatters can retrieve from the government up to half the cost of their wildcat wells. Those are wells drilled a minimum of three miles from any previous drilling. From 30 to 50 per cent of the cost can be charged against natural gas royalties or for purchase of drilling reservations and leases from the government.

Of equal importance to the industry has been the derailing by Edmonton of Ottawa's attempt to force the oil industry to pay taxes on the royalties they pay the provincial governments. Lougheed abolished the entire royalty system as far as oil production is concerned though royalties are still paid on natural gas.

The effect of the two measures has been to restore the confidence of the petroleum industry in Alberta as an attractive area for exploration. And the doubling of the wellhead price of natural gas over the last year, from 44 cents to 90 cents per thousand cubic feet (MCF), has been an additional incentive.

The combination of higher prices and drilling incentives has focused attention on hundreds of hitherto unattractive prospects. When natural gas was bringing 10 or 15 cents, wells that could produce a million feet or so a day were hardly worth having. Pipeline costs and compression charges would eat up all the income and then some. Today almost anything that can produce is worth having. And worth going to look for.

CALGARY
. . . oilmen happier now

A year ago Canadian independent companies were looking everywhere else but Alberta. They were pouring their Alberta revenue into the North Sea, the Mediterranean, offshore Africa, South America, Indonesia and the Texas coast. Warring with Ottawa and Edmonton and Regina had curdled their enthusiasm for Alberta. Prophets of doom were muttering doubts about ever finding much more oil and gas here.

Presto, chango! One independent president said with oldtime enthusiasm: "Look, there are 500 townships in the sedimentary basin of the eastern slopes on which not a single well has been drilled. (One township covers 36 square miles.) There just has to be a hell of a lot of oil and gas under that much land, and a lot of it is going to be found in the next couple of years."

In addition to the improvement in incentives and prices, several other factors have added to the new spirit in Alberta. In the last two years more than 50 drilling rigs were moved back to the United States. That drained away a bothersome surplus and brought the supply more in line with the needs of the industry.

The higher oil and gas prices have provided the companies with the financial wherewithal for expanded exploration. If the increased income is not spent exploring much of it will be taxed away by Ottawa. So the pressure to get busy in Alberta, where markets are available for any discoveries, has built while the attractions of other areas has diminished.

U.S. Scene Quiet

The high cost of Arctic drilling has deglamorized the north. So has the prospect of having to shut in wells for a decade before a pipeline can be built. So has the lack of success in finding the kind of reserves needed.

Finally, when the U.S. congress emasculated the depletion allowances the oil industry has enjoyed for 50 years, it brought the drilling boom there to a screeching halt. The Montana Oil and Gas Journal reported recently that there were 58 deep drilling rigs now stacked and unemployed in the Rocky Mountain area of the U.S. alone. And that was the promised land into which the Canadian drillers were trekking only a year ago.

One Alberta independent emphasized, however, that it would be wrong to attribute the turnaround to incentives alone.

"The name of the game when money is bejng risked is confidence," he said. "Lougheed's increased royalties and rule changes so jolted confidence that it took the better part of a year after he produced the incentives for anybody to pay any attention. Incentives aren't worth a damn without confidence. Saskatchewan tells you that. They are offering incentives too, but nobody has any confidence we'd be able to keep what we find. So who needs Saskatchewan incentives?"

" . . . brace yourself . . . think about it . . . "

Lest We Forget

Those readers (and editorialists) who lie in the weeds waiting for opportunities to pick at the new Social Credit government should re-examine their Hansard of the past three years.

Better still, let them re-examine the infamous Bill 42, the Land Commission Act of 1973, in which the NDP government sought to grab our land.

This was the bill the NDP would have grabbed any land, "real or personal," without the owner having any recall to the law.

There were other bills passed (such as the one giving government control of our news media) which, while passed by the NDP, could not be carried out because radio and television were under federal jurisdiction.

Perhaps the time has come for citizens to start wearing a suitable freedom button inscribed: "Lest We Forget."—Ed Lubick, 500 Westwind Drive.

Recast Approaches

I want to support A. F. Deverell (Sewer Extension, Times, Jan. 17) in pleading that the time available to reconsider, in the suspension of work at Clover Point outfall be used to revamp concepts of sewage disposal and water use in this watershed area.

Why should we throw good money away again by another prodigal display of wastage of our resources? We need to process and-or irrigate away our sewage nutritives. We also need to consider the necessity of recycling our water for multiple use.

We cannot get enough additional water for the increasing needs of this area, by digging wells, nor should we try. This will only decrease the supply of ground water which, it is very likely, should not be materially depleted. It has its own service to render where it is, which should not be interfered with.

At the present time we see up to 14 million gallons of water a day flowing into the strait. Here is a vast supply, of which we should be taking advantage.

Of course, we will hear that this cannot be financed.

I am sick and tired of this bedtime song. I do not hear any voices from the various councils of our municipalities saying that this area cannot afford the $29,930,316 which went through government liquor stores in Esquimalt, Victoria and Saanich electoral districts last year (barring Ganges). To this enormous sum must be added the mark-up in private resale of about one-third, making a $40 million drain on the areas financial resources by this leech-like business.

Let us recast our whole approach to what really are our resources, and revise all along the line. It is perhaps not quite too late. — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

The Truth Hurts

I've heard Prime Minister Trudeau's recent television speeches and read the full texts of his remarks in the press and for the life of me can't understand what all the ballyhoo is about.

Maybe I'm not as smart as other folks but in common language what I concluded he was trying to tell us is that we're getting too greedy, too selfish, and too lazy, and if we don't soon smarten up we'll be in big trouble.

To labor he's saying that instead of spending so much time on the picket lines they should put in a day's work for a day's pay and quit trying to fill a gallon jug with wine when there's only a quart available.

To business and industry he's saying that instead of trying to rip off the public by price fixing, shoddy goods or "buyer beware" philosophy, give the customer an even break.

To the public at large he's saying that if we keep putting our hands in the cookie jar too often we'll get our fingers rapped, and if we can't afford chicken every Sunday and steak every day of the week we should tighten our belts a little, trim off some excess fat and maybe live a little longer.

. . . get hands out of the jar

So what's wrong with those remarks?

The trouble is that the truth hurts and when it hits us between the eyes we squawk and squeal blue murder.

Sure, Trudeau has his faults. He's arrogant, often unsympathetic, a better philosopher than an economist, but at least he has the guts to tell it like it is, and instead of continual nit-picking and expecting him all by himself to pull the rabbits of co-operation and productivity out of a hat, how about putting our own individual houses in order and giving him a break?

His control program might just work if we all get behind it, and that would be a first for Canada. Think about it. — A. R. Willis, 4890 West Saanich Road.

New Vote

I have heard many times that the Social Credit government was for the businessman and so far this hearsay has been proven correct.

In the case of ICBC, for example, people who own a business are, in most cases, over 25 years of age and therefore by owning a business, if they're successful, they can afford the new insurance rates. It is people under 25 who are going to suffer because 200 per cent is a "bit" more than they can afford.

Another category of some interest is co-op housing developments. They were built for the people in order for them to afford a nice, new home and now Bennett says that "the co-op is dead". All the buildings in these developments now have to be bought outright. Again one more strike against the middleman. What more can Bennett do "for" our province.

I only wish that in today's government the people could demand a new vote.—Mrs. D. Arbuckle, Victoria.

Support Bikeway

This is in reply to the advertisement sponsored by the Henderson Plateau Action Committee: Bike Path Gains — Be Vigilant — This Could Be A killer, (Times, Jan. 22).

Henderson Road residents who really want to protect their children should vigorously support the bikeway proposal, not work against it.

According to Statistics Canada (Motor Vehicle Traffic Accidents, Report No. 53-206-1972), of all bicycle fatalities in traffic accidents, 85 per cent of the victims were aged five to 19 and of that number fully three-quarters were 14 or younger.

These figures are shocking but not surprising, considering that the main users of bicycles are school-aged children — just look at the number of bicycles parked in the racks at any Victoria-area school. It is precisely these young people who need and deserve the protection which is afforded by a well-designed, well-built bicycle path, especially when they are travelling to school along a traffic artery as busy as Henderson Road. Where human life is at stake, a few feet of road taken from on-street parking or even a portion of a few front lawns should not be too much to ask of parents truly concerned for the safety of their children. — Russell D. Wilkins, 308-2095 Oak Bay Avenue.

From the Times of January 28, 1916

VANCOUVER — The Pacific committee of the fisheries advisory board was blamed by C. M. Wilson in a vigorous speech to the Fishermen's Protective Association for driving the white man out of business. He said more than a million dollars capital has left Vancouver in the last six months to be used in the promotion of the Alaska fisheries. He denounced the committee, composed of government appointees, for granting special privileges to big cannery interests employing Asiatic labor, and also for fixing the price of fish at figures practically dictated by the big companies which were unfair to white fishermen.

Serendipity National Need

By NORMAN COUSINS
Saturday Review

The big gift of the Founding Fathers to the American people was a political environment in which good things were likely to happen, not because political rulers might be benevolently inclined, but because the conditions were auspicious for creative surges. The Founding Fathers were not fearful of the confusions and chaos that were often inherent in an open society. For beneath all that confusion were the energizing forces that would inevitably lead to progress.

Horace Walpole, the English author and historian who was a contemporary of the early American political philsophers, had a word for it — serendipity. The word came out of a fairy tale called The Three Princes of Serendip. The princes lived in the best of all worlds; they "were always making discoveries by accident ... of things they were not in quest of."

In a philosophical sense, the principal achievement of the young Constitution-makers who came together at Philadelphia in 1787 was that they created a serendipitious arena on a national scale. The Founding Fathers knew they could not personally guarantee every person an adventure in serendipity. What they could do, however, was to define and create the basic conditions that favored human growth and development.

In short, the American philosophers understood that the "happy accidents" of history are not entirely accidental. Historical windfalls are more apt to occur under some sets of circumstances than others. Ralph Waldo Emerson some years later described the process very adequately when he said that "shallow men believe in luck; wise and strong men believe in cause and effect."

A striking example is Charles Darwin's supposedly "instinctive" grasp of the theory associated with his name. The concept came to him in a flash while he was riding in his carriage. But behind that sudden bolt of discovery were long years of painstaking observation and massive note-taking. The accumulated material had seeped into his subconscious, where it underwent constant sorting and evaluation.

Every great scientific-research centre is an exercise in serendipity. The scientist does not have a highly specific line of attack or even a firmly fixed objective. The process involves the interaction of a trained mind with multiple possibilities and combinations that are brought within range of observation and control. The laboratory is more a gestation centre than a workroom where everyone can tell you precisely what she or he intends to discover. Many of the important findings that come out of these laboratories are unplanned and even unexpected.

Autocratic governments are not designed for serendipitious adventures. They are terrified of anything that smacks of disarray. They abhor surprise. They try to anticipate all the contingencies that could represent a personal threat to the rulers. In their own inimical way they try to be too neat. "I suspect," George F. Kennan said in a talk on totalitarianism some 20 years ago, "that a neurotic sense of tidiness in political arrangements can be a great danger to any society." Americans are lucky, he said, to live in sectional diversities with varied forces contending for political power. The pulling and the mauling, the flux and the swirling dust of an open society, are untidy enough to reassure a George Kennan who would look beyond the murk to the possibilities for creative splendor.

In America today, we seem to be drifting away from the requirements of a serendipitous arena. Neatness is getting in the way of access. Options that were intended for the people are being monopolized by government. Officeholders presume to decide how much Americans may know about the operations and aims of the government. They use terms like "executive privilege" and "considerations of national security" when what they really mean is that they do not wish their personal decisions or actions to be subjected to legitimate scrutiny.

Openness and serendipity go together. They are the parents of good news and good luck. They can be a source of regeneration for our next 200 years.

By TOM BUCKLEY

NEW YORK — For 10 years now, Zehdi Labib Terzi, the acting chief observer of the Palestine Liberation Organization at the United Nations, and his family have led a nomadic existence.

His work on behalf of the organization has taken him from his native Jerusalem to Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Beirut, Istanbul, Amman, Cairo, Madrid and, now, New York.

"I am a nomadic Arab who has never been on a camel," he said in his apartment one evening last week, after a long day in the Security Council, where the question of a Middle Eastern settlement was being debated once again.

Terzi, 52, confounds the stereotype of the PLO in other ways as well. No hot-eyed fanatic, he is, rather, a patient humorous, rather roly-poly man who wears a goatee.

"Some people say I look like Chaim Weizmann," he said, referring to the noted Zionist and architect of the state of Israel.

Terzi is, moreover, a Christian, a member of the Syrian Orthodox Church, rather than a Moslem.

"My family lived, and I was born, in the Christian quarter of Jerusalem, only about 100 yards from the Church of the Holy Sepulcher," he said.

He rose from his chair and went to a cabinet. From it he removed a velvet box. He opened it. A gold cross gleamed on a ribbon of crimson watered silk.

"The Order of the Holy Sepulcher," he said proudly. "Presented to me by the Patriarch of Jerusalem for service to the faith."

Financed by the bottomless wells of Arab oil, it might be assumed that the PLO's representative to the world organization would live in splendor, but something close to the opposite is the case.

Terzi, who arrived here last July, his wife, Widad; their daughter, Karimah, 14, and son, Kamel, 8, who followed a month later, are crowded into a shabbily furnished apartment in a characterless building on the East Side.

Nor has Terzi yet acquired that irreducible badge of status, an official automobile. On the other hand, he is within easy walking distance of the United Nations and his office on Park Avenue.

His wife sat with him, following the conversation, putting in a word now and then. She confounded the stereotypes herself, being neither a revolutionary zealot nor a submissive Middle Eastern housewife.

Rather, she is a Chilean. Slender, with reddish blond hair, she is a member of a Syrian family that emigrated to Santiago at the end of the last century.

The Terzis met in Beirut in 1959, when she, as a university student, was attending a conference of overseas Arabs. They were married soon afterward.

The youngsters are attending public schools here, and are not liking it very well at the moment.

"There are a lot of bad kids in the school," Karimah said, "but there are some good kids, too. The classes are too easy. Mathematics is my best subject, and in the ninth grade here we are studying things that we had in the fifth grade in Beirut."

A World Bank Loan To Chile Raises Important Questions

By ANTHONY LEWIS

WASHINGTON — The World Bank has before it a proposal to lend $33 million to the Chilean government, for investment in copper mining facilities. The bank's president, Robert S. McNamara, has recommended the loan and approval is expected this week.

Some will find it surprising that a respected international institution should want to assist a regime just described by the British Foreign Secretary as "uncivilized" and "brutal." The military junta that governs Chile has made murder and torture policy. Despite promises to ease its cruelty, it continues to practice torture and holds thousands of political prisoners who have not been charged with any crime.

Inside the World Bank, the loan to Chile is a sensitive subject. Embarrassment is evident in some quarters. But there is also an understandable hesitation about having the bank apply political standards to its loans.

"That is dangerous territory," one ranking figure at the bank said — "making loans depend on a regime's political character. On that basis Tanzania might not get any loans now, because the United States does not like its government's attitude."

The bank has followed the practice of talking in strictly economic terms. Its reports are "sanitized," in the words of the staff, to keep out politics. But of course the line between economics and politics is not always so clear. If those guiding the bank are strongly antagonistic to a particular government, it may be denied credit on the ground that it is inefficient or a bad risk.

World Bank lending to Chile stopped abruptly when Salvador Allende's left-wing government took office in 1970. The stated reason was Allende's failure to negotiate with the former owners of nationalized property, in violation of a bank requirement. But it is also true that the United States put on heavy pressure to delay any loans to Chile. One is said to have been under consideration when Allende was killed in 1973.

. . . heavy-handed

At some point a government plainly could be brutal enough to affect the bank's attitude toward it, whatever the explanation. The bank would not lend to a Hitler, efficient though he might be. It has not in fact made any loans to Uganda since Idi Amin took over and his mass murders became known. Some would regard the behavior of the Chilean junta as of similar character.

But the proposed loan to Chile also raises important questions in terms of the bank's own lending policy. McNamara defined that in a speech in Santiago in 1972, setting out two major aims. He said the bank must encourage both economic growth and "more equitable income distribution" in developing countries, to improve the lot of the poorest 40 per cent. What counts in the end, he said, is "improvement of the individual lives of the great masses of people."

The bank staff report on the Chile loan, approved by McNamara, does not dwell on how it may benefit lower-income people. The report recites economic developments since the 1973 coup, with no reference to the accompanying human realities. It is all so dry that one almost expects to find a note about the trains running on time.

The report and a supporting memorandum do make reference to economic privation in Chile today. Industrial production is down 22 to 25 per cent from a year ago, and unemployment in the Santiago area is at 16.6 per cent. But the report argues that there is no better alternative economic policy.

"Heavy sacrifices are being required of the Chilean people, the report says. But its cold recital omits a fundamental truth. Privations of the kind being suffered by Chileans today can only be imposed by repression of a severe kind.

In any event, it would be hard to argue that such a loan to Chile under present circumstances would be likely to reduce income disparities or help the poorest 40 per cent. That most conservative British weekly, The Economist, wrote recently that the junta's "heavy-handed" economic policy had "brought many thousands to the brink of starvation."

It is said of judges that they must not be blind to what all others can see and the same rule might apply to the World Bank. A loan now, awarding a badge of respectability to the Pinochet government, would come at a moment when there is some pressure for change. Members of the junta itself are reportedly trying to force Pinochet out and move to a more moderate policy. Eduardo Frei, the Christian Democratic leader, has just opened an attack on the regime, and particularly on its economic policy.

In the World Bank, as elsewhere, bureaucratic momentum has its effect. Chile's Finance Minister, Jorge Cauas, formerly headed the bank's development research centre and has given strong support to this loan. The board of directors rarely withholds approval when a loan proposal has come so far. But economic considerations along with others urge that, this time, the bank think again.

Good Cod—Bad Lobster

By LA REYNIERE
Le Monde, Paris

To equal the scope of New York Times food editor Craig Claibourne's notorious $4,000 dinner on American Express at Chez Denis this winter, you have to go back to the 18th century.

Glancing at the menu (first service, potages, releves d'entrees and grandes entrees; second service, rots chauds, rots froids, legumes, entremets de sucre; third service, patisseries) you wonder how our ancestors managed to get it all down.

But of course they made no attempt whatever to do so. It was as though today, for instance, the waiters brought everything on a restaurant's a la carte menu to the table for you to sample at will. In a situation like that, dinner a la francaise can't really be ordered for fewer than 20 guests.

In this case there were only two, Mr. Claibourne and his companion Pierre Franey. Seven different wines were served, and they were offered three dishes per bottle. There was no question of their eating and drinking all that, but naturally they had to pay for it.

When you realise that the wines were among the greatest available and therefore extremely expensive, and that some of the bottles were no longer drinkable (the 1835 Madeira imperial, for instance, which Nicholas, France's biggest wine merchant, lists at Frs 600—$125 or so—and three bottles had to be opened to find a single good one), you can see how the bill mounted up.

Like it or not, though, Denis was the only chef in Paris capable of preparing this meal once it was planned (the cooking took him three days). Claude Terrail of the Tour d'Argent was well aware of this, and telephoned Denis to congratulate him. Coming from the patron of the Tour d'Argent, this was high praise indeed.

Astonishing, wonderful Chez Denis is really not the most expensive restaurant in Paris if you take quality into account. People who say it is do so out of envy and resentment.

Denis, definitely the cook of the hour, has also just published a remarkable cookbook, "La Cuisine de Denis" (Robert Laffont, 253 pp, Frs 58). Here's one of the things he says that I find particularly persuasive: "A good cod is worth more than a bad lobster."

It's the perfect retort to all those people who like to sneer at Denis's culinary inventions but insist on putting truffles, foie gras and eau de vie into absolutely everything.

Does Chez Denis (where Denis continues to supervise the kitchen) serve true haute cuisine? I mean in the sense given the term in a new book called "Cent Menus du President" ("The President's 100 Menus," Jean-Pierre Delarge, 768 pp, Frs 150), compiled by Members of the Academie des Gastronomes and the Academie Culinaire de France.

I'm sorry, but I hope these gentelmen will allow me to say that not a single menu among their hundred tempts me. All the cliches inherited from the "cuisine de papa" are there from lobster thermidor to peach melba.

Take this lunch suggested on page 619: two dishes with truffles; one with foie gras; two with asparagus; practically all of them with Madeira.

Haute cuisine? I don't like the expression very much, but if it's what you're looking for, then go to Chez Denis. Or try Alain Senderens' admirable L'Archestrate. Senderens has added a few new dishes to his winter carte on the extravagant order of salade de peririx aux choux et le foie gras (partridge, cabbage and goose-liver salad). But there are also dishes of Racinian simplicity, like his rognons de veau a l'echalote (veal kidneys with shallots). And you might consider his Saint-Jacques aux petit legumes (scallops with tiny fresh vegetables): extra-ordinary.

And that, gentlemen of the culinary and gastronomic academies, is what haute cuisine is all about!

The Political Masked Man

russell baker

NEW YORK — Paul T. Lanyhow is running for president of the U.S. and won't give his right name, or so says the federal election commission, which recently published a list of 62 persons who have told it they are after the big job. Lanyhow, according to the Associated Press, is the alias of a man who wants to stay anonymous lest the campaign be debased by factors of personality and charisma.

I know nothing more about Lanyhow, but he seems to me to be on right track. This is the age of the political masked man. Often we can't tell who any of the candidates are behind their carefully hand wrought images.

This year everybody is running on a pledge to cut spending, which is as sensible as promising to end snow in Montana, but Lanyhow has more chance than most to do a little budget-balancing. Ronald Reagan is talking like a man on the verge of promising that if elected he will not go to Washington. A fine chance! The Secret Service will come and drag him there. Lanyhow is free of this problem.

As long as nobody knew who he was, Lanyhow would be foolish to go to Washington, where he would become bogged down receiving prize watermelons, congressmen in search of gravy and newspaper reporters demanding to know why he didn't show them more respect and state secrets.

If he stayed faceless, the Secret Service couldn't find him if it wanted to. Of course, there would be no need to, since he would be safe from cranks and assassins.

Living a quiet family life in some typical American community, he could instantly effect government economies. He could rent the White House to some pretentious millionaire, thus bringing in some revenue for a change from that deficit-ridden property.

The White House lawn might be turned into a profitable miniature-golf course, and the fleet of Air Force planes and White House limousines mothballed or leased for private use.

Most of the other candidates are talking like men eager to institute such economies once they get there. They will not. Once elected president, men tend to discover that those limousines and helicopters are essential to get them to airports to board the Air Force jets that are essential to take them to distant cities so they can make speeches about the need for more economy in government.

When these birds talk about economy in government, they are not talking about their own cut of the treasury boodle; what they mean is that they're going to see that less of it goes to people who don't have a muscular friend in Washington.

I hear objections. Lanyhow could be anybody. He could be the godfather of all godfathers of the Mafia. Worse, he could be Abbie Hoffman. He could even be a woman. Obviously, his campaign is vulnerable to such scare tactics and rumor-mongering. Lawyers would get rich battering him with writs requiring him to prove his citizenship, to establish that he was of constitutional age to serve, that he was not a felon.

Lanyhow's chances of winning are, therefore, probably slight, and this sad conclusion is not without small irony. It's assumption is that the American likes to know whom he is voting for. Not an unreasonable expectation. The flaw nowadays is that we may be more deceived about many of the men who run than we are about Lanyhow.

Although Richard Nixon had been in politics longer than most Americans had been alive by 1972, it turned out that most of us never knew who he was all along. The man we saw campaigning in 1968 with a plan to end the Southeast Asian war — was he the same man who expanded the war by starting the secret bombing of Cambodia 90 days after taking office?

The Lyndon Johnson who campaigned against Goldwater in 1964 turned out to be a fiction: The Presidential Johnson had already laid plans for more war in Asia while Campaigner Johnson was suggesting that Goldwater was a warmaker. Let us not forget Kennedy's start on getting America "moving again" by immediately reinstalling J. Edgar Hoover at the FBI and Allen Dulles at CIA as soon as the election returns were in. Overnight, progressivism turned into business as usual.

Will we buy another thrilling candidate this year, then find that he was built to last only through the campaign? It would not be surprising. With Lanyhow we would not know what we were getting, but at least we would know we didn't know what we were getting. That's progress.

Placer

Placer Development Ltd. reports consolidated net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1975 of $16 million or $1.34 a share, including extraordinary items of $7.2 million or 60 cents a share. This compares with 1974 consolidated net earnings of $43.1 million or $3.59 a share, including extraordinary items of $3.5 million or 29 cents a share.

Shell

Shell Canada Ltd. estimates provincial price freezes on petroleum products reduced 1975 revenues by $20 million. Estimated earnings for the year were $144.8 million or $1.45 a share compared with $142 million or $1.42 a share in 1974. Income tax and royalty payments to governments in 1975 increased 27 per cent to $239.3 million.

GCOS

Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. reports that after an extraordinary gain of $2.65 million, its 1975 loss came to $991,000. This compares with a 1974 profit of $12,033,000, which included a restated extraordinary gain of $4,882,000. GCOS said the extraordinary gains arise because income tax provisions have been offset by prior years' losses.

U.S. Steel

U.S. Steel Corp. reports a drop of about $70 million in 1975 earnings compared with the previous year. The largest steel-maker in the United States said its income in 1975 was $559.6 million, or $10.33 a share, compared with $630.3 million, or $11.64 a share in 1974. Sales dropped $1 billion, from $9.2 billion in 1974 to $8.2 billion in 1975.

Income for the fourth quarter was $111.6 million, or $2.06 a share, on sales of $1.9 billion. In 1974, the firm earned $168.7 million, or $3.11 a share, on sales of $2.4 billion.

Coseka

Coseka Resources Limited of Vancouver reports net profits of $265,423 or 4.3 cents a share for the three months ended Oct. 31, compared with $139,978 or 2.4 cents for the similar period in 1974. The increase in profits was a direct result of new discoveries, additional development drilling and higher wellhead prices, the company reports. Cash generated from operations during the period was $494,979 compared with $96,504. The company has extensive minority interests in natural gas and oil exploration in both the United States and Canada, the company reports.

Housing Efforts 'Token' Without Land Provisions

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Unless the federal government tackles the basic problem of providing an adequate supply of land at a reasonable cost, its various incentives, subsidies and other programs will remain only a token effort toward easing Canada's housing shortage.

That was the message brought to Victoria realtors Tuesday by Peter Carter, Montreal-based head of the Royal Bank's mortgage department.

In a lunchtime address to members of the Victoria Real Estate Bard at the Empress Hotel, Carter said Ottawa's latest housing measures were too little and too late, and they could result in a slowdown of house sales during 1976.

He claimed that the term housing crisis is incorrect, because the situation in this country is really a "housing pricing crisis," of which the prime causes are the shortage of serviced lots and their high selling prices.

Carter said the only effective solution is for the federal government to launch a "massive" land banking program.

Expanding on the theme in an interview following the luncheon, he said $1 billion would probably be sufficient to start such a program now.

The funds would to go the provinces which in turn would hand them over to municipalities for purchasing and servicing lots before they are sold to developers. The proceeds would be rolled back to ensure the program's continuity.

Carter noted that in the case of a new house selling for $65,000, the structure itself accounts for about $30,000 while the remaining $35,000 represents the price of the land.

"This is just crazy," he added. "$10,000 maybe, but $35,000 . . .?"

In this speech Carter, an assistant general manager of the Royal Bank, expressed doubts that the maximum loan limits which now apply to high ratio lending under the National Housing Act are realistic. He also questioned the effect the restrictions could have on the resale market.

"To have a strong new housing market you must have a vigorous sales turnover in existing homes," he said.

"I am fearful of a slowdown in sales of existing units because high ratio mortgages above the NHA dollar limits will not be available.

"If we do experience a slow existing house market there can be no question it will have serious repercussions on new house sales and, if builders cannot sell their new units, the end result will be fewer homes built in 1976."

Carter said he didn't expect any shortage of mortgage funds for the major part of 1976. He speculated that if there was any rise in mortgage interest rates it would be "slight and towards the latter part of the eyar."

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, who was among the invited guests, said afterwards that B.C. may be able to tap a potential source of land for housing from areas now covered by agricultural land reserve which are only marginally agricultural in nature.

He also said he is "not at all satisfied" that municipalities are fully exploring all opportunities for "infilling" development.

"Victoria's Leading Condominium Brokers"

Files Show NDP Told No on Refinery

Transport Minister Jack Davis said Tuesday his files show the former NDP government was advised against the proposed $350 million oil refinery in B.C.

"My reading of the files is that the technical advice and the economic advice particularly that Mr. Barret was getting was, no, no, no," said Davis.

The 85,000-barrel-a-day refinery proposed by the NDP government for Clinton or Merritt would be expensive and probably increase the price of gas, according to the files, said Davis.

The minister said he did not want to quote any specific memos or reports but the government's own people listed many reasons against building the refinery "and hardly any reasons as to why it should proceed."

"You could say it ws an article of faith with the provincial government that it could do things better than private enterprise and take oil companies on and beat them at their own game," he said.

Davis said it would be much less expensive for the old private oil refineries in Vancouver to expand than to build a large new complex.

Earlier, the minster said the new cabinet would have to decide whether to go ahead on the refinery project but said he doubted it would proceed.

Davis also said B.C. Hydro's board of directors will meet this week and discuss possible increases in the domestic price of natural gas.

The well-head price of gas has increased without a proportional increase in the price to consumers, he said, and eventually those costs have to be passed on.

Hydro cannot be left in the red forever, he said, especially if it wants to keep borrowing on the open market.

He also said the province has no way of preventing gasoline price increases if they are passed on to the consumer later this year when Ottawa approves a wholesale price increase.

When B.C. lifts its own price freeze, now scheduled to come off Feb. 1, gasoline may not automatically go up in price, however, said Davis, because of the price war between gas outlets, especially in Vancouver.

'FREE' ADVICE

Canadian Press

Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair said Tuesday his department will send letters to advertisers advising them that the word "free" is used too loosely in advertisements.

"Free is commonly used to describe offers where the purchase of another item is required to obtain the free article," Mair said. "The article is, in fact, not really free."

"The possibility of free being misused or misunderstood is so great that it should only be used when the product is an unconditional gift," the minister said.

BLIND TRUST FOR CABINET

Cabinet ministers have been asked by Premier Bennett to put all their assets into blind trusts by July.

Bennett said Tuesday he felt a reasonable deadline for ministers is the time of the next mandatory financial disclosure in July.

The premier put all his financial assets into a trust when he was opposition leader at the time of the first financial disclosure and has since announced he wants all his ministers to follow suit.

A copy of Bennett's trust has been given to the ministers, he said, and they have begun switching their assets.

The premier also said he hopes all MLAs will prevent any suspicion of conflict of interest by avoiding dealings with the provincial government.

Asked about Victoria Socred MLA Sam Bawlf, who has a share in the company which holds the Belmont Building, renting office space to the provincial government, Bennett said agreements made in the past need not be changed.

But he said in the future he hopes new MLAs will not become involved in any new financial dealings with the government.

A blind trust occurs when a public official turns over his investments to an independent executor and has no say in their administration.

Doctors to Split $3.4 Million Pie

Doctors employed by the provincial government will share in $3.4 million in retroactive pay as the result of the a long-delayed contract settlement announced Tuesday.

The contract covers the period ending March 31, 1975, and gives the physicians a pay increase of 10.4 per cent retroactive to November, 1973, Lump sum payments will range from $7,000 to $15,000.

The 30-month contract covers nearly 400 doctors, including about 125 directly employed by the government and the remainder on contact with various government agencies.

Negotiations will now start on the two-year contract starting April 1, 1975.

Negotiations have been stalled for nearly three years because of the Public Service Labor Relations Act, passed in 1973, which originally placed doctors into the B.C. Government Professional Employees Association.

The doctors fought their inclusion in the union and at the last spring session the legislation was amended to exclude them and allow the B.C. Medical Association to represent them.

BCMA president William Ibott said he was not certain whether the new contract is as high as the doctors would have received if they stayed in the professional union but he said it places them in a satisfactory position with their counterparts in Canada.

He also said he hopes negotiations for the new contract will not be unduly affected by federal wage guidelines because talks have been stalled for so long.

Under the retroactive settlement, physicians' salaries range from $27,000 to $43,600.

Patients on Waiting Lists Dying, Wallace Charges

People have died awaiting surgery in Victoria's hospitals, Conservative leader Scott Wallace charged Tuesday.

The Oak Bay doctor said people with proven cancer malignancies are on waiting lists, as are people needing heart surgery.

"People have died on the waiting lists," said Wallace.

He blamed the Capital Region's delay in starting a third hospital on the penninsula and said patients who should be in intermediate care hospitals are taking beds in the acute hospitals because there are no intermediate facilities.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said he has had no complaints from Wallace or from members of the medical profession he has met with.

He said as far as he knows the region and his department are considering the proposed MacKenzie Avenue-Douglas Street site for the third hospital and there is some upgrading of existing facilities going on.

"If it's as bad as that we" have to expediate something . . . I would like Dr. Wallace to come to see me," said McClelland.

More Student Work?

Canadian Press

Labor Minister Allan Williams says the provincial government has no intention of scrapping the student summer employment program and actually intends to expand it.

The minister told a news conference his department is re-examining the programs and hopes to come up with a plan to employ students not only during the summer but also at other times of the year.

He hopes to make a statement later in the week.

The minister was reacting to reports that the labor department has asked the University of British Columbia student placement office to stop distributing application forms for employment programs.

INDIAN ARTISTS' WORK ON VIEW

Roy Vickers spent years working as a dishwasher, carpenter's helper, logger, fisherman, trucker and Saanich fireman — now he's established as a contemporary Indian artist of note.

His carvings and graphics may be found in major public and private collections both in Canada and the United States.

Vickers was born 30 years ago in the Nass River village of Greenville and was named Wehaast (big fireweed) by the attending midwife.

He was raised in the north coast village of Kitkatla before moving to Victoria.

Vickers' works, which reflect a deep interest in the outdoors through the Tsimshian tradition, is on display from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today through Saturday at Emily Carr Art Centre, 207 Government St.

The exhibit shows the results of years of interest in the art, culture and religion of his people through independent study and discussions with Indian elders.

The interest led eventually to full-time enrollment in the Gitanmax School of Northwest Indian Art at Ksan village in Hazelton in 1973. There he studied intensively for two years.

Road Too Narrow

Saanich council Monday tabled a request to create an extra lot at 594 Brookleigh because the road is too narrow and run-down to support fire-fighting equipment.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson told aldermen that seven or eight lots could eventually be developed on the 43.5-acre property.

In other business, council:

—Approved a single-family home subdivision at 3905 Carey.

—Approved the building of a second home on a 12.5 acre lot at 354 Sparton.

—Approved a centre for followers of the Baha'i religion at 3459 Seymour.

—Approved the building of a duplex at 1793 Feltham.

—Rejected an application for a duplex at the corner of Whiteside and Anton. Noel noted the plans could have easily been adapted for a fourplex.

—Approved the building of a two-three-storey office building at 1001 and 1036 Cloverdale, warning this will be the last commercial development allowed on the street.

Habitat 'No Woodstock'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Up to 15,000 "unofficial" Canadians and Americans expected to flock to Vancouver in June during a United Nations conference on human settlements on the future could wind up with some acute human settlements problems of their own.

They may have nowhere to stay.

And not only that, organizers fear they may arrive with the wrong idea, expecting a festival or "happening" instead of weighty discussions on one of mankind's most pressing problems.

New alderman Mike Harcourt, chairman of the city's housing and environment committee, plans to call for a media campaign in Canada and the United States warning people not to come to Vancouver unless they know the realities of the sitution.

"It's definitely not going to be another Woodstock," Harcourt said Tuesday.

"But some people in the U.S. may think so. I'm told a woman on a San Francisco rock radio station has been saying, 'there is this thing happening up there in Vancouver. It sounds exciting . . .' "

Harcourt continued: "That sort of thing could develop into a fullscale hype unless Vancouver gets its message across.

"There will be no rock groups or anything else of that nature.

"We should discourage people from coming here unless they are prepared for seminars and slide-shows and can afford proper tourist accommodation — and already that may be impossible to get."

The conference falls into two sections — Habitat, a 12-day United Nations meeting opening on May 31 and attended by up to 5,000 official delegates and observers from more than 130 countries; and Habitat Forum, parallel talks organized by non-government organizations.

Hotel or motel accommodations has been arranged for all official groups, it's the flood of "unofficial" visitors for Habitat forum who could be in trouble.

City council voted Tuesday to ask the federal government to pay any extra housing costs arising from Habitat.

The estimated cost of temporary housing for the conference is between $150,000 and $200,000.

LOCKOUT FOR FERRY WORKERS

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The city served 72-hour lockout notice Monday on six members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Bill Smith, city administrator, said that as long as work continued by the union members, crewmen on the Digby Island ferry, the lockout notice would not be executed.

The guild served strike notice on the city last Friday.

The union is asking for a 21-per-cent wage increase, plus improved fringe benefits. Current monthly wages are $1,255 for a master, $1,197 for an engineer and $1,074 for a mate.

The men get one day off for every day worked, and usually work for two weeks at a stretch.

Arnie Davis, guild secretary-treasurer, said in a Vancouver interview that although the men might only work eight or 10 hours a day, the shift is stretched over as much as 18 hours.

14 Years for Shooting

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A former mental patient described as a "human stick of dynamite" was jailed Tuesday for 14 years for spraying a youth hostel with gunfire in a bizarre midnight attack, seriously wounding four young men from other parts of Canada.

Mr. Justice K. E. Meredith said 22-year old Peter Ian Wood was indulging a fascination for firearms when he stalked through a dormitory firing at sleeping figures around him.

He said it was a miracle no one was killed.

Even the psychiatrist called on behalf of Wood had had trouble explaining "these utterly horrifying senseless acts," the judge said.

Wood was convicted by a jury of attempting to murder Arthur Skolnik, 21, of Quebec City and Christopher Dilly, 22, and Paul Visosky, 20, both of Toronto, as they slept in their bunks at the youth hostel March 2.

Wood, also a hostel resident, walked into the dormitory wearing an army uniform and carrying a Swiss military combat semi-automatic rifle equipped with a telescopic sight. He fired a dozen .308-calibre bullets from the weapon, wounding several hostel residents.

DISPUTE CLOSES CEMETERY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver cemeteries are closed after 22 members of the Construction and General Laborers Union were locked out this week following a breakdown in contract talks. The union wants an increase of $2 an hour on a base rate of $5.83. The companies originally offered 30 cents an hour in the first year of a two-year contract.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The newly-established Spatsizi Wilderness Provincial Park should be maintained as a true wilderness-wildlife preserve, Irving Fox of the Westwater Research Centre at the University of British Columbia said Tuesday night. He told a Sierra Club meeting the 1.75 million acres 200 miles north of Smithers have been hunted heavily in the last 30 years.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city's United Way board meeting was told Tuesday night that donations in the 1975 campaign were $4.6 million, $400,000 short of the $5 million goal.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arnold Norlander, 35, was sentenced in provincial court Tuesday to eight years in prison for the armed robbery of a downtown Bank of Nova Scotia branch last October. Armed with a sawed-off rifle, he was arrested by police near the branch shortly after the incident.

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian National Railways expects it will be late May before traffic resumes over a damaged Fraser River bridge at New Westminster.

C. F. Armstrong, CN's mountain region vice-president, said Tuesday a number of temporary steps have been taken to divert traffic around the broken bridge and move freight onto the Vancouver docks.

"The repair costs are estimated to range from $2.5 million to $3 million," Armstrong said in an interview.

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Nurses Maureen Gibbons, 22, and Peggy Broydell, 28, were found unharmed but soaking wet Tuesday after a rainy night in the Cypress Bowl area. The two became missing Monday on a cross-country skiing expedition.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Murders in the New Westminster district were more brutal with greater sexual overtones than those committed in 1974, Coroner Doug Jack said Monday in an interview.

Fifteen persons were murdered in the district in 1975 — the same number as killed in 1974. In 1973 there were only four killings.

Checking Votes 300-Hour Job?

VANCOUVER (CP) — It could take 300 hours to check the validity of 96 ballots cast in Coquitlam Riding where former premier Dave Barrett was defeated in the Dec. 11 provincial election, Bob Patterson, assistant to the chief electoral officer, said Tuesday.

The 96 votes were not counted because registration cards could not be found to confirm that voters who cast the ballots were registered voters.

Patterson said it's possible that the cards were misfiled by election registration officials.

He and chief electoral officer Ken Morton appeared before a three-member British Columbia Court of Appeal panel headed by Chief Justice John Farris to explain the provincial Elections Act.

Patterson said a check of all 96 voters, who swore by affidavit that they were registered voters, against the more than 40,000 voter registration cards in Coquitlam could take about 300 hours.

Barrett lost the official count to Social Credit candidate George Kerster by 19 votes. A judicial recount by County Court Judge Stewart McMorran of New Westminster widened the gap to 29 votes.

On Monday, Barrett gained three votes when lawyers for the former premier and Kerster agreed that nine absentee ballots rejected in earlier counting should have been included. Six ballots were for Barrett and three were for Kerster.

Mr. Justice Farris said that in a riding where 40,000 votes were cast, misfilings of only 96 registration cards would indicate that the election machinery is "working pretty well."

If there were errors in registration, he said, the appellant's recourse might rest more properly in a Supreme Court petition to upset the Coquitlam vote and force a by-election.

KELOWNA SIGNS PACT

KELOWNA (CP) — City Council Tuesday ratified an agreement that ends a five-month strike by 200 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

They were to report for work again today.

CUPE Local 338 voted in favor of the agreement Monday. It was presented by Ken Albertini, a provincial government appointed arbitrator.

The two-year package gives outside workers a 35-per-cent wage increase and inside workers a 28-per-cent increase.

English Pickets Permitted

QUEBEC (CP) — English-only picket signs — banned by draft regulations on the use of French in advertising — made public last summer — are permitted under the final version of the rules released Tuesday.

Similarly, firms can send English-language advertising catalogues to customers without a written request for such if it can be "reasonably presumed" that English is the recipient's tongue. The draft regulations obliged firms to obtain a written request in all cases where catalogues were distributed in a language other than French.

The final version of the regulations was released by Solicitor-General Fernand Lalonde Tuesday along with the final version of regulations governing the use of French in labelling.

Both sets of regulations — essentially exceptions to Quebec's Official Language Act which states that French must be used in almost all cases — are to be proclaimed officially in the Quebec Official Gazette this week.

Lalonde, minister responsible for application of the language act, also made public draft regulations requiring professionals to have a working knowledge of French to obtain a licence to practise.

The regulations for professionals cover 38 professions including lawyers, doctors, architects, engineers, chemists, labor relations consultants, pharmacists, nurses, chiropractors and agronomists.

No End in Sight

WINNIPEG (CP) — A strike by city bus drivers and mechanics entered its third day today, with no indication of when negotiations between the city and the Amalgamated Transit Union might resume.

The parties met behind closed doors Tuesday, but neither union local president Harry Cohen nor city officials would comment later on the talks. There was no word on any further meetings.

The Phantom Tax Vanishes

QUEBEC (CP) — Owners of vending machines in Quebec can breathe freely — the "phantom" tax of $1,000 that has haunted them for more than 25 years has vanished.

The tax of $1,000 a year for each vending machine was established through an order in council April 19, 1950. But it was never imposed.

After a quarter of a century of gathering nothing but dust in the statute books, the order in council has been revoked — retroactive to 1950 — by a new order in council.

"It didn't make sense," Andre Saint-Charles, associate deputy minister of revenue said in an interview.

"Can you imagine what $1,000 represented in 1950? That's one heck of a tax, even for today, so you can picture that it was prohibitive in 1950."

Members of the Union Nationale government who established the tax probably did so fearing the machines would create unemployment, he suggested.

Realizing how unreasonably high it was, they probably decided never to apply it.

"It was forgotten, then someone noticed it and we decided it doesn't make sense, we have to get rid of it," Saint-Charles said.

Cliffside School Up for Sale

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — The Cliffside Preparatory School, set on 25 acres of prime waterfront property, is up for sale for $1 million.

The school's increasing deficit over the past few years is responsible for the decision to sell, if a buyer can be found, says chairman of the board of governors Robert Van Doren.

The governors have been in touch with several other independent schools on the island and the Lower Mainland, Van Doren said, about a possible amalgamation.

"We have several options open to us if we sell the property," he said.

"We are on record as not being in favor of closing the school. The closing would be an easy solution."

The independent school offers Grades 3 to 9, the only preparatory school in Western Canada to do so, and fees since 1973 have risen $700 to $3,950.

Van Doren said many people were not sympathetic to the plight of the school "because they look on an independent school as an institution for the rich, but this is no longer so."

He said a good percentage of the 75 students come from single parent homes and some of the boys are sponsored by the human resources department.

The new provincial government, he said, is on record as supporting independent schools and if some sort of financial assistance is given, the school may not have to be sold at all.

The school was established in 1959 by Charles Curtis as a non-profit society.

Pioneer Logger Dies in Courtenay

Funeral services were held at Courtenay last week for a man who started logging at the age of 12 when logs were hauled by steers and horses.

He was Frank Walker, a member of a pioneer B.C. logging family, who died Jan. 20. He was 90.

Born in Victoria, his father was James Francis Walker, a pioneer logger who settled at Oyster Bay.

Walker was once superintendent of the Nimpkish River Timber Co., now Canadian Forest Products Ltd. He was working for MacMillan and Bloedel when he retirel at 67.

COWICHAN AIRPORT STUDIED

DUNCAN — A study has been commissioned on the impact of a proposed airport on the Cowichan Indian Reserve.

Sea-West Resources Consultants Ltd. will study the proposed site to determine its suitability.

The possibility of the new site has delayed a B.C. Supreme Court case, scheduled to start next month, which was to decide the legality of a lease signed between the airport society and the Cowichan Valley Region Board for a 30-acre airport site in Glenora.

DUNCAN MUD SLIDE

DUNCAN — Tons of loose mud broke from a cliff and smashed through a chain link fence, landing in the parking lot of a B.C. Telephone Co. service building early Tuesday.

In early December mud from the same cliff crashed down on an adjacent building on Allenby Road, demolishing the $250,000 structure.

Owner of the two buildings Art Harrison is trying to get help from the provincial highways department and the Cowichan Valley Regional Board, but with little success so far.

Harrison says he received permission to put up the B.C. Tel building from both those agencies and "they should be responsible for what is occurring now."

The only assistance offered so far is an investigation by the regional board of a drainage culvert above the slide area which Harrison says is being allowed to drain out near the top of the cliff, increasing the chances of a slide.

Pot-Puffing Pupil Ousted

VERNON (CP) — A student at Vernon Senior Secondary School has been suspended until the end of June for smoking marijuana.

Five other students caught "smoking" or with alcohol have also been disciplined as part of a new get-tough policy adopted by the school board in this north Okanagan city.

The suspension follows a recent closed board meeting in which it was decided that all principals invoke a Public School Act discipline ruling whenever they find a student using drugs or alcohol.

The ruling — regulation 36 — provides the authority for a school to dismiss a student pending a school board ruling.

The suspended student was with two others found smoking a "joint" at the senior secondary school.

His suspension was agreed upon by the school board because he had been on school probation for an earlier breach of regulations.

The two others were each suspended from school for a week and given a warning.

Two students who were seen "smoking" on their way to school had their parents informed and were put on probation.

Another student who went to school with traces of liquor on his breath was put on probation and had his parents informed.

In a memo to staff at Vernon Senior Secondary, the principal, Greg Dickson, says it should be "of interest and concern" to all teachers and students to note that the board is prepared to take a hard line.

He adds it has been argued by some students that their use of drugs and alcohol in the school situation should not be of concern to anyone but themselves.

"We are in no way prepared to tolerate this kind of attitude and obviously the board isn't either," he wrote.

The board chairman, Allan Mickelson, said the decision to get tough on student drug users had been taken because "we were concerned about the situation getting out of hand."

He said "we felt we had some responsibility and if we didn't do anything about it we were ignoring our responsibility."

MAJOR SAANICH HOUSING NEEDS

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich municipal planner Gil Laurenson has warned he will be asking for "massive programs of services — even frightening."

He says the services are imperative if sufficient housing and commercial enterprises are to be built to help balance Saanich's economy.

He and members of the council's lands, planning and housing committee agreed Tuesday that the major problem facing Saanich is the lack of sewers.

"We've been zoning by sewer capacity and that's not right," Ald. Sandy Noel said.

Chairman Ald. John McDonald noted, "It is fully intended that all the land within the urban containment boundary will be developed for urban use. Every year of delay makes it more expensive to do so and raises the serviced land prices because of inadequate supply."

At McDonald's suggestion the committee will meet realtors, developers and others to plan extensive development.

First, however, the committee will hold a 3½-hour in-camera session Feb. 24 so that Laurenson can spell out all the problems.

Mcdonald stressed that large tracts of serviced land must be made available, not in 50 and 100 acre areas but on a broad basis.

"What is needed is the servicing of large acreages of land to meet middle income housing needs and where mixes of townhousing, duplexes, patio and other more innovative housing styles can be introduced on a scale large enough to have an effect upon the housing market and housing prices," he told the committee.

He said aldermen will have to be prepared to stand up to opposition from residents.

"Council must have the courage to provide enough serviced land and, indeed, rezoning," he said. "The attitude we witness at public hearings of 'the have and the have-nots' and the 'We're all right Jack, you worry about your housing' must be seen in the proper perspective by council."

Laurenson said he will oppose land banking because of the delay in developing the Roy Road housing complex, for which Saanich amassed many lots.

"We were bogged down by other governments," Laurenson said, "Those lots could have been sold for $2,500 at the time. That's five years ago and now they would cost $10,000. I would never be in favor of land banking."

Stressing that delay in providing sewers and other services will only mean much higher outlays in future years, Laurenson said there are means by which money can be found.

"At the moment we stand in danger of seeing a major change in the structure of social life in Saanich. As alderman Noel said, we have massive servicing problems," Laurenson added.

"If a sufficient amount of land is serviced and on the market there is just so much a land owner can grab," Laurenson replied when aldermen noted that lots, after being serviced to provide homes in the Gordon Head area, had zoomed in price to beyond the reach of the average wage-earner.

McDonald was confident funds could be received from the senior governments to help develop land.

Hartwig Report Ordered

For the second time in less than a year Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier has complained that developer Hans Hartwig is refurbishing a heritage Wharf Street building at variance with officially-approved plans.

City council called for a full report on the matter, to be discussed in two weeks, after Glazier filed his complaint at the caucus meeting Tuesday.

The alderman said he's concerned about structural alterations to the Norwestra building at 1218 Wharf, an 1856-vintage building which is the "oldest standing stone structure in Western Canada."

He said the developer received his building permit from the city last summer after his plans were approved by council's Heritage Advisory Committee and Advisory Design Panel. But some of the structural changes actually carried don't conform to those plans.

Glazier noted that as the building has been designated a heritage structure it cannot be altered externally in any way without the specific approval of council.

"This is a prime heritage building," he said, "and the manner in which we handle it is crucial. Whatever we do here becomes a precedent for other buildings."

In February last year Glazier raised a similar complaint about the adjacent Finlayson Building, 1202-1214 Wharf, also redeveloped by Hartwig. A stop-work order was issued by the city until the problem was sorted out.

New Town Proposed By Dunhill

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Plans for a giant new community in Colwood unveiled by Dunhill Development Corporation today call for housing not 15,000 but 22,000, in highrises, condominiums and townhouses, on 850 acres two miles northwest of Albert Head.

Prior to the presentation to the Capital Regional Board, chairman Jim Campbell said he thinks such a project would take at least 15 years to complete.

The Colwood Development Project, as Dunhill calls it, would be located on both sides of Latoria Road, from Wishart Road to approximately Klahanie Road.

While Dunhill, a Crown corporation, has bought about 270 acres, it envisages this as part of an 850-acre development, with 220 acres set aside for parks and greenbelt and another 50 acres for schools.

There is no provision for single family housing. Dunhill proposes 1,000 units of low density housing, presumably townhouses, 5,000 units of medium density housing, probably condominiums, and 1,200 units of high desnity housing, which would include high rises of 10 or 20 storeys.

Howard Drummond, regional director for Colwood, said that while he thinks the concept is good, he is concerned about a transportation system, sewage disposal and the proposed high density.

Dunhill's brief says its purpose "is to convey Dunhill's intention to establish a significant residential land development initiative within the western communtiy."

It adds that it intends meeting criteria of the official regional plan.

The geography of Greater Victoria together with various government policies has produced a growing shortage of serviced land for housing of a kind most families can afford, the brief says.

When potential for servicing such land is considered, the most obvious location for such a development lies in the Colwood area of the western community.

Among other features of the project not detailed in the brief, said Drummond, are plans to dispose of sewage through an 8,500-foot outfall at Albert Head.

DRUMMOND
. . . hard to "sell"

"Selling that will be a hard part," he said. "We've asked Dunhill to estimate the cost of a tertiary treatment plant."

Both Campbell and Drummond said they are worried about a transportation system capable of handling that sort of population.

"The road system has to be improved drasticaly to accommodate the sort of population they'e proposing," said Drummond.

Campbell said a feature of the plan he considers important is what is called "point density"—centering population at various points suitable for building and leaving a lot of open space in between these clusters.

The plan will result in minimum disturbance to vegetation, he said.

The project, which does not encroach into Metchosin although close to the boundary, follows over a year of planning and land-buying by the provincial government's housing development agency, undertaken for the department of housing.

Drummond said the plan is to provide housing at a cost, which he estimated about $45,000 which will allow for federal financing assistance.

The new community would have a recreation centre, including swimming pool and rink, built by Dunhill and paid for out of the servicing charge on land sold for building, he said.

Wiring would be underground and the community would have storm drains, sidewalks and street lighting.

"The type of housing would be different for us," Drummond said, "but it's got to come."

No Soft Petalling In Daffy Project

Lucky Pierre and his flower child wife will get a nosegay of Victoria posies next week, suitably inscribed in Canada's two official languages.

They will be among dozens of second-class citizens (that's anybody living east of Oak Bay) slated to receive a bouquet of early bloomers from the best bloomin' city, as Chamber of Commerce has dubbed us.

Feb. 1-7 is flower-count week in the B.C. capital. Citizens are invited to take part by counting all new blooms in their own gardens and reporting to special telephone numbers for relay by The Canadian Press and CBC to the rest of Canada, most of it frozen.

The prime minister and Margaret will get a special bunch; others will be delivered to other chambers, morning show radio men, newspaper editors and weather offices across the country.

The object is to interest those with the mid-winter mopes in coming to the sunny seaboard to do a little flower-counting of their own.

Meanwhile, project chairman Carmella Costigan has had some botanical experts draw up a few rules for the official count, which she declares is "supposed to be fun."

Residents may count each bloom of single-blooming stems, except where there are tight clusters. But where there are individual clusters, as on the branch of an ornamental fruit tree, each open blossom may be counted if the counter has that kind of time, sharp eye and a good ladder.

Carmella herself is counting on amateur gardeners in every part of the capital to help tally the first flowers of spring, including such newly-formed groups as the Green Thumbs of James Bay highrise apartment balconies.

Municipal parks departments will be among the first to check in.

Residents are urged not to count their neighbors' flowers, nor the blooms on public property, which will be surveyed by parks people.

Among current and upcoming blossoms are cyclamen, pansy, iris, snowdrop, crocus, heather, primrose, polyanthus, daffodil, Japanese plum and cherry, witch hazel, hazel nut, forsythia, camellia, rhododendron, azalea, strawberry tree, jasmine, tulip, St. John's wort, aubretia and alyssum.

A tabulation centre is to be in operation behind the Douglas-View window at Eaton's where flower hostesses will tally calls via 382-3111, 3112 and 3113. Results will be posted on a "flower-ometer" as proof to the world that when it comes to narcissim, Victoria doesn't exactly soft-petal its canoe.

FIVE HURT

Five Greater Victoria residents were taken to hospital early today following a single-car accident at Esquimalt and Dominion roads.

Listed in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital are Brenda Lee Hockin, 21; while the other four — William Deroon, 23; Dennis Houghton, 26, of 1698 Lansdowne, the driver; Rhoda Lobb, and Pat Farrow, both 19 — are in good condition with unspecified injuries at VGH.

Police said the car was demolished at 2:53 a.m. when it struck a pole.

American Jailed For Illegal Entry

A 31-year-old U.S. citizen was sentenced in provincial court today to one month in jail for illegally being in Canada.

Prosecutor Scott Marshall told court that Ronald Curtiss Cook had entered Canada four times without permission and had been deported three times.

"People decide through their elected representative who is to be here and who is not," said Judge William Ostler.

Cook told court he re-entered the country after his last deportation order March 24, 1975, to visit his wife and child.

"I wasn't allowed to take my possessions with me," when deported, he said adding he had written to Immigration Minister Robert Andras asking for visiting privileges but he received no answer.

Murder Hearing Set for May 17

The week of May 17 was set aside in provincial court today for a preliminary hearing of a murder charge against David John Ross, 32, arrested in Winnipeg last week.

Prosecutor Scott Marshall estimated 30 witnesses will be heard in connection with the shooting in November of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 27, whose body was found in bush near E and N Railway tracks at Langford Dec. 22, 1975.

Police described the killing as a drug-related "gangland style" murder, in which several shots were fired from a carbine-type weapon.

New Deputy Police Chief

A 49-year-old Victoria police inspector who joined the force in 1947 has been appointed deputy chief of the department.

Announcement of the appointment was made today by Victoria Mayor Mike Young in his capacity as police board chairman.

The new deputy is Leslie Mottershead who was made sub-inspector last Nobember in promotions following the resignation of former deputy chief Ray Maitland.

Mottershead became a Victoria policeman in 1947 and left in 1952 for a tour of duty with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

He returned to the police force in 1957 and worked his way up through the ranks to sergeant before his promotion last fall.

Mottershead has been well known for his leadership of the Police Mutual Benevolent Association committee which brings a circus to the area annually and raises large sums for charitable groups. He has also helped lead an association fund providing emergency help to people in need, such as families left homeless after a fire.

After Maitland's retirement the Victoria police union asked the police board to reconsider its planned open competition to fill the post of deputy chief and instead choose a member of the force.

The union was assured that preference would be given to applicants from within city police ranks.

The competition was opened by the five-man board to all senior police officers in the province — including women.

Mottershead's hobbies — when he has time — include fishing, boating and golf.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Could you give me the address of the Hallmark Society? C.C.

A. The president is Donald Reksten, 2636 Lincoln, Victoria.

Q. Can you please tell us what became of the Irish Rovers (TV show). We like them a lot and we don't see them any more.

A. The Irish Rovers regular series is being preempted by The National Dream. They will be back in their regular time slot Feb. 29 until the end of the season but are not planning to return to series format after that, preferring to do the occasional special next season. At the moment they are on tour in Australia.

The Probation Service Goes 'Community'

Tucked away in a little office in James Bay, a young English woman is going against the grain and taking the probation service into the community.

For the first time in either of the province's two main urban centres, one probation officer will operate directly from a suburb and handle a combined caseload of adults and juveniles.

When you track her down to her office in the James Bay Community Project complex in the new shopping mall on Simcoe Street, Dorothy Hayward admits she is "moving against the general philosophy in the province."

"The recent Berger Commission on family law came out strongly in favor of a separate body handling children's cases," she explains.

And yet Dorothy felt strongly enough about community involvement to apply — and her peers felt strongly enough about it to accept her application — to move into James Bay and give the combined caseload idea a try. At least, for a while.

"I'm here on a six-month trial basis," she says. "We had no idea just what the caseload here would be—and we still have no idea."

Dorothy, who was born in Staffordshire and came to Canada about six years ago, was working in Vancouver when she was posted to Victoria by the probation service in August, 1972.

Prior to her switch to James Bay, she worked from an office in the family court building on Cameron Street and handled only juvenile cases for James Bay and Fairfield. Adult cases are not regionalized at all and are handled from the adult probation office on Johnson Street.

"On Cameron Street, we were working right next to the court," says Dorothy. "And I am finding it far easier to work away from that situation, that atmosphere, and I'm hoping the kids I'm working with will find this office more relaxing, too."

Most of her young clients are referred to her through case summary reports from the police. Then she is bound by law to do what is called a probation officer's inquiry which involves seeing the child and the rest of the family. Mostly, these children are never taken to court.

Then there are cases where a parent or a friend will go in to see Dorothy about a juvenile, much the same as they would go to see a social worker.

"They'll come in and say 'my kid has run away' or 'I think my kid's using drugs' and I would like to get more of these cases," she adds. "But a great many parents don't see something until it's too late or don't know where to go about it anyway. Or the parents don't want to betray their kid by going to someone else and yet aren't able to cope with the situation themselves."

This type of involvement, Dorothy admits, is not strictly her job "but it prevents me from having to deal with the child later on," she explains.

max low

Often a social worker having problems with a child will take the child in to see Dorothy.

"As a sort of law figure, to the kids I have more control . . . and a lot of kids see me as having more clout."

With adults it's different. They are strictly court referrals, either put on probation by a judge, referred for a presentence report, or on parol from jail.

But, to Dorothy anyway, the adults and children are all part of the family structure and she feels it is unnatural for them to be treated as separate entities.

"According to the law, when you're 17 you're an adult and sometimes I would be handling two kids and another probation officer would be handling a third child (over 17) in the same family," Dorothy points out.

"Often, too, a mother or father may be picked up for impaired driving and may be put on probation to one person while their son or daughter of 13 or 14 may be on probation to me," she adds. "It got pretty ridiculous sometimes."

"People don't change in one day when they turn 17," says Dorothy. "I had seen many children I'd handled reach 17 and overnight the ball game changed for them, and I felt this was very artificial."

Okay, you've sold me. The idea seems logical enough. But why James Bay?

"James Bay," says Dorothy, "is different from many other parts of Victoria. The park and the water cut it off and people are more likely to walk and get to know their neighbors. It seems a logical place to try this."

Bob Dill, the James Bay Community Project co-ordinator, is thrilled. He's got Dorothy to include with his health clinic (complete with doctor and nurse), social workers, volunteer bureau, community educaton and day care programs.

"I think in the past there have been as many as six or seven adult and juvenile probation officers coming in to James Bay at the same time," Dill points out. "I feel one person based here will be able to work in far better with the community.

"And, aftrer all, that's just what this project is all about . . ."

Cougars Down Cents; Assault Case Probed

Archie Henderson didn't play for Victoria Cougars as the Western Canada Hockey League club tripped Calgary Centennials 6-4 before 3,793 fans Tuesday night a tMemorial Arena.

Henderson, who may also face criminal charges, was suspended for three games by league president Ed Chynoweth as a result of allegedly punching Larry Lestander of Kamloops Chiefs during a game Sunday in the Interior city.

He was on his way to the penalty box following an altercation with another player when the incident took place.

"There was no reason for this unnecessary involvement," said Chynoweth, who also handed out three-game suspensions to Barry Beck and Harold Phillipoff for an unnecessary amount of fighting after an initial fight had started the same night in New Westminster.

Meanwhile, crown prosecutor Bob Hunter of Kamloops said criminal charges may result over the Henderson-Lestander affair.

He said statements are being taken from witnesses to the fray in which Lestander suffered concussion and required stitches over his right eyebrow.

Meanwhile, Bruin coach Ernie McLean has treatened not to play a scheduled game in Kamloops if officials there are going to prosecute players for acts of violence.

In the game against Centennials, husky right-winger Jeff McDill wasn't bothered by the face mask he was forced to wear after suffering a broken nose in the Kamloops game.

McDill, who set a personal season target of 50 goals at the start of the season, hammered in his 34th and 35th efforts to lead the Cougars.

Both of McDill's goals came on fine setups by Victoria captain Jim Gustafson, who pushed his league-leading assist total to 72. Gustafson also added a goal to boost his point total to 104, two more than he recorded last season.

Mike Will, Curt Fraser and Rick Durston were the other Cougar marksmen while Garry Rissling. Chris Dyer, Dave Colborne and Paul Enquist replied for Centennials, who lost all four games in a swing through B.C.

Bert Olmstead, who has watched his charges outscored 35-14 during the four games he has coached the club, saw Calgary's chances of winning go down the drain when Cougars struck for three goals within a span of two minutes and one second midway through the last period.

In other Tuesday games, Saskatoon Blades rallied to edge visiting Regina Pats 7-5, Brandon Wheat Kings bounced Winnipeg Clubs 6-0 in Brandon and Lethbridge Broncos nipped visiting Edmont Oil Kings, 3-1.

MAJOR B.C. AWARDS TO CITY ATHLETES

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Sports Editor

VANCOUVER — It was a great night for Victoria here Tuesday as the British Columbia Sports Federation staged its annual awards banquet to honor the provinces finest amateur athletes.

Two Victorians — Joyce Yakubowich and Roger Ruth — recieved major awards and other Vancouver Island stars were runners-up in voting to name trophy winners in the four individual categories.

Mrs. Yakubowich, the slender University of Victoria student who captured two gold medals in the 1975 Pan American Games at Mexico City, received the greatest honor at the federation's Olympic-year banquet.

After receiving a trophy as the B.C. senior athlete of the year, Mrs. Yakubowich was presented with the overall athlete of the year award, an honor for which all winners of individual trophies were eligible.

Ruth, the 48-year-old UVic professor who won the pole vault title and placed second and third in jumping events at the World master (over-40) championships last summer in Toronto, was selected as the best senior athlete.

Final voting for the senior award was an all-Victoria affair with Ruth getting the nod over Flora Martin, who has skipped her rink to two successive Canadian senior women's curling championships.

JOYCE YAKUBOWICH

Also runner-up was Victoria gymnast Philip Delesalle, who lost out in balloting for the top junior athlete to Vancouver swimmer Shannon Smith.

Vancouver high jumper Rick Cuttell was selected as the best University athlete, winning out over Victoria's George Richey, the national collegiate heavyweight wrestling champion, and rugby star Ro Hindson.

Scott Neilson, the hammer thrower from Burnaby, was honored as the high school athlete of the year and the UBC Thunderbirds rugby squad was named the top team of 1975.

Mrs. Yakubowich, who won the 400-metre event at Mexico City, ran a blazing anchor leg to give Canada a gold medal in the 1,600-metre women's relay, and earned a bronze medal with the spring relay squad, was a smiling trophy-winner who urged Canadians to support young athletes.

"I hope Canadians will support amateur athletes when they are on their way to becoming good, not only when they are established," said Joyce. "When they are on their way up is the time they need encouragement most."

Ruth, rated ninth in Canada last year in the pole vault, is still hoping for more honors.

"I still don't want to give up on open competition," he said. "I think if I can qualify for the nationals when I am 50, then I may settle back to masters events."

Let's See Now . . . It Was Back in '54

Some mid-week musings and the question was from an old football fan. The key word is "old". And he wanted to know what kind of a coaching staff Annis Stukus had when he was in charge of the B.C. Lions in that memorable opening season of 1954 and, did the club wind up in the black, in the red, or where?

Well, some dusty-file searching produced part of the answer.

Stuke was No. I, all right, and his main assistant was a George Brown, who also took a turn at offensive tackle. Then there were a couple of amateur type coaches from the Junior Big Four, Lorne Cullen and Bob Smith. The latter was a punting specialist. Now, that's something, isn't it, and I wonder what his "hang-time" was, or what he preached?

Then there was also Arnie Weinmeister, who was down from the New York Giants and if, extra help was really needed, By Bailey and Laurie Niemi were two of the types Stuke could call on for the extra duty. But no raise in pay.

Oh, yes, the club showed a profit, a modest $73,000 according to reports, and because of that beginning Stukus was able to hire a couple of bona-fide assistants for the next season.

The club record? Not much really. One victory and 15 losses. Then there's that other recollection that once Stuke said that if that 1954 team had had any offence at all, it would have been a great season. And the quote went something like this: "If we had been able to score 18 points a game, we would have won seven." So that's how bad the Lions were.

So that was 1954, and it otherwise was quite a summer. The Lions had to share their dressing room with British Empire Games athletes, or didn't you remember?

That was the year of the Roger Bannister-John Landy mile, the first time two runners had ever run the distance in under four minutes, Bannister won it then in the sparkling time of 3:58.8 in a thrilling stretch duel, Landy looked over his shoulder the wrong way at the crucial moment that Bannister went by on the other side. That picture is one of the classics in the B.C. Sports Hall of Fame.

That was the month too when professional baseball in Victoria folded. Victoria Tyees of the Western International Baseball League called it a day on Tuesday, August 3. All the money was gone. Only 300 fans had turned out for the last game against Salem Senators.

Flo Chadwick was here that very week as well. This was the Times-Bapco promo — to have the world famous Miss Chadwick attempt to swim the tricky straits of Juan de Fuca. It was a big time, I'll tell you.

She didn't make it, but she got the $10,000 for the effort. The next week fishermen were attempting to plot a course for her to follow the next time.

Meanwhile, back at the Games, Terry Tobacco, then of Cumberland, was running third in the 440 and Jim Peters, the marathoner came weaving into Empire Stadium on rubbery legs, collapsing into the arms of the English team masseur, Nick Mayes in front of thousands. He was never to run competitively again.

In baseball, Bill Prior and Bill Garner were leading Farmers to an Island baseball championship; John Murray was leading the Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers Association ladder derby with a 24 pounder; Slo-Mo had won the Gold Cup at Seattle; Bob Mawle was the main event winner at Western; retread tires were going for $12.50; Cinemascope was the in-thing at the movies; the Super-Constellation was TCA's overseas sensation of the airways and for $6.50 madame could get a front-lace corset. Yes, girls.

Matter of fact if madame preferred the back-lace type of foundation garment, she could get that for the very same price. It was just that kind of a bargain year! G'nite all.

Flyers Lose; Canadiens Tie Canucks

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Flyers are having a miserable time on the road.

Atlanta Flames added to their woes Tuesday night, taking an 8-4 victory in a National Hockey League game which featured a fight between Dave Schultz of the Flyers and Ken Houston.

Schultz should have stayed home. Houston, a 22-year-old defenceman who scored his first and second goals of the season in his ninth game, sent Schultz to hospital with a possible broken jaw. Tests proved negative.

There was also a brawl in the final period, between Atlanta's Ray Comeau and Bobby Clarke. Orest Kindrachuk came off the Philadelphia bench to assist his captain, then both benches cleared.

Kindrachuk attempted to climb over the glass into the crowd at The Omni but he didn't make it.

It was the fourth consecutive defeat on the road for the Flyers, defending Stanley Cup champions. The Flyers now are 10-8-6 on the road this season compared with an away record of 19-12-9 in 1974-75.

Elsewhere, Vancouver Canucks tied Montreal Canadiens 2-2, New York Islanders shaded Minnesota North Stars 4-3, Detroit Red Wings beat St. Louis Blues 3-2 and Los Angeles Kings blanked Washington Capitals 2-0.

"When the Flyers are down they're frustrated," said Bill Clement, a former Flyer, who scored three goals for the Flames. "You can be sure when they clear the bench it's not to hold people."

The fight began at the 13:50 mark of the final period as the teams lined up for a faceoff after Clement's third goal.

Kindrachuk said he left the bench to help his goalie, Bobby Taylor, because fans were hitting him.

"If the fans can't hold their beer, they shouldn't be allowed to drink it," said Kindrachuk. "The fans were holding and hitting Taylor pretty good, and (Atlanta goalie Dan) Bouchard was letting him have it."

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers, asked why his team cleared the bench, replied: "They had to leave because their guy Comeau was kicking Clarkie in the ear with his skates."

Coach Fred Creighton of the Flames was pointing a finger at Shero, though.

"He did that in the Central League," Creighton said. "He figures that if they can't win, maybe they can do something else."

Atlanta jumped into a 5-0 lead in the first 24 minutes of action and the Flyers never got closer than two goals.

Curt Benett had his 25th of the year for the Flames and Reggie Leach scored his 36th for Philadelphia in the final period.

The Canadiens continued their 5½-year domination of Vancouver as they ran their unbeaten string over the Canucks to 31 with a 2-2 tie.

Montreal took a 2-0 lead early in the third period and then held on for the tie to remain undefeated in regular-season play against the Canucks.

Bob Gainey and Larry Robinson scored for the Canadiens and Gerry O'Flaherty and rookie Rick Blight replied for the Canucks.

Record Snapped By Aussie Girls

BRISBANE (AFP) — Four Australian women have set a track world record for the women's 800-metre relay.

The girls, running on the newly-completed tartan track clocked, 32.6 seconds, clipping 1.2 seconds off the previous standard.

Mexico Ordered To Play

LONDON (Reuter) — An emergency committee meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation ILTF recommended Tuesday that Mexico be barred from the Davis Cup for three years if it refused to play South Africa.

The recommendation was given to he management committee of the Davis Cup. It follows an announcement in Mexico Monday that the Mexican government had ordered the country's Davis Cup team not to play South Africa.

A Davis Cup committee spokesman said the Mexican issue would be considered by the committee in April and any action would have to be ratified at the annual meeting of the Davis Cup nations in London in July.

Although the ILTF is the governing body of tennis, it does not have jurisdiction over the Davis Cup. The recommendation, by some powerful figures on the ILTF committee, will carry considerable weight, however.

South African won the 1974 Cup by default when India refused to play the final in protest against South African apartheid policies.

Mexico's withdrawal means that South Africa should now meet the winner of the South American Zone final between Chile and Argentina.

Bays Top Braves In Leaders Battle

Oak Bay Bays won the battle of the giants during Tuesday night action in the Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball League.

Bays tripped Belmont Braves 67-54 in the only scheduled meeting of the season between the two clubs rated by coaches most likely to succeed in the league.

Ken Kirzinger fired 19 points to spark the Bays' offence in the hard-fought encounter at Belmont.

It also marked the first time in league play this season that Bays have been held to less than 90 points but the Braves couldn't find the scoring thrust to back up their excellent defensive work.

Darrell Johnson, who fired 19 points, was the only Belmont player to reach double figures.

In other games, Dunsmuir Demons bounced Claremont 99-75, Parkland dropped Reynolds 67-42, Esquimalt defeated Victoria 56-42 and Spectrum recorded an 83-60 decision over Mt. Douglas.

Rick Jeffery scored 35 points and hauled down 15 rebounds for Demons while clubmate Royal Edmondson fired 26 points and grabbed 20 rebounds.

BATES GET SPLIT IN WELLINGTON

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — Victoria Bates today split the final two games of their exhibition softball schedule prior to the World Championships which open at Lower Hutt on Friday.

Bates lost the opening game of a doubleheader with a Wellington team 2-1 and then took the nightcap 3-1.

The games were played under poor weather conditions as the tag end of a storm which had swept in from the Tasman sea was still around and gusts of wind reached a volicty of 50 m.p.h.

Dave Ruthowsky started on the mound for Bates giving way to Pete Landers in the final inning. Landers was tagged with the loss as he gave up two hits in the final inning. Pete Songhurst drove in Harvey Stevenson with Bates' lone tally.

In the second game Stan Kern blanked Wellington until the seventh inning. Bates scored two runs when Lyle Cornett singled, Ken Bate tripled and Songhurst singled.

Bates will play the opening game of the world tournament Friday night at 8 p.m. Victoria time. The game will be broadcast on CFAX radio, 1070.

A Wasted Trip

By The Canadian Press

Allan Globensky, sometime-member of Quebec Nordiques, could almost have saved himself the trip.

Globensky and a record crowd of 13,815 turned up at the Quebec Coliseum on Tuesday night expecting the Nordiques and Cincinnati Stingers to stage a World Hockey Association donnybrook, but instead the fans got an unexpected offensive show.

Tom Serviss, who had two goals all season, scored three and set up another as the Nordiques downed the Stingers 9-1 for their 30th victory of the year.

In other games, Edmonton Oilers and Toronto Toros tied 4-4 and Phoenix Roadrunners beat San Diego Mariners 4-3 in overtime.

Globensky had been called up from Maine Nordiques of the North American Hockey League in anticipation of a rough game, but the heavy going was pretty well confined to the late minutes of the contest, when Pierre Guite of the Stingers and Quebec's Gordie Gallant drew spearing minors and Globensky and Cincinnati's Frank Beaton took five minutes each for fighting.

"It's a long drive from Maine," Globensky said of his club's Lewiston base. "Now I've got to drive back to play there Wednesday night."

Cheevers Splits With Crusaders

CLEVELAND (AP) — Call it a settlement or call it a release, all-star goalie Gerry Cheevers no longer is with Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association.

The 35-year-old native of St. Catharines, Ont., became a free agent Tuesday after a two-hour meeting between owner Jay Moore of the Crusaders, general manager Jack Vivian and coach Johnny Wilson and Cheevers' financial adviser, C. Frederick Bent III, along with Cleveland's legal counsel.

"We wanted to do it this way so it could be less of a disruption for both parties," Bent said. "Only foolish people destroy each other. There were a number of reasons for this (meeting) and we settled that between ourselves and it will be confidential."

He said Cheevers would take a couple of days before making a decision on his future.

Cheevers started his professional career with Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL.

It was believed that he went to Boston on Tuesday to meet Harry Sinden, the managing director of the Bruins who hold his NHL rights. But another source had him in Laurel, Md., meeting Tom Johnson, assistant managing director of the Bruins.

Cheevers apparently is willing to accept a substantial pay cut from the estimated $200,000 he received from the Crusaders.

Sinden said earlier Tuesday he has not met Cheevers or his agent since the controversy began.

Hill Gains B.C. Final

Moe Hill of Esquimalt skipped his RCMP rink to victory Tuesday in the final of the Vancouver Island police curling championship at Victoria Curling Club.

Hill, who was calling the shots for Bob Hawkes, Dave Wilson and Neil Dickson, won the "A" event with an unbeaten record and captured the only Island berth in the provincial championship scheduled for Feb. 6 and 7 on the same ice.

After spending the weekend in Nanaimo, trying their luck in the Island Consols playdowns, Hill's foursome won the "A" event Tuesday morning with a decision over Dick Latta and his Victoria RCMP crew, who were last year's zone champions.

Latta dropped down to become a "B" finalist and then got another chance at Hill by edging past Einar Hemstad of Victoria.

Hill picked up the final 6-5 win in the 21-rink 'spiel by tying with two on the ninth end and then stealing a point on home end. The steal came when Hill kept cover on a rock on the tee line in the eight-foot ring and Latta tried for a split raise with his last rock and couldn't quite make it.

The victory also puts Hill, Wilson and Dickson on the trail of a third Canadian title. They won the title in 1970 with Bill Erickson as vice-skip, and collected a second crown in 1974 with Dickson skipping. Hill at third, Wilson at second and Harold McNeill leading.

The provincial champion advances to the national final in Montreal in mid-March.

Because of the playoff format which funnels every rink but the "A" winner into the "B" event, only one prize was offered in the "A" event and five were up for grabs in the "B". Three prizes were offered in both the "C" and "D" events.

Prize winners:

"B" EVENT

1 — Dick Latta, Steve Holotuk, Barry McCombe, Ralph Svenson (Victoria RCMP).
2 — Einar Hemstad, Wayne Dew, Ed Manlik, Bob Wall (Victoria).
3 — Grant Eppy, Ray Scheller, Doug Simonson, Bob Johnstone (Nanaimo RCMP).
4 — Jock Colliar, Arnie Krenz, Len Doyle, Vic Louks (Duncan RCMP).
5 — Jack Johnson (Shawnigan Lake RCMP).

"C" EVENT

1 — Archie Browning, Jack Sumpton, Iain Hooey, Jack Morton (Esquimalt-Victoria RCMP).
2 — Dugald MacMillan, Mel McIntosh, Jim Bolefor, Ken Carruthers (Port Alice RCMP).
3 — Don Edy, Randy Beck, Al Knapp, Morris Monita (Nanaimo RCMP).

"D" EVENT

1 — Lorne Weme, Frad Torbohm, Dale Hockley, Jim Tysowski (Parksville RCMP).
2 — John Fox, Wayne Garton, Orest Partenuk, Glen Dales (Port Alberni RCMP).
3 — Bill Thomas, Don Nimchuk, Ed Currie, Wendel Milne (Colwood RCMP).

$3.5M Lawsuit

DETROIT (AP) — Henry Boucha of Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association has filed a $3.5 million civil suit in Wayne County Circuit Court in connection with an incident more than a year ago involving Dave Forbes of Boston Bruins.

The Bruins, the National Hockey League, Detroit Red Wings and Forbes were named as defendants in the suit, which was filed in Wayne County Circuit Court.

The suit asks for $2.5 million in compensatory damages and $1 million in punitive damages.

Boucha was injured in a fight with Forbes in a game at Bloomington, Minn., on Jan. 4, 1975. Forbes allegedly hit Boucha with the butt end of his stick, injuring Boucha's right eye.

Boucha was playing with the NHL's Minnesota North Stars at the time. Boucha played two seasons with the Red Wings before being traded to the North Stars in 1974. He jumped to the WHA's Fighting Saints at the end of last season.

Boucha's lawyer, Brian Smith, said there are "public policy ramifications" involved in the suit.

The suit questions the NHL's ability and responsibility to control violence on the ice.

"Henry has permanent eye damage and he's had three operations since then," Smith said.

Pearse Forestry Report Shouldn't Gather Dust

"This commission has the opportunity to chart new directions in forest management in British Columbia.

"It is our wish that your recommendations will provide a flexible mechanism to accommodate anticipated outdoor recreation requirements of the citizens of the province.

"It is our hope that you will provide the citizens of tomorrow with a heritage within which they still have the right and the opportunity to exercise their own options for forest-land use."

This closing remark in the combined parks branch and outdoor recreation branch submission to the Pearse royal commission of forest resources seems especially apropos now that we have a new provincial administration.

Tom Waterland, the new forest minister, has stated Dr. Peter Pearse will continue to compile his report, which was commissioned under the previous government.

And, it is my hope that Pearse's recommendations — based on input from virtually every government, corporate and public agency connected with the resource — won't just be filed away on some back shelf.

In the light of recent B.C. government moves in other sectors, despite widespread opposition from the public, this looms as a distinct possibility.

Like most of the other submissions, the parks-outdoor recreation missive came out in strong support of the folio system of land-use planning now being set up throughout British Columbia by the forest service.

It points out that the population of the province is expected to increase from 1,629,000 in 1961 to 4,777,000 in 2001 with the largest growth in the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island regions. Since most outdoor recreation occurs within one hour's travel time from home, pressure on outdoor facilities and wilderness areas can be expected to increase radically adjacent to urbanizing areas.

To complicate matters, participation in outdoor recreation seems to be outacing the population growth.

In order to meet this increasing demand for recreational activity, the submission calls for more flexibility within areas already committed to timber harvesting as well as more latitude in the total amount of allocated forest resources.

The parks branch is concerned in particular over the matter of overall designation.

While the last provincial parks have not yet been designated within B.C., in key portions of the province, "allocation of forest lands for industrial purposes has reached or may be approaching one hundred per cent."

"Historically, this situation has created instances in which the people of British Columbia, in order to create a new park, have had to exchange forest lands in areas they have already designated as parks.

"In other cases, the public has had to buy back, sometimes at great expense, rights which were originally theirs!"

For example, consider the logging which is now being carried out in the southeastern portion of Strathcona Park. The cutting rights to this timber were obtained in trade for the relatively few acres which now form Cape Scott Park.

Other recommendations in the submission include:

—Expansion of the Environment and Land Use Committee role in broad, long-range planning.

—Encouragement of individual resource agencies to develop long-term objectives.

—Immediate institution of a detailed recreational resource inventory to be completed within five years and including potential land use in relation to long-range objectives.

—Formation of regional resource planning involving all resource agencies.

—Addition of a provision to the Forest Act, setting aside a portion of the annual allowable cut as reserve.

—Defining the role of forest industries in meeting outdoor recreation needs.

—Establishing a system of guidelines to govern access, which should be recognized as "a significant factor in determining the kind and quality of outdoor creation supply and the impact upon fisheries and wildlife habitats within the province."

—Setting up a pilot program of landscape logging, co-ordinated by the forest service, for eventual application to all provincial recreation areas, important public access areas and all sensitive areas with high-quality scenic values.

All of these recommendations, as well as the numerous others I've detailed in this space over the past three months, will be taken into account when Pearse compiles his report.

I have no doubt about that fact.

But I do worry a little over whether his report will recieve the attention it deserves from the present administration. And I hope I'm wrong.

Some things in life cannot be balanced out in black and red on a ledger.

Tigers, 'Runners Roll On

Victoria Tigers and Reynolds Roadrunners extended their unbeaten streaks and remained atop their respective divisions by chalking up victories during Tuesday night action in the Greater Victoria High School Girls' Basketball League.

Tigers, now unbeaten in six games, tripped Esquimalt Dockettes 45-27 while Roadrunners ran their streak through a fifth game with a 41-27 triumph over Parkland.

In other games, Belmont Tomahawks downed Oak Bay 41-26, Claremont defeated Dunsmuir 43-31 and Mt. Douglas mauled Spectrum, 65-37.

Sandy Lewis led Tigers with 18 points while clubmate Shelley Godgrey fired 15.

LBC Juniors Get New Chance

London Boxing Club Juniors gained another chance at the combined Greater Victoria and Vancouver Island junior men's basketball championship by ousting Victoria and District Junior Men 66-43 Tuesday night at Central Junior High School.

The victory puts Juniors into the final against unbeaten UVic Jayvees, who dropped the Boxing Club squad into the losers' bracket of the three-team, double-loss elimination tournament 59-58 last Thursday.

Steve Rothwell fired 16 points to spark Juniors, who led 31-15 at half time, while Ted Anderson added 11 points and John McManaman chipped in 10.

Greg McGinnis was the only player to hit double figures for Junior Men with 10 points.

Juniors and Jayvees meet at 9 p.m. Thursday at UVic. If UVic wins, its all over. But if Juniors win, another game will be scheduled.

Gallaugher, Skillings Tied

The Bob Gallaugher and Steve Skillings rinks remained tied for first place in the Super Curling League Tuesday night at the Racquet Club with one week to play.

Gallaugher ran his record to 6-3 with a 9-7 victory over Ted Jurista while Skillings defeated Brad Clarke 8-5. Skillings' record is 5-2-2. In the other game the Moe Hill rink defeated Lyle Garraway 10-9.

Redmond to Stay With Red Wings

TORONTO (CP) — Veteran winger Mickey Redmond has no intention of retiring. nor has he any desire to be traded by the National Hockey League's Detroit Red Wings.

Redmond, who has been in the Toronto area since the weekend, said in a statement released here Tuesday that his only ambition at the moment is to get his health back and resume his career in Detroit.

The Peterborough native said he had received permission from the Detroit club to get checked over by Dr. Charles Bull of Toronto, his personal doctor since the Team Canada 1972 series.

His agent, Alan Eagleson of Toronto, said in a telephone interview from New York that, despite rumors to the contrary, he had not even seen his client in recent days.

He said Redmond flew in Friday night. He had left for a trip the same night and had been in New York since Monday. Redmond, in the meantime, had had an appointment with Dr. Bull Sunday and had been visiting his parents' home in Peterborough since.

Eagleson said Dr. Bull had arranged to have Redmond, who has complained in recent weeks of aching legs and back, admitted to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and that the Red Wings had agreed to getting him into the hospital "to sort out his problems."

Ottawa May Act in Puck Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — The federal govenrment may intervene in a dispute between junior hockey operators and professional leagues, says a federal goernment spokesman.

Jacques Genest, a spokesman for the department of sport and recreation, a branch of the ministry of health, said intervention is possible if legal channels are blocked.

"We're watching the situation very closely. We hope the matter can be solved through proper legal channels. If it can't we will review the situation."

Of primary concern to the government has been the delay by the World Hockey Associaiton and National Hockey League in paying more than $450,000 of a $1.2-million bill for development fees owed junior hockey operators for players drafted in 1975.

The deveilopment fees, considered the backbone of any junior hockey operation, were promised to junior clubs, and the federal government had an agreement with both leagues that they would be paid.

The Canadian Major Junior Hockey League, working with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, is distressed by the pro debt and will meet next month to propose a plan that will include a plea to the government to make a move. The CMJHL includes the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and the Western Canada Hockey League.

Joe Kane, a Toronto lawyer and general counsel for the CMJHL, says government intervention would be the only all-encomvassing solution to the problem as it stands.

Gordon Juckes, the CAHA's executive director, says he is prepared to test junior hockey's case in court but believes with government help this wouldn't be necessary.

Kane says that 56 teams in the NHL, WHA, American, Central, Southern, International and North American circuits employ about 1,400 players, of which almost 1,300 are from Canada.

"Those players are earning about $10 million and a lot of that money is coming back to Canada," Kane said. "We can't ignore the situation any longer. The government must see some merit in it."

Bud Poile, director of hockey operations for the WHA, said Monday the league has more pressing problems but agrees it should in some way support junior hockey.

The current arrangement has pro clubs paying the juniors $20,000 for players drafted no. 1 to 50, $10,000 for players rated 50 to 100 and $5,000 for anyone else drafted and signed.

Braves Certain of First

Saanich Braves clinched first place in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League on Tuesday night by tripping Victoria Rays Red Wings 7-2 in a game at Pearkes Arena.

The victory pushed Braves eight points ahead of second-place Esquimalt Legion, which has only four games remaining. Red Wings, with six games left, still have a chance at second place.

Rob Coldwell set the pace for Braves with two goals and singles were added by Jim Storym, Ron Jobson, Wayne Larsen, Murray McLaren and Ron Vause.

Norm Allen and Jack Voykin rtplied for Wings, who remained even at 2-2 after the first period but fell behind 5-2 after the second.

20 cents says you'll buy our sausages.

The distinctive flavour says you'll buy them again.

Maple Leaf Sausages. With a special flavour all their own. Choose your favourite kind - Pure Pork, All Beef, Beef and Pork, Skinless or Breaded - Maple Leaf makes them all.

When you bite into a plump, juicy Maple Leaf Sausage, you'll know you're onto something really good. And good for you. Because Maple Leaf Sausages are a good source of protein.

And of course, all Maple Leaf Sausages are made from government-inspected meats, in government-inspected plants. So the quality's there, right from the start.

This week, take advantage of the 20¢ coupon below and try some Maple Leaf Sausages. We think you'll like them enough to buy them again.

A great main course idea for Maple Leaf Sausages from the Million Kitchens of Maple Leaf:

Baked Apple & Sausage Casserole:

Here's what you'll need: 1 pound Maple Leaf Sausages, frozen / 1 19-ounce can apple pie filling / Ground nutmeg / Dash salt.

Place the frozen Maple Leaf Sausages in a large, shallow casserole. Bake uncovered in a moderately hot oven (400°F) for 15 minutes. Turn the sausages and drain off the fat.

Now spoon apple pie filling attractively around the sausages. Sprinkle with nutmeg and salt. Return to the oven and continue to bake for an additional 10 minutes.

And there you have a delicious main course that will serve 4 or 5 people. And all it takes is ½ hour to prepare.

Baked Apple and Sausage Casserole is one of the more than 80 tried and true ideas from the latest edition of the Million Kitchens of Maple Leaf recipe book. It's yours for the asking - absolutely free. Just send your name and address to Maple Leaf Recipe Offer, P.O. Box 67518, Postal Station O, Vancouver, B.C. V5W 3T9.

Games get underway at 4 p.m. Friday and resume at 9:30 a.m. Saturday with the final scheduled for 8 p.m.

Student Team Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union (CIAU) is working on a program to create a student national hockey team with hopes it might be chosen as Canada's representative to the 1980 Winter Olympics, CIAU executive-director Bob Pugh said Tuesday.

Hockey Canada has agreed to field an amateur team for the 1980 Games at Lake Placid, N.Y., but has not yet decided how such a team will be chosen.

"No doubt about it," Pugh said when asked if a student team would be strong enough to represent Canada. "The team would be nothing to be ashamed of."

A college all-star team will represent the United States at the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, in February.

The Americans are rated as strong contenders for the third-place bronze medal behind the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia. They might even defeat the Czechs and take the silver medal.

Pugh said a Canadian student national team can be "as good or better than the U.S. club. Right now we are trying to develop a program and identification for the team."

National teams were formed for the 1972 World Student Games at Lake Placid and last winter for a seven-game series in Czechoslovakia in which Canada won four, lost one and tied two, Pugh said.

The CIAU is aiming for a team next season and estimates it will have to raise as much as $60,000 to hold a 10-day training camp for the 40 top university players and stage a series of exhibition games across the country against touring foreign clubs and top junior and senior teams.

Pugh said the CIAU hopes to meet soon with Doug Fisher, chairman of the Hockey Canada board of directors, to discuss its proposal.

VOLVO: WE NOW HAVE 5 SCHOOLS OF THOUGHT ON THE SUBJECT.

For years, thinking people have found their way to our Volvo showroom for an intelligently designed car. But this year, it will require even more thought to leave in one. We'll confront you with a multiple choice: five Volvos.

There's a two-door and a four-door sedan and a five-door wagon in our basic 240 series. (Caution: what we call "basic" is by some cars' standards, opulent.)

You get a fuel-injected, overhead cam engine. Rack-and-pinion steering. Four-wheel power disc brakes. Steel-belted radials. Infinitely adjustable, orthopedically designed bucket seats. Front side window defrosters. Tinted glass all around. Rear window defroster/de-mister. All standard equipment.

Then there's our new 264 GL. A luxury four-door sedan. You not only get everything above. You get all below.

Automatic transmission or four-speed manual with overdrive. Power-assisted steering. Leather faced seats. Sunroof. Power front windows. Air conditioning. Heated driver's seat. And Volvo's largest engine: an overhead cam, fuel-injected V-6.

There's even a luxury station wagon. It offers most of the standards above plus a 67.6-cu.-ft. load compartment behind the front seat.

Come on in. We're now in a position to disappoint you four ways. And satisfy you in one.

'Not a Drinking Team'

TORONTO (CP) — Pentti Ranta, coach of Canada's ski-jumping team, denies charges that some jumpers were drunk, used foul language and generally misbehaved on a European tour.

"We are a jumping team, not a drinking team," the 35-year-old Finn said Monday. "So much that has been said is false and unbelievable."

Ranta was reached by phone at the Mount Norway facility in Thunder Bay, Ont., for comment on accusations made by Ron Richards of Oshawa, Ont., chairman of the jumping program.

He was working out with the four members of the national team who remained after Paul Martin of Toronto and Richard Graves of Ottawa were dropped. The four are Don and Richard Grady of Edmonton and Peter Wilson and Kim Fripp of Ottawa.

Keith Nesbitt, executive director of the Canadian Ski Association (CSA), has said that after the Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria, Feb. 4-15, the national ski-jumping program will be disbanded.

"Having taken the disciplinary action, we decided that we might as well disband the team," Nesbitt said. "It never was very big and with two of the top jumpers gone there wasn't much point."

Ranta, who is in the second year of a two-year contract as team coach, said: "I don't know where Mr. Richards got his information but it wasn't from me and I was with the team during the whole trip in Europe."

He denied that any competitors acted outrageously during the European tour.

"Our team never drank before any competitions. Perhaps they'd have a few beers after, but only what was a normal amount. They never showed up drunk for events.

"It was true that some jumpers didn't make a second jump but on that occasion three of them, Kim Fripp, Don Grady and Peter Wilson, were injured and one couldn't expect them to jump again. The run was very icy and if you get hurt one time you might get killed the second.

"As far as I'm concerned, the team tried their hardest while they were in Europe but they jumped lousy. However, that was because we had poor equipment and against the best skiers in the world, who have the best equipment, it was hard for the boys to compete."

Richards, informed of Ranta's remarks, said: "Well, I guess if he really said those things, I'll have to phone him and fire him. He couldn't have been with the ski team in Europe."

Richards then added that "there will be more investigation and consultation before anything is done."

Ranta insists there must be a national team "or we'll be behind even further than we are now."

"I'm sure the CSA will rethink its position."

BAYI LISTS TERMS FOR RACE

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (Reuter) — Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, holder of the world record for the 1,500 metres, will compete against mile record holder John Walker as long as the New Zealander runs as an individual, not as a represtative of his country, Tanzanian officials said Monday. Tanzanian authorities held up permission for Bayi's tour after the Supreme Council of Sport in Africa proposed a boycott of New Zealand because it is allowing South African participation in the world softball championships in Wellington.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in a rubber-bridge game, South arrived at an unbeatable slam contract. But the fact is that he went down a trick. He attributed his defeat to a very bad break in the trump suit. As will be observed, his defeat was strictly his own fault.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ◇.

After winning the opening lead with the queen of diamonds, declarer led a low trump and put up dummy's king after West had followed suit with a low trump. When East discarded a club on this lead, declarer resigned himself to defeat, for West now had two sure trump tricks.

Admittedly, declarer was most unlucky in finding the four adversely held trumps divided 4-0. Had they been divided either 2-2 or 3-1, declarer's initial lead of a low trump towards dummy's king would not have been costly. But, as previously stated, declarer misplayed the trump suit.

Had our declarer been more experienced, he would have approached the play of the trump suit with pessimism, rather than looking at it through rose-colored glasses. The only worry in the hand — and it was a created worry — was that one of the opponents might have all four of the outstanding trumps.

To guard against this possibility (at no cost), the correct play was to lead the trump queen at trick two, leaving the king in dummy and the jack in his own hand. In the actual setup, West would take the queen with the ace (if he didn't, the result would be the same). Let's say that West then led another diamond, South's king winning.

The nine of spades would be led next, and the "marked" finesse would be taken against West's ten. It would now become a routine matter to pick up West's two remaining trumps.

If it had been East who possessed the four missing trumps, he would take the queen of spades with the ace. Upon regaining the lead, declarer would play a trump to dummy's king, after which the board's remaining trump would be led, with the finesse taken against East's ten. Thus the safety play of the spade queen would take care of whichever opponent happened to possess the four missing trumps.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, Jan. 29

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Finish old business — free yourself of long-standing obligation. Assert personality, needs. Another Aries—and a Libran—could be in picture. Accent on rebounding from apparent adversity. One "in command" will apperciate your virtues.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): What was hidden could be revealed. New light is thrown on subjects which had been obscured. What you feared is diminished. You gain greater and more correct perspective. Loved one, temporarily disabled, will come back and you'll be aware of it —now!

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Trust hunch. Give full play to intuitive intellect. Learn and teach—share knowledge. Your ability to look beyond the obvious is emphasized. Accent is on how much you want to invest in a project—or a relationship.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Relax—be receptive to calls, messages and invitations. Gemini. Sagittarius persons could be very much in picture. Spotlight on public relations, responses, reactions. A legal matter cannot be immediately resolved, but you could win over the long haul.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Check details; be thorough—refuse to substitute fantasy for factual information. Light touch wins—if heavy-handed you create friction and opposition. One who admires you is also envious. You will be dealing with delicate situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Avoid permitting impulse to completely dominate logic. Understand feelings, but don't throw reason out of window. Young person, very impatient, should be dealt with as an adult. Message should become crystal-clear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): What appears a setback will rebound in your favor. Be ready for change of scenery and a "new view." Member of opposite sex plays important role. Accent on security, a more solid base and the closing of a transaction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Much that happens could occur behind the scenes. Know it and be ready to deal with unknown factor. Pisces, Virgo and Libra could play key roles. Accent on unique message or call, which causes you to review ideas, plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Money picture may resemble a jigsaw puzzle. Take one step at a time. Get priorities in order. A friend, who claims deep feelings, could be alvocating destructive action. Know it and heed your own counsel. Don't delegate duties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Perceive potential. Reject the superficial. Imprint your own style. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Cycle is high but there are major roadblocks. You are carrying a burden which is not necessarily your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You have information which enables you to uncover mystery. Be independent, creative, self-assertive. Accent is on aura of glamor. You are intrigued by one who makes you guess—key is to be discreet. Play your own cards close to chest.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Trust hunch. Heed inner voice. Volunteer for teaching project, assignment. Friendship could become more serious than initially intended. Creativity and romance could be featured. Someone is whispering sweet nothings.

IF JAN. 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a good teacher, loyal to family, capable of reacting well during periods of crises. Aquarius persons play important roles. This will be a banner year and September will be your most significant month. If single, marriage is in picture. Married or single, you have more responsibility and could go into business for yourself.

AN EASY WINNER

BOLZANO, Italy (AP) — Rolando Bragaglia has captured the Italian figure skating title and it could not have been otherwise — he was the only competitor.

No other skaters had been considered good enough to compete in the first category.

In the crowded women's event, the title went to Susan Driano, an American-born skater.

Both skaters will participate in the Winter Olympic Games at Innsbruck next month.

William Head Leaves League

Either they're having trouble getting out or recruiting efforts are failing.

William Head, a team entered by the Metchosin-based prison, has withdrawn from competition in the Vancouver Island Soccer League's fourth division.

All matches involving William Head in the remainder of the schedule have been cancelled.

THOUSANDS HONOR ROBESON ON RAINY NIGHT IN HARLEM

NEW YORK — Black and white, young and old, thousands made their way down a tenement-lined Harlem street in a steady downpour Tuesday night for the funeral of Paul Robeson. Some 2,500 persons attended the service for the 77-year-old Robeson. Among the pallbearers was Harry Belafonte.

TORONTO — More than 900 guests attended a dinner party Tuesday night for Walter Gordon, on the 70th birthday of the former federal finance minister and honorary chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada. Gordon arrived by subway, declining offers of a limousine and exercising his right as a senior citizen to travel half-fare on the public transit.

WASHINGTON — Betty Ford stole the show at the state dinner honoring Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin Tuesday night dancing a spirited "hora" in the grand hallway of the White House.

LONDON—The kind of love-making described in a book by porno movie star Linda Lovelace might lead to death, a British court was told Tuesday. Dr. Stewart Carne was commenting on oral sex practice as described by Miss Lovelace in her book Inside Linda Lovelace.

PLYMOUTH, England — A Protestant vicar and his housekeeper were ordered today to face trial on charges of stealing $24,000 worth of property from nearby Buckfast Roman Catholic Abbey, including more than 80 relics of saints, two bishop's copes and a miter. Rev. Stephen Care, 32, and Stella Bunting, 59, were also accused in a preliminary hearing before a magistrate of robbing a Plymouth bank of $3,550 and of taking antiques worth $2,632 from a local school.

VANCOUVER — Gary Bannerman Tuesday filed a libel action against Allan Fotheringham, a columnist for The Sun as a result of columns published Jan. 20 and Jan. 23.

...Chew On This One for A While

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Drugstore owner Bruce Storm acknowledges having edible underpants, says his wife has similar garments, but refuses to say whether they have ever worn them.

Storm and his wife received the edible undies for Christmas and then decided to sell them.

The new product conceived by David Sanderson and Lee Brady of Chicago and created by Chicago chemist Derek McManus — are the latest rage in this college town of 45,000.

The pants are a composition of food starch, glycerin, invert sugar, imnatol, lycethin and artificial coloring.

The underwear comes in only one size and can be worn by either men or women. Storm says the unisex underwear cannot be washed.

So far, Indiana University students are not the only ones interested in the briefs.

Charles Morton, assistant manager of one of Storm's stores, says: "Most of the buyers have been between 35 and 60. Some of the women have been going up to the cashiers on the floor and whispering what they're looking for."

APOSTLE OF PEACE

ZUMIKON, Switzerland — Max Daetwyler, 89, the Swiss peace apostle who preached against war in Moscow's Red Square and marched to Washington from New York City in a crusade for disarmament, has died of pneumonia.

He'll Carve New Life

MOSCOW — Ernst Zeizvestny, a Soviet sculptor who had a public row with Nikita Khrushchev but later was commissioned to carve his funeral monument, said Tuesday he had received permission to leave Russia.

Although the feisty former premier once said "a donkey could do better work with its tail" than Neizvestny, Khrushchev's son said Tuesday he would be proud to look after the sculptor's prolific private collection.

The 50-year-old Neizvestny said he was summoned to the visa office in Moscow and told to present completed forms after Feb. 7.

The third Soviet dissident to receive exit permission this month, he said he hoped to establish his home in Israel — he is part Jewish — and travel abroad from there.

Neizvestny said he applied in vain 50 times to visit the west as a tourst before deciding a year ago to leave for good.

"I was stifling as an artist," he said. "You've no idea of how much I want to see the new ideas and techniques in Europe, America, Latin America."

Neizvestny, however, expressed regret at leaving behind family and friends, among them engineer Sergei Khrushchev, the former premier's 40-year-old son.

The sculptor said he would apply to take with him 100 of his 300 works and leave the rest — including several monumental bronzes — to the care of the engineer.

Authorities this month also granted exit visas to scientist Leonid Plyushch and outspoken Jewish activist, Alexander Luntz.

Anne Clears Big Hurdle On London Road

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate foreign relations committee Tuesday approved the nomination of former White House counsel Anne Armstrong to be ambassador to the United Kingdom.

She will replace Elliot Richardson, who has been confirmed as U.S. commerce secretary.

Mrs. Armstrong, 48, a leading Texas republican who held several posts in the Nixon and Ford administrations, should be approved by the whole Senate shortly and plans to assume her new post sometime in the end of February or early March after completing a series of state department briefings.

Submitting a financial statement to the committee, Mrs. Armstrong promised that she would "resign from the boards of several corporations and sell any securities that could be viewed as a conflict of interest."

Mrs. Armstrong said during her confirmation hearings that if confirmed she would serve with "total dedication".

"I see this Bicentennial Year as a particular chance to strengthen the bonds between our two countries," Mrs. Armstrong said.

She also said she had talked with state department officials about Britain's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The committee also confirmed the nominatios of Joseph Greenwald to be assistat secretary of state for economic and business affairs; Deane Hinton to be the U.S. representative to the European Community with the rank of ambassador; and Robert Anderson to be ambassador to Morocco.

$660,000 Credit Bilk

NEWARK, N.J. — An engineer admitted Tuesday he outsmarted hundreds of lending agencies and obtained 1,000 credit cards by creating more than 300 phony identities and a group of non-existent businesses.

John Spillane, 31, pleaded guilty to submitting false loan and credit applications to get more than $660,000.

The plot was foiled only when an astute bank teller thought it was suspicious that Spillane asked where a bank branch was located.

Spillane, who developed a network of businesses and identities to get loans from over 200 banks, credit agencies and finance companies faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

Newsman Dies In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG — Gordon Sinclair, news editor and assistant managing editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, died in hospital Tuesday following a stroke Monday while at work.

He joined the newspaper as a copy boy in 1939 and returned after service with the RCAF in the Second World War. Between 1952 and 1954 he worked for the old Toronto Telegram and the Winnipeg Tribune before rejoining the Free Press.

TAKE A THREE STORY JUMP INTO MOVING TRAFFIC.

There are some common misconceptions surrounding seat belts. Mythical reasons for not buckling up. We would like to dispel one. The old, "It's better to be thrown clear in an accident" fable. So, let's do it in a way you can feel. Being "thrown clear", even at 30 m.p.h. is the equivalent to leaping out a third storey window to the street. Because that's the speed you'll be doing when you arrive. No doubt, that would cause serious injury. But, it could get worse. Because besides hitting pavement or post, there's a good chance another vehicle will hit you. And, that could kill. It's the whole idea behind seat belts. To make you part of the car. Not the pavement. And while fables lie, facts don't. Here are three. First, it is thirty times safer to remain inside the car during an accident. Secondly, about 25% of all passenger and driver deaths result from being "thrown clear." And last, but not least, 80% of these deaths could have been prevented if the person had stayed in the car. So now, the next time someone gives you the old "thrown clear" story, you can tell him exactly where to get off.

Getting "thrown clear" is something like this.

When you get thrown clear at 30 m.p.h.

That's the speed at which you hit the concrete...

Or a lighting pole...

Or maybe you're just lying there stunned in the middle of the road...

An astronaut experiences about 10 G's accelerating. You can experience about 45 G's stopping. Dead.

How seat belts work.

Brace yourself.

People who don't wear seat belts for city driving don't understand that they can't brace themselves against the forces of low speed accidents.

To give you some idea of the forces involved, imagine being able to hold up the world weight lifting record over 500 lbs. Not an average task. Now consider that the forces of a crash at just 30 m.p.h. involve forces up to 2,000 lbs. And it all happens in about 7/10ths of a second. Something you certainly can't brace yourself against.

Seat belts absorb the forces of a crash and make it possible for you to survive.

How can you keep control if you're not in the driver's seat?

Seat belts first prevent injury or death but they sometimes prevent a minor accident from becoming a disaster. And there is positive evidence that when seat belts keep a driver behind the wheel, everyone is safer.

Item: An unbelted driver took a corner too fast. He was thrown off balance and lost control of the car. A collision resulted.

Item: A car sideswiped a parked car. The driver (unbelted) lost control of the car, which swerved across the roadway where it collided with an on-coming car. No injury resulted from the collision with the parked car, but serious injury occurred to occupants of both cars in the head-on collision.

Item: While crossing a bridge, the right front wheel of a bus ran over a cement block which had fallen from a truck load of cement blocks. The severe bounce threw the driver out of his seat into the stairwell. Out of control, the bus ran off the bridge. There was only one survivor.

Item: In Calgary, a driver of a light car ran a red light and collided with the right side of a station wagon. The driver (unbelted) was thrown to the right side of the vehicle. In this passage he was fatally stabbed by the popped-open door of the glove compartment. Had he been belted it is altogether likely that no injury at all would have resulted. The station wagon, which might have become an unguided missile was spun around by the impact and stopped by a snow bank.

Item: A large truck lightly sideswiped a parked car. This trivial accident spilled the driver off his seat. The truck went over the centre line and scored on nine other vehicles in head-on, sideswipes, injuring twelve people.

So safety belts can prevent accidents and then prevent accidents from becoming big ones.

If a full size American car travelling at 15 m.p.h. hits a brick wall, or another car of the same weight travelling at the same speed, it will stop in about 15 inches. The deceleration rate for the car averages about 6 G's. But any driver or passenger not belted into the car will continue forward into the dash and windshield and experience a deceleration rate of 45 G's. This is far above the threshold of injury and could quite easily result in death. The impact is absorbed by the head, chest and abdomen, all of which involve vital organs.

Seat-belts make you part of the car and allow you to decelerate with it if you crash. And, of course, the forces are absorbed at much lower rates below the injury level.

What are your chances? You figure it out.

Fact: There's a 50/50 chance you will be in a car crash involving death or serious injury.

Fact: Of all the people now living in Ontario, 12.5% (962,886 people) will be killed or injured in a car crash over the next ten years.

Fact: Over the next 40 years, 33.5% (2,580,535 people) in Ontario will be killed or injured in a car crash.

If you wore seat belts all the time on every trip...

Fact: Your chances of death would be reduced by 50%.

Fact: Your chances of serious injury would be reduced by 70%.

Fact: Your chances of minor injury would be reduced by 40%.

If you're not wearing a seat belt what's holding you back?

Killed . . . by Lack of Love

OTTAWA (CP) — "Cause of death, although it was not on the death certificate: Lack of love."

With that icy statement, Dr. John Anderson ended one of several tales of child abuse, illustrates with colored slides of bruised and bleeding children, at a Commons health and welfare committee meeting Tuesday.

The prevention of child abuse and neglect can begin the moment a baby is born, said Dr. Anderson, if doctors and nurses watch for signs that the mother is rejecting it.

"The great need in this area is preventive services," added Professor Murray Fraser, dean of the faculty of law at the University of Victoria. "At this time we are only dealing with cases after a crisis, after the battering has been done."

Anderson and Fraser were directors of a research group which investigated child abuse in Nova Scotia for the provincial government in 1973.

They cited several cases including a woman and her boyfriend who had tied a baby by his arms and legs to a crib in a shed. The baby was hospitalized and adopted two months later.

"Mom and kooky boyfriend had another baby . . . and if they moved to New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island or Newfoundland, we've lost them," Anderson said.

They said the federal government could promote establishment of a system where lists of reported cases of child abuse are interconnected between the provinces.

Children under five have less protection than school aged children, Anderson said.

"An eight-year-old goes to school and can tell the teacher, the nurse or the neighbor kids about what's going on at home."

He listed the personality traits of the battering parent as immature, impulsive, self-centred, hypertense, intolerant of confusion, and in poor control off aggression.

OTTAWA PRESSURE ON PROVINCES

To Set Up Home-Buyer Protection Standards

OTTAWA (CP) — With the collapse of federal efforts to create a naitonal home warranty program. Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson soon will be pressing provincial governments for broad, province-wide protection for home buyers.

An aide to the minister said Tuesday that Danson soon will write provincial governments asking them about their plans for protecting home buyers against faulty construcion for fly-by-night builders.

In the Commons, Danson said he at least wants standards which will apply to housing financed by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

The federal housing agency is involved in about 40 per cent of all housing.

The minister said he was disappointed with the failure of federal and provincial governments, builders and consumer representatives to establish a national organization to administer a country-wide home warranty plan. After more than two years of talks, the idea was scrapped in December.

The minister's aide said there will be no question of having a separate CMHC warranty plan if the provincial programs are broad enough.

Some provinces, like Alberta and Quebec, already have their own programs and some, like Ontario, have promised legislation soon.

The Alberta plan is run by builders and is voluntary while Quebec has set up a builder registry and some consumer protection.

To Sign AIB Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday he will try to convince provincial finance ministers at a federal-provincial conference here next Monday to sign agreements to follow the federal anti-inflation program.

But, he told Opposition leader Robert Stanfield in the Commons, he would not set a deadline for provincial cooperatin with the three-month-old controls program.

Roadside Breath Checks Now OK

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1975 Criminal Code amendement bill, bad news for lawbreakers, passed smoothly Tuesday through a Commons anxiously awaiting its 1976 successor.

It opens drivers to mandatory acceptance of roadside police checks for signs of intoxication.

Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats expressed some qualms, saying that refusing the checks opens a driver to the same penalty applied if he failed the breath test.

But Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said he has little sympathy for those who say breath tests and mandatory seat-belt laws infringe upon personal liberty.

"Let's not confuse ancient, fundamental liberties with driving on highways, which is a privilege."

Stanfield, whose first wife was killed in a Nova Scotia auto accident, added: "I'm almost a fascist when it comes to carnage on the highways."

Justice Minister Ron Basford also justified the new laws on the basis of highway carnage.

No Solitary Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Tuesday the government has decided not to appeal a court decision which forced the closing of solitary confinement cells at the British Columbia Penitentiary.

He told the Commons Tuesday that there will be no appeal of the decision of Federal Court Judge Darrel Heald, who termed the segregation cells "cruel and unusual punishment."

A report on the question of solitary confinement will be made public next month and will form the basis of changes to the policy, the minister said.

BIRTHDAY BASH CANCELLED

OTTAWA (CP) — The capital's July 1 celebrations on Parliament Hill have been cancelled because of the cost.

Also cancelled are the Governor-General's children's party, a giant fireworks display and a multicultural festival of singing and dancing in a nearby park.

The saving is $200,000, one official said.

He said the cancellations were ordered as part of the government's spending restraints to combat inflation.

Not affected is the National Arts Centre's July program of operas, concerts and children's entertainments, for which admission tickets are sold to cover part of the cost.

Jakarta Gets $25M Loan

JAKARTA (Ruter) — Indonesia and Canada signed an agreement today for a $25-million interest-free loan as part of a $200-million financing package being offered by the Canadian government.

The agreement, signed by the president of the Canadian International Development Agency, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, and Derdy Salim, acting director-general of foreign economic relations in the ministry of foreign affairs, will finance development projects.

New Brunswick Trying To Pull Bricklin Back

FREDERICTON (CP) — Provincial officials still are negotiating with several companies in an effort to revive Bricklin Canada Ltd., Economic Growth Minister Lawrence Garvie said Tuesday.

He denied a statement by a lawyer for General Vehicle Inc., Bricklin Canada's bankrupt parent firm, that the negotiations apparently "had fallen apart."

Ronald Warnicke made the comment during a United States bankruptcy court hearing in Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 15.

Records of the hearing were released in New Brunswick by the opposition Liberal party.

Garvie said his statement of Dec. 9, 1975, in the legislature still stands.

At that time he said he was "fairly certain" Bricklin Canada's two plants in New Brunswick would reopen in some capacity this year.

The government has $20-million committed to the venture.

Bricklin Canada was closed and a receiver appointed in late September after it defaulted on the payment of $7 million in bonds.

Meanwhile, in Moncton, N.B., two car dealers said Tuesday they can't meet the demand for Bricklin cars.

They sold the 10 cars they purchased from a United States company which bought up all Bricklin Canada's remaining inventory.

Steeves Motors Ltd. sold six 1975 models in a week for about $15,000, $5,000 more than the cars list price in the U.S. just before the company closed.

City Chrysler Plymouth sold four of the cars, only 2,900 of which were ever produced.

One car remains at City and there have been a few responses to an advertisement in a Toronto newspaper asking $20,000 for the 1976 vehicle, one of only a small number made.

Citizen Changes Rapped

Prud'homme

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs argued Tuesday in the Commons over the merit of a proposed new Citizenship Act that would reduce the waiting period to three years from five for immigrants applying for Canadian citizenship.

Bob Briscoe (PC-Kootenay West) called the reduced period a token that would demean the worth of citizenship.

It would amount to "citizenship over the counter," the equivalent of saying " 'open up the borders and let them flood in'," he argued.

But Marcel Prud'Homme (L-Montreal St. Denis) said a three-year waiting period is realistic.

In a country like Canada, communications are effective and immigrants can learn quickly about national institutions and the way the system works, he said. There was no reason to wait longer than three years.

He was supported by Derek Blackburn (NDP-Brant) who said "this is long overdue."

Naran home recipe plan takes off ugly fat.

The Naran Plan can help you lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. This home recipe weight-control plan is easy to follow and costs little. Go to your drug store and ask for the Naran Reducing Plan. The whole plan is included in every package. The directions are right on the label. Pour the liquid into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed. Take the vitamin supplement included and follow the low calorie weekly food menu.
Your first purchase should show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; reducible pounds and inches of excess fat should disappear from neck, chin, arms, hips, abdomen, calves and ankles. If you are not completely satisfied with your first purchase just return the empty carton for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan to help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears, how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Close Watch Being Kept On Dollar

OTTAWA (FP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons Tuesday the government is watching closely the value of the Canadian dollar — it has reached parity with the U.S. one — because it may reach a level where it could "present problems."

He was answering questions from the opposition on the increased money supply in Canada.

Macdonald said the money supply in Canada had shown a substantial increase during the prolonged postal strike.

"The figure has turned down again, however, and our hope would be that we could very shortly get within the guidelines the government set which would be in the neighborhood of 10 per cent of 15 per cent," said the minister.

The money supply had soared to 19 per cent in recent weeks.

Trade Talks With U.S.

OTTAWA (FP) — Industry Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday he plans to visit Washington soon to confer with United States Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson who is in the process of assuming his new duties.

A wide range of subjects will be discussed between the two ministers including the automobile pact.

Jamieson made the statement of his plans to proceed to Washington, outside the house after answering questions inside the house on the auto pact.

Edward Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, said one of the legitimate objections of the U.S. government to the operation of the Canada-U.S. automotive agreement has been the complete failure of the Canadian government after all these years to obtain price parity for identical products on both sides of the border.

This has resulted in a situation in which Canadian consumers can pay up to $500 more than U.S. for the same car, he said.

He urged Jamieson to assure Canadians that price parity will be achieved in automobile products this year.

Jamieson said he could make no commitments as to achieving parity. He assured the house that the government is working towards parity. This will be one of the matters to be discussed not only with U.S. interests but also with representatives of the automomile industry in Canada during meetings now in progress.

COME INTO METRIC KITCHEN

Do you tremble at the mere thought of grams and millilitres? Do visions of wastepaper baskets overflowing with all of your favorite, now obsolete recipes pass before your eyes every time you look at your measuring cup and tablespoon?

Well, there's no need to let the changeover to metric get you down. The old favorite recipes can still be prepared using cups and tablespoons. However, metric package sizes are cropping up at the supermarket and you will soon see new recipes written in metric.

Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada invites you to "Come On Into The Metric Kitchen" with a new publication entitled just that. This handy guide includes drawings and examples to speed you on your way to metric coonversion.

You'll soon learn that the familiar cup and measuring spoons will be replaced by the litre family — millilitres and litres. Food at the supermarket will be weighed in grams and kilograms rather than ounces and pounds. And the centimetre will replace the inch as the common unit for measuring length in the kitchen.

All of these changes will take some time to happen. Why not keep one step ahead by thinking metric now. Send for your free copy of "Come On Into The Metric Kitchen" to Information Division, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, K1A 0c7.

Before long, you'll find yourself as at home with millilitres, grams and centimetres as you are now with degrees Celsius.

Chocolate pound cake—an old-fashioned favorite

Pound Cake Inflation Fighter

By MARY MOORE

A great crop of smart shoppers has blossomed during the past 2½ years of inflation.

Girls who merrily bought what they wanted without examining the price ticket are now taking longer to select and determine the nutritive content and difference in price between fancy packages and bulk buying.

One request that crops up more frequently is how to substitute cocoa for expensive baking chocolate.

That is why we tested Doris Witter's Chocolate Pound Cake. It is a 20-year-old recipe and because of its firm texture can be sliced thinly and made to stretch. Carefully wrapped, it is fine for packed lunches. Some day when you have a spare hour you could make and freezerwrap and freeze this cake for future use.

CHOCOLATE POUND CAKE

¾ c. butter or margarine
1⅞ c. granulated sugar
3 extra large eggs
¾ c. milk
¾ tsp. vanilla
2¼ c. unsifted all-purpose flour
½ c. cocoa
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt.

In beater bowl cream together butter or margarine and sugar. Add eggs and heat until light and creamy. Stir in milk and vanilla. Add flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt and beat until thoroughly combined.

Pour into greased standard loaf pan and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours. (You might wish to cover with a loose tent of foil for last 15 minutes to prevent overbrowning.) Remove from oven and let rest in pan on cake rack about 30 minutes. Turn over and out and let cool completely on rack.

Sprinkle with icing sugar (if desired). Wrap in plastic bags and freeze if desired.

NUTRITION BUYLINE

QUESTION:

What is meant by whole grained, restored, and enriched when referring to cereals?

ANSWER:

A whole grained cereal is one that contains the three principal parts of the cereal — the inner germ, the endosperm and the outer bran layer. Whole wheat and oats are examples of whole grained cereals. Restored cereals are cereal products to which the principal nutrients lost during the milling process have been added. The enrichment formula usually used in cereal products includes thiamine, riboflavin, niacin and iron. Cereal products to which nutrients are restored are generally referred to as enriched.

QUESTION:

Spinach used to be recommended widely for infants and children as a good source of iron. Why is it rarely mentioned now?

ANSWER:

Spinach is an excellent source of carotene, which the body converts into vitamin A, but recent studies have shown that, although the iron content of spinach is high, the iron is present in a form that is not readily absorbed in the digestive tract. More satisfactory food sources of iron are eggs, meats and whole-grain cereals. There is, however, no reason why the average person who likes spinach should not eat it when the opportunity arises, nor why anyone who dislikes it should eat it, provided other green vegetables are included in the diet.

QUESTION:

Is there any food that is a true substitute for meat? Is it possible to live on a meatless diet and still obtain all the nutrients necessary for good health?

ANSWER:

It is possible to obtain all the nutrients necessary to health without including meat in the diet. However, it is difficult without careful planning to obtain a sufficient amount of complete protein if some animal proteins are not eaten, such as those in milk, eggs, cheese and fish, as well as the plant protein found in nuts, dry beans and peas.

Cheating Death

CHICAGO (AP) — Survival should be the rule rather than the exception when the aortic artery wall weakens and threatens to burst, Dr. Constantine E. Anarnostopoulos, a University of Chicago heart surgeon, says. Rupture of the aorta is the most common cause of death in such cases, but early diagnosis and treatment can often prevent death.

Tiny Repeats His Cabbage Rolls Recipe

By TINY BENNETT

Ever since I published my own special version of cabbage rolls, I have been getting tearful calls from homemakers who have lost their original copy.

So since white cabbages are plentiful and inexpensive at this time of the year, here again is how to prepare:

TINY'S RICH-FILLING CABBAGE ROLLS

Grind about one pound of any left-over cooked meat — pork, veal, chicken, turkey or ham — and sautee gently in a skillet with one finely chopped large onion, using one tablespoon cooking oil, butter or shortening. Stir well and as the onion becomes transparent, season with just dashes of oregano, sage, mint, black pepper and salt. Cover and cook for 10 minutes on low heat to perfectly blend the ingredients.

Lacking leftovers, use fresh ground lean beef but don't cook longer than I suggest for ground cooked meat.

Turn the contents into a bowl and set aside to cool. Now prepare a pot of rice in the following manner:

Into a heavy saucepan possessing a tight-fitting lid, pour two measured cups of chicken or beef stock—canned stock is fine or use water flavored with two beef or chicken cubes.

Bring to a rolling boil, add a heaped teaspoon of curry powder, several dashes of turmeric powder, ½ teaspoon salt and stir thoroughly. Still at high heat, slowly briddle one cup of long-grain rice into the pot, with the stock kept at the rolling boil. When all the rice is added, shake the pot to even out the rice, cover and turn off the heat.

This allows the rice to cook slowly and take in all the rich broth, until 30 minutes later it is perfectly cooked, moist and with all the grains light, fluffy and separate. Since it will all be re-heated, this can be done in advance.

Cut the base off a fair-sized cabbage, remove, wash and save the clean but coarse outside leaves. Then with a sharp, pointed knife, carefully cut the white core out of the cabbage base, paring inside until most of the thick leaf stems are removed. Now stand the cabbage base-down in a pot containing two inches of boiling water.

While the steam penetrates up through the layers of cabbage leaves and softens the whole head, mix the rice in with the meat and onions in a big bowl, mixing well, tasting and adding salt and maybe a little fresh ground black pepper if you think either are needed.

Grease the inside of a large casserole and cover the bottom with a layer of the raw, washed, outer cabbage leaves. Set your oven to 350.

After about 10 minutes steaming (with the lid off) the cabbage leaves will begin to get soft and you can roll them carefully off the head one after the other, using a pair of kitchen tongs. Cabbage leaves overlap, so look carefully to make sure you are taking the leaf from the top. They should lift away without tearing.

This is quite an easy operation but ensure that the cabbage leaves are soft, without being soggy. If the first ones are still a little hard, just give them an extra minute or two back in the pot.

Lay each leaf in turn, flat on a large plate, dump two heaped tablespoons of the filling into the curved, board section and roll them up carefully from the bottom, tucking in the end, as one does when wrapping a parcel.

The amount of filling often varies according to the size of the leaf but a medium head of cabbage usually supplies more than needed.

It is not necessary to tie or pin them together, since the baking very nicely fixes their shape. Carry on until all the filling is used, putting the rolls in neat layers in the casserole with each layer criss-crossing the one beneath. And now comes the sauce-making.

Heat two cups tomato sauce together with two tablespoons butter, one teaspoon and dash of pepper and when blended, allow to simmer for a minute or two. It can save time if you use a can of spaghetti sauce.

Sprinkle the rolls with one teaspoon celery seed, grind over some black pepper and after dashing on some oregano, pour the sauce all over so it carries the herbs and spices deep into the dish.

Cover the top of the rolls with a double layer of spare cabbage leaves to prevent scorching, fit the lid snug and bake in your 350 oven for two hours.

The cabbage rolls go beautifully with boiled or mashed potatoes, stewed tomatoes blessed with a sprinkling of dried basil and a side-dish of green beans gently poached in half an inch of chicken broth.

My recipe makes enough for about eight people, with my suggested side-dishes. But don't worry, they re-heat beautifully and are a cinch to freeze for another day.

Now, please don't lose this recipe.

Twins Separated

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Siamese twins Millie and Anna Marie Cates—separated in surgery Monday at a Wichita hospital—were reported recovering normally and doing well Tuesday. The twins, born Nov. 7 to William and Ruth Cates of Wichita, were listed in good condition after the three-hour operation by a team of 12 doctors.

Energy Boost from Vegetables

HILDA BEASTALL

It is during late January and into February that homemakers look around for high value vegetables to serve the family. Our energy gets a bit on the low side sometimes due possibly to scarce sunshine, but much can be done to improve the situation with the use of more fresh green vegetables.

A recent statement by Dr. J. Douglas Wallace, secretary-general of the Canadian Medical Association, at a Toronto meeting merits thought by everyone. He said: "While the average Canadian now considers good health care to be a right, he does not recognize that good health is primarily his own responsibility." The doctor adds that this attitude is gradually changing, a good sign borne out in part by the number of homemakers who are seeking to maintain health for their family by means of improving their choice and preparation of food.

Winter gardens and allotments should still be a source of Brussels sprouts, and in some instances green broccoli.

Both these exceptionally nutritious vegetables are good value to buy frozen, and also when found in fresh supply on produce counters.

Sprouts are a delicately flavored miniature cabbage with better color and more flavor than bought cabbage in winter. The frozen product is really a better buy than fresh sprouts unless they are known to have been gathered the same day. They are so small that they quickly lose their vitamin and mineral values in which they rank well above cabbage.

Green boccoli ranks much higher than sprouts in both vitamin C and in A, and slightly above in the minerals phosphorus, iron, calcium and potassium. Cabbage is still a good source of minerals and C.

As with most vegetables, sprouts and broccoli give their best flavor when lightly steamed and served plain with a pat of soft margarine if not accompanied by meat or fish with a high fat content. Other uses are in salads where the small sprouts are delicious and attractive when sliced through, served with the simplest of lemon and yogurt dressings.

Chopped green broccoli heads go well with canned small tomatoes in a winter salad. Herbed lemon butter as a dressing for all green winter salads is quick to make and will keep two or three days in a small glass jar, covered, in the refrigerator. Bring the portion needed to room temperature by creaming for a couple of minutes.

Herbed Lemon Butter

½ cup soft margarine
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. finely chopped parsley
½ tsp fresh chives chopped
½ tsp fresh sweet basil.

Note: If the fresh herbs are not being grown indoors now, use a pinch of dried herb and a half teaspoon of whatever green edible you can find to chop fine just for its refreshing color.

Cream margarine; add other ingredients and mix well. This is also good as a dressing on cooked green winter vegetables.

When using with hot vegetables, leave the little mixing bowl near enough to the stove warmth for 15 minutes to be slightly warmed.

Another dressing for those who like something with a real tang is made with yogurt. Use with broccoli, cabbage or Brussels sprouts. This is similar to a sour cream dressing but lacks the high fat content which is not needed except in the rare high caloric diet ordered for special conditions of health.

Yogurt Dressing

a little salt sprinkle black pepper (optiosal) few grains grated nutmeg
½ tsp. dried chives.

Stir and mix together. Makes ½-cup; nonfat if made with skim milk powder at home, so be generous in use.

The flavor of bacon is liked with broccoli for a change. Smoked Pork Jowls are occasionally found in one store at one-half the price of bacon. When carefully chosen for a good streak of lean throughout the piece, a jowl will slice into many economical flavor pieces to go with green vegetables.

Smoked Pork Jowl Dressing

1 slice of smoked jowl for each serving
½ large onion, thin sliced
1 cup fine wholewheat crumbs
1 Tbsp chopped parsley or kale or chervil.

Cooked jowl slices in own fat until well done. Remove from pan, cool, and cut into small pieces. If amount of fat in pan is not tolerated, drain into a can for discarding. Replace with 1 or 2 tablespoons oil or soft margarine.

Cook onion in fat or oil until limp; add wholewheat crumbs and brown a little. Add parsley, kale or chervil and cook gently another minute. Toss in the jowl pieces. Stir and serve over steamed broccoli.

To make another simple dressing for Brussels sprouts, green broccoli or any other green winter vegetable — spinach, swiss chard, kale, cabbage, and even white cauliflower (sometimes called white broccoli) — all you need do is to use the quantity of either soft margarine, homemade yogurt or your choice in a vegetable oil, and stir in your selection of these herbs and seasonings: chervil, parsley, chives; sunflower or pumpkin seeds; nutmeg, ginger or curry.

Occasionally an oven dish can be baked using either broccoli or Brussels sprouts; cut the broccoli into flowerets about the size of sprouts and use only the smallest stems, keeping larger ones to boil or steam until tender.

Place sprouts or broccoli in a casserole with a small amount of boiling water, about ½ cup to a 3-pint casserole about half full of the green vegetable. Cover and bring to boiling point on stove top, then transfer to fairly hot oven at 205 deg. C. to simmer slowly for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, cook ½ cup brown rice in 1 cup rapidly boiling water until almost tender, add ½ teaspoon salt. Reduce heat to simmer.

When all moisture is absorbed, add your choice of herbs and spices from above lists, and ½ cup finely grated Cheddar or Parmesan cheese. Spoon this mixtute over the partially cooked vegetable in casserole and bake uncovered for another 15 minutes, until lightly browned.

Serve with heated canned tomatoes or baked squash, cooked in the same oven heat from the time oven is turned on.

Some of these green winter vegetables are not perhaps well known to newcomers to these milder coastal areas. The growing of those which prove hardy to a particular spot will prove of value not only to the budget, but also to the enjoyment of more meal variety.

NOTE: Will the caller who wanted a recipe for making buttermilk please call again? I have located one which may suit.

Lamb Best Served Very Hot or Very Cold

B.C. lamb has been rapidly gaining acceptance and popularity in recent years. Because of climate, sheep-raising methods and variety of sheep breeds, Canadian lamb has a fine distinctive flavor.

Spring lamb usually refers to the meat of animals from three-five months of age, although lamb can be up to 14 months. Meat from sheep over 14 months is referred to as mutton. The Canadian inspection stamp is applied when health inspection is carried out by the federal government. Lamb is not generally sold to consumers by grade.

When buying lamb, check for meat color. Lean meat varies from light to dark pink, while mutton ranges from light to dark red. Lamb can be stored in the freezer from two to eight months, depending on types of cuts, or one to three days in the refrigerator.

Serve lamb very hot or very cold. The use of herbs and spices will complement the flavor of this meat. Try mint, marjoram, rosemary, curry, oregano, garlic or ginger, seasoning before cooking. Experience a meat sensation with B.C. lamb.

SPRING LAMB STEW

2 lbs. lamb stewing meat
3 tbsp. flour
3 tbsp. oil (or more if needed)
1 clove B.C. garlic, crushed
2 medium B.C. onion, sliced
⅓ cup soy sauce pepper to taste water
4 medium potatoes, peeled and cubed
1 turnip, peeled and cubed
4 carrots, peeled and sliced on bias
3 stalks celery, sliced on bias
2 tbsp. parsley, chopped

Coat lamb with flour, In large Dutch oven heat oil; add garlic and meat; brown on all sides. Add onions; saute gently. Add soy sauce, pepper and enough water to cover meat. Cover pan tightly; bring to boil; lower heat; simmer 1 hour. Add potatoes, turnip, carrots, celery and parsley.

Simmer 45 to 60 minutes longer or until meat and vegetables are tender. Add more water if necessary during cooking process. Thicken gravy if desired. Makes 6 servings.

MINTED LEG OF LAMB

1 leg of lamb, shank half (approx. 3 lbs.)
1 garlic clove, slivered
½ cup mint sauce
Freshly ground black pepper and salt to taste
1 medium onion, sliced.

Preheat oven to 325 deg. F. Cut small gashes in fat surface of lamb; insert garlic slivers, Place roast on rack, fat side up, in open shallow roasting pan. Pour ¼ cup mint sauce over meat. Season with freshly ground black pepper and salt. Insert meat thermometer. Place in 325 deg. F. oven. Roast until thermometer registers 170 deg. F. to 180 deg. F., approx, 35 minutes per pound. Half an hour before cooking is finished, baste with balance of mint sauce and onion slices. Makes four servings.

Advice 'For the Birds'

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "move that cursing myna bird to the garage, basement or some other isolated place so people won't be offended by its vulgarity" was strictly for the birds.

If a bird is isolated for a long period of time, it will become listless and unhappy. Birds need the sound of a human voice or the company of other birds to keep them happy and healthy.

Also, myna birds are tropical birds, and as such, they are highly susceptible to pneumonia and should be kept warm and out of drafts. (I lost two canaries in one week by foolishly placing them in a drafty kitchen.)

Please, Abby, in the name of humanity, print this!—BIRD LOVER.

DEAR BIRD LOVER: All right. Here's your letter. Now, all you folks out there, please keep your birds warm!

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are now 21 and 19. We are married now, but when we were young (12 and 10) we were both sexually molested by our brother-in-law on numerous occasions. We were never very close to our mother, and we had no father, so we had nobody to turn to. We were naive and very frightened, so we just kept it to ourselves.

The problem is not ours now because what has happened is in the past, but this brother-in-law is now the father of two adopted daughters, ages 4 and 6, and we are afraid that he might molest them.

How do we go about telling our sister that her husband is abnormal? Is it too late for us to do anything now to prevent him from molesting his children?—BEEN THROUGH IT.

DEAR BEEN: Try to establish a close relationship with the two little girls so that they will tell you if their father takes any indecent liberties with them. I don't recommend your telling your sister or anyone else. Bringing up the past now could create an ugly situation needlessly, but do keep your eyes open!

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 40 years to a lovely, compassionate, gentle woman. She's about as near to perfection as a wife can be. But she has developed a habit in recent years that has begun to irritate me no end.

If a woman acquaintance dies, my wife develops instant "compassion" for the widower, and it's, "Let's invite poor Jim over for dinner, or bridge, or for the evening."

Whenever we have a party, she says, "Don't you think we should invite poor John? He must be so lonely."

She is the only one among our many friends who has this type of interest and compassion.

Abby, I have had it. How do I put a stop to it without appearing to be a jealous husband?
—UPSET IN URBANA.

DEAR UPSET: Look at it this way: Should YOU ever find yourself alone, wouldn't you want to be shown the same compassion and interest?

DEAR ABBY: I am a successful executive, age 55, and recently married a wonderful woman who is 40, trim, beautiful and looks years younger than her age.

She has too much time on her hands and has seriously considered modeling dresses, suits, sportswear and swimwear. She possesses all the necessary atrributes to be a first-class professional model.

The first agency she approached wanted to hign her immediately. So far, she hadn't signed because I have discouraged her. I'm afraid that she will find herself confronted with unwelcomed advances from manufacturers, buyers and designers. Also, I fear that she may be manhandled, and the privacy of her dressing room will be invaded.

She says none of my fears are legitimate. Can you tell me just what fashion models can expect? Her Husband.

DEAR HUSBAND: If you don't want your beautiful bride on display scantily clad before strange men, say so, but your fears of her having to fend off "unwelcome advances," being man-handled and having her privacy invaded are unfounded.

The one legitimate objection to her working as a fashion model you didn't mention. It is very hard work.

The Great Kraft Rebate Game

COULD BE WORTH $10.00

Hang on to this page and save your Kraft "product codes". Attach the right "product codes" to the right squares and you could get up to $10.00! It's fun! . . . It's easy! It's The Great Kraft Rebate Game!

HOW TO PLAY:

1. Each square could be worth a maximum of 50¢ when you play by these rules:

2. Remove this part ——→ of the package from a Kraft product. It's the "product code". And it's what you attach to the squares.

3. You might come across a Kraft product with no "product code" — so you can use the one illustrated ——→

This is what the "product code" looks like. You can also use this as your "wild card".

as a "wild card". Just cut it out and attach it to any square. But keep in mind that you can only use the "wild card" once.

4. Some squares show a specific Kraft product. To use that square, you must use the "product code" from that product. (Or you can use your "wild card", once only, on one of those squares.)

5. If a square doesn't show a specific Kraft product, you can use the "product code" from any Kraft product. For example, if you eat a lot of Velveeta or Miracle Whip, you can use as many of those "product codes" as you need.

6. You can either go ACROSS or DOWN — but to get your Rebate you must properly complete at least one row in either direction. For example: send us this page with one complete row ACROSS and we'll send you $2.50; or send us this page with one complete row DOWN and we'll send you $2.00; or send us any one completed row ACROSS and any one completed row DOWN and we'll send you $4.00. But remember, each square is worth a maximum of 50¢. Partially completed rows don't count — so make sure you have enough "product codes" to complete a row all the way DOWN or all the way ACROSS.

7. Fill out all 20 squares correctly and collect a maximum of $10.00! Only one entry, maximum of $10.00, per address, household or family. All entries must be postmarked no later than April 3, 1976.

KRAFT

Do not go back to Go! Instead, fill out the coupon below and mail this page with the appropriate "product codes" attached. Remember, only completed rows count, and you can count each square only once.

The Great Kraft Rebate Game, P.O. Box 23051, Vancouver, B.C. V7B 1T9

All entries must be postmarked no later than APRIL 3, 1976.

I am entitled to $..... because I have filled out ..... row(s) correctly after having read the rules carefully. I understand that it will take 4-6 weeks for this amount to reach me.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

One Meal In Four

By DR. JEAN MAYER

If you're a typical North American, you eat at least one out of every four meals away from home, at a lunch counter, in a cafeteria, a fast-food shop or a restaurant. You're also spending about one-third of your entire food dollars eating out.

And if you think about it, one-quarter of all your meals are ordered from a menu devised by someone your probably don't know, cooked by someone you'll probably never meet, prepared in a kitchen you probably will never see and made with ingredients of which you can never be certain.

I am not impugning the quality of the ingredients, the condition of the kitchen or the expertise of the cooks in the nation's eateries (although in certain cases, I am sure that one or even all three may be open to question). What I do question, in almost every case, is the nutritional (as opposed to gastronomic) content of meals away from home.

The variety available in a typical American restaurant, with its selecton of hors d'oeuvres, soups, salads, and assortment of vegetables, entrees and desserts, generally is overwhelming — particularly in items of caloric "density" or fat and cholesterol content.

For example, you can choose from a number of salad dressings, all of which are high calorie. The dressing is usually poured liberally over the greens before they are brought to the table. Potatoes arrive (sometimes without being ordered), topped with butter or sour cream. Vegetables are often overcooked and served swimming in butter.

Your steak may be carefully cooked to your order — rare, medium or well-done — but the restaurant prides itself on steaks that are tender when nearly raw, which means that they are cuts of highly fat-streaked beef. Lower-calorie lean beef, veal, chicken or fish is prepared with the chef's pride — that is, with one or another rich, calorie-laden sauces. The desserts are also rich and calorie-laden. If fruit if offered, it usually is served with a wine or liqueur, a topping of whipped cream or a special sauce.

I believe that most customers would like to have as much control over the quantity and the caloric, saturated fat and cholesterol content of their food when eating out as they do when dining at home.

So what should be done? First, calories could be cut simply but cutting the size of portions, either by giving the diner a choice of small-, medium- and large-sized portions or by serving a small initial portion (an airline meal is a good model) and offering "seconds" as an option. This would also considerably cut the amount of wasted food, and hence the expense.

Next, customers should be given a choice of butter or polyunsaturated margarine and salad dressing made with polyunsaturated oils or even plain lemon juice. And they should be allowed to pour it themselves at the table. Sauces should be optional, too, and not an integral part of the dish. And fresh fruits, without sauces or liquor, should be a regular part of every dessert selection.

Finally, some sort of labeling — that lists at least the critical ingredients used in each dish — should be part of every menu, as should at least two other precisely labeled, low-calorie, low-saturated-fat, low-cholesterol meals that are planned with the consultation of a knowledgeable dietitian. And I don't mean the so-called "Diet Special" that you now see occasionally.

Contrary to what seems to be the prevailing belief in many restaurants, chopped steak is not more low calorie than unchopped steak unless (and you don't know that it has been) the chopped steak is cooked in such a way that the fat has been drained. Even then, fish and chicken usually would be far better choices on a dieter's platter.

Our restaurant industry is in much the same situation as the automobile industry. Until recently, they both told themselves that Americans really wanted big, gas-guzzling cars and big calorie-filled meals. Then, Detroit took a count of small European and Japanese cars whizzing by and decided that small might be good after all. It's time our restaurants did the same.

Frozen Food Cycle Snags

There are a lot of tasty, inexpensive, highly nutritious seafoods on the market in all seasons, thanks to progress made in freezer methods and storage, and also thanks to canning.

People should be aware of the cycle frozen product goes through before being eaten and of the complications that may arise within this cycle.

FROZEN FOOD CYCLE

1. Food is processed and stored at —15 deg. F. (—26 deg. C.) until ready for shipment.

2. Transportation — It is shipped by freezer equipped transportation to a distributor.

3. Distributor — Stored in freezer at —15 deg. F. (—26 deg. C).

4. Retailer — Retail outlets store bulk in their own walk-in freezer and fill their freezer cabinets as necessary with products.

5. Consumer — Picks them out of store freezer, transports them home and either cooks them that day or places them in their own freezer for short storage before using.

The first three phases of the cycle rarely represent a problem. The fish is processed and stored at constant temperature at plant level. It is then transported in freezer-equipped vehicles to the freeze storage facilities of a distributor and once there the distributors have a consistently maintained freezer temperature in their cold storage facilities.

There are two areas left which do present a great problem — the retailer and the consumer. Not every retailer and not every consumer, but the fact remains that there are people who need educating in the areas of frozen food care and handling in order to obtain the best quality and results from these products.

Starting with the retailer — very often the extremely important job of frozen food handler is given to the low man on the totem pole. As soon as this man learns a little about the job, he is transferred or promoted and again the job is filled by a new man.

Taking delivery of the goods and placing them in their own freezer storage should be executed as fast as possible. Freezer cabinets should never be loaded above the safety marker line. There should be a strict rotation of products so that old stock does not get left at the bottom.

When loading freezer cabinets with frozen foods it should be done with all speed so the minimum amount of time is spent outside a freezer. A check should be kept on all freezer equipment to ensure a breakdown is found before products start thawing.

An aware consumer too can help safeguard these goods by reporting an obviously faulty freezer cabinet.

— By complaining if they find a cartload of frozen goods sitting unattended on a grocery floor.

— By reporting thawed or semi-thawed packages in the freezer.

The consumer should learn to treat frozen food with the respect it deserves. In order to maintain a high level of quality once purchased, there are several points to be emphasized.

The first thing to remember is to buy frozen foods last on the shopping list. Then it is very important to get them to your home freezer as fast as possible.

Use a top of the fridge freezer for short term storage only— up to two to three weeks. A home freezer may store frozen seafood from three to four months at 0 deg. F. but remember to date and rotate all supplies.

Fluctations in temperature cause more rapid deterioration. The lower the temperature the longer you can keep it. As a general rule, for each 5 deg. F. increase in temperature, the life of a food is decreased by 50 per cent.

For example, at 0 deg. F. a frozen food will be one year old in one year. At 5 deg. F. it will be one year old in six months and at 10 deg. F. it will be one year old in three months. At 15 deg. F. — one year old in six weeks and at 30 deg. F. — one year old in five days.

Other essentials to remember for obtaining maximum quality from a package of frozen seafood are:

1. Defrost freezers regularly — a high build up of frost cuts down efficiency of freezer.

2. Keep foods dated and maintain a rapid turnover — means greater economy.

3. Keep a running inventory listing foods in freezer.

Car Crashes Through House

GREENVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — A speeding car crashed through one side of a house and out the other side early today killing six people, four of them occupants of the frame dwelling.

One Darke County deputy sheriff called it "the worst accident I have ever seen."

Deputy Sheriff Toby Spencer said the car, apparently traveling at a high rate of speed on Ohio 49, "left the roadway, travelled something like 340 feet and went through a house, completely through the house."

Identities were withheld pending notification of relatives.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Maximallian Arnold Ladoucer had little to celebrate about on his 31st birthday Tuesday.

Appearing in Victoria provincial court Ladoucer, also known as Russell Hames McKay, pleaded guilty to the theft of 95 cents from a table at Paul's Restaurant, 1900 Douglas, and was sentenced to two months in jail.

It may have been a "trifling theft," Judge William Ostler said, but a term in prison was the only disposition he could consider in view of Ladoucer's criminal record.

The judge noted the accused had been continually in trouble with the law since 1963, had broken his parole on four separate occasions, had once failed to appear for trial and was on probation at the time of the offence.

Defence lawyer Chris Wilson said the charge "arose out of some misunderstanding" and said Ladoucer had told him he wanted "to clean up his act and get his life in some sort of order."

"I hope he means what he told Mr. Wilson," Ostler said in passing sentence.

Ostler decided to suspend sentence on Douglas Wayne Spence but told the 19-year-old: "You're at the end of the rope as far as I'm concerned . . . if you come before me again you'll go to prison."

Spence, of 2531 Government, pleaded guilty Monday to a theft of a truck in Calgary last April 14. He also admitted other theft convictions Dec. 6, 1973, and July 19, 1974, in Calgary and last Sept. 22 in Victoria when he was placed on 15 months probation and ordered to undertake 60 hours community service work.

Defence counsel Jane Morley noted the truck theft took place prior to Spence's September court appearance.

She said a jail sentence now "would negate the good that was done by the leniency" extended then.

Ostler agreed, set a two-year probation term and ordered Spence to attend the Metchosin weekend forestry camp.

"In my opinion you have been malingering," he told the youth. "The camp is rigorous and just the thing for those like you who are inclined to backslide."

Four Vancouver residents were charged with possession of codeine opium and pethidine for the purposes of trafficking and were remanded in custody to this afternoon for a bail hearing.

The four — Joseph Rosair Alain LaForest, 25, Wendell Sinclair Lewis, 24, Lori Elizabeth Knight, 17, and Irene Janine Jolin, 19, were arrested early Tuesday morning at a Gorge Road motel.

LaForest and Lewis were also charged with breaking and entering Stewart and Hudson Ltd., 423 Gorge East, last Friday and stealing some tools. In addition they were charged with possession of stolen property and housebreaking instruments.

No pleas have been entered.

Frank Alex Gilbert Willie, 20, of 2831 Nanaimo, was sentenced to three months definite and 12 months indeterminate after he was found guilty by Judge Harold Alder of breaking and entering and theft.

The charge stemmed from an incident last Oct. 1 when a home at 768 Market was broken into and some car keys stolen.

GARDENING

Add Shrubs to Balconies Now

The next two or three weeks should bring the opportunity for balcony gardeners to add a flowering shrub to their off-the-ground gardens.

While experience tells us not to forget the possibility of winter weather in our area, the mild winter is developing flower buds on the earliest of the deciduous shrubs. Seeing these embryo flowers already on forsythias, spiraeas, lilacs and laburnum makes buying an exciting experience.

Those names belong to the decidious, or leaf-losing, shrubs so that at present little or no foliage is to be seen.

The general habit however is indicated by the branch framework so that you can see that some have a tree-form such as laburnum and lilac, while others are spiraea and forsythia are more twiggy, therefore like to produce more flowers of smaller size.

Since the balcony gardener is buying only one or two shrubs of this type, time will be well spent in selecting exactly the one to give greatest pleasure at close quarters.

Even small flowers in profusion are of interest when seen daily at close range.

Laburnum vossii grows quickly when young so that flowering is soon reached. This species has very long racemes of yellow flowers in spring; the seeds are believed to be poisonous if eaten.

Lilac, or you may find it labelled Syringa, is usually a grafted shrub that may be maintained in small tree form, flowering in spring at four or five feet. You may choose from singles or doubles in shades of lilac, claret, reddish purple and in pure white.

If wanted more for nostalgic perfume you will choose your lilac later while in bloom.

There are other small flowered lilacs of quite different appearance, and of smaller natural stature. They also have the fragrance. Look for Syringa persica and S. palabiniana, both desireable in all ways for small spaces.

Forsythia is only exciting for its early sunshine burst of yellow flowers; you can have pale yellow or bright gold. Forsythia is pruned as soon as the mass display of flowers is over.

On small shrubs, cut back the flowered parts to a low point on the shrub to encourage new wood for flowering in two years.

The entire genus of spiraeas is suitable for balcony container growing, for their prolific small flowers are borne freely on fast growing branches produced after the annual pruning. Those that bloom in spring and early June are pruned as soon as flowers fade.

Earliest to flower is the precocious Spiraea thunbergii already with tiny dots along its stems indicating clusters of white bloom. If for no other reason, I like to grow this because it will flower a little in January and February as well as according to schedule in April.

Two far handsomer species are S. van houttei and S. prunifolia, both profusely blooming with larger flat clusters of white flowers almost hiding the leaves.

Foliage of S. prunifolia colors well to crimson in fall making it doubly useful. Both these must have old wood pruned out after flowering to allow new wood to grow during summer.

The philadelphus genus should be investigated for its lovely rich perfume in some of the hybrids. And one species P. microphyllus, a dwarfer one to three feet, has one-inch wide flowers, also well scented.

The pink feathery genus is an ideal shrub for a hot sunny balcony, as also are the hybrid brooms and cistuses.

A sampling only, to be sure, but enough to encourage looking in nurseries and garden centres for other shrubs to bring spring and summer sights and perfumes to your balcony garden.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number for fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford bring the desired results da so you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

9 IN MEMORIAM

DeMACEDO—In loving memory of Tom deMacedo, who passed away January 28, 1974.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Lily and sons Neil and Raymond and families.

FANSTONE—Frederick, who passed away January 28, 1975, at the age of 92.—Lovingly remembered by his wife Lillian Rose, Daughter Marjorie and all the family.

8 CARD OF THANKS

WHEELER—Dorothy.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away;
God took her home—it was His will;
Within our hearts she liveth still.
—Your son Peter and grandchildren, Noni and Jordi; and Sharie and family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE. SANDS.

Off and again, a leaf blown
by the wind

Falls on the broad ocean

'Tis never lost; where'er it
fate may blow,

The imprint of its settling's
left behind.

And so with every life,
whate'er its kind,

If shapes itself a place,
'tis destined so,

If hence in peace or turmoil
it should go,

Its influence ever lives,
as 'twas designed.

A LOVER-LY ACCENT ON THE GIRLS

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — When four English mechanics arrived in North Baltimore, Ohio, it drove the women at the local hamburger factory wild, the men said.

They said the women chased them around the factory, queued up to buy them food and drinks, and some even pursued them to their motel — all because of their English accents.

"All most of the girls wanted was to hear us talk," said 35-year-old Anthony Tew. "They reckoned our English accents were cute."

"I tell you anyone who goes out there with a midland (Birmingham) accent or any kind of Britich accent, has got it made," said Gilbert Farmer. "You literally had to beat them off."

"One night five married women from the factory drove 11 miles from town to the motel where we were staying in a car loaded down with drinks," said John Price. "We had to send them away."

But not everyone in North Baltimore was impressed, an industrial tribunal was told Tuesday. The vice-president of the American company told the men's boss that Tew had better "stay out of town" because of his behaviour. Tew, married with three children, was fired.

But the tribunal ruled that Tew was unfairly dismissed and awarded him $532 compensation.

It ruled his behavior had not interferred with his work and reports of the men's reputation had become exaggerated in the small religiously-based community, the tribunal ruled.

SEWER LINK-UP A CHANCY DEAL

The Isherwood family, which owns the Royal Oak Inn, will be asked by Saanich to "take a chance" on sewers.

Saanich's land, planning and housing committee decided Tuesday to recommend to council that the Isherwoods' application to hook a temporary connection to the Broadmead service trunk be approved.

In moving approval, Ald. Sandy Noel said it would be given providing Mr. Isherwood (Joe Isherwood, who attended the meeting) will take his chances on the ultimate sewer development in that area."

Isherwood told the committee that ultimately a convention centre for 1,500 delegates is planned, and equal hotel accommodation. Isherwood said the first phase, to increase the present 100 uints to 500 units, will cost $14 million.

The problem is the Broadmead trunk is planned to also service the Cordova Bay area. If the needs of the area to the south increase and the Colquitz sewer is delayed (its construction is tied to the provincial government's Roy Road housing project) the Royal Oak Inn could be left without sufficient sewers.

"These people have been paying commercial taxes for about 10 years without getting any benefit," committee chairman Ald. John McDonald noted.

Power Shift Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Donald Rumsfeld warned Congress on Tuesday that the United States must act now to reverse a military power shift toward the Soviet Union.

Rumsfeld, in his first formal report to Congress since becoming the defence chief, urged approval of the Pentagon's record $101.1-billion proposed budget.

He said U.S. forces currently are strong enough to balance Soviet strength, but he warned that the Soviets have been making substantial gains in nuclear and conventional forces. The Soviets display no signs of slowing this build-up, he said.

Accompanying Rumsfeld before the House of Representatives armed services committee was Gen. George Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of military staff, who said improvements in Soviet nuclear weaponry in the last year were "somewhat greater than anticipated."

Rumsfeld said missiles capable of hitting Soviet targets with pinpoint accuracy are needed despite the claims of critics that they give the appearance of U.S. intent to make the first strike in a nuclear war.

COMPANY SLIPS UP ON BANANA BRIBES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without admitting or denying guilt, United Brands Co. has consented to U.S. federal charges that it agreed to pay $2.5 million in bribes to Hopduran officials in exchange for a lower export tax on bananas.

The company also allegedly paid $750,000 to officials of a European country, believed to be Italy, for a period of about five years.

United Brands, the largest fruit importer in the United States, distributes bananas under the "Chiquita" label.

Business-Like Bandits Net $1.5M

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It had to be a well-planned operation," said Police Sgt. Alan Varner after two men in business suits robbed a securities firm and fled with nearly $1.5 million in negotiable bonds.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said the robbery was one of the largest of its kind.

Varner said the men entered the Century City offices of the MuniciCorp. of California Tuesday and said they were waiting to speak with someone about buying some bonds.

But a short time later they accosted an unarmed messenger bringing two bags of securities to the firm from a nearby bank, the policeman said. He said they apparently were aware of the messenger's schedule.

"The total time was about 10 or 15 minutes," said Varner.

"The messenger was coming back, on foot, and they were waiting for him. As soon as he returned, it was over. They pushed him into a room and came out with the bags."

MuniciCorp's president, Kenneth Rogers, said both men were armed with handguns.

"The men told the secretaries to shut up, then took the deliveryman into my office, told him to sit down, then took his bags from him," Rogers said. "They had their guns in his ribs all the time."

Varner said the two then made their getaway with the aid of an accomplice waiting nearby in a 1962-model van with out-of-state plates.

He said police were investigating the possibility that the two men were known to employees of the firm.

MuniciCorp deals in municipal bonds, debt obligations issued by cities and other governmental agencies. Such securities are frequently issued in "bearer" form, meaning that whoever has physical possession can cash them.

However, both police and Rogers said the men will have difficulty selling the bonds.

Cmdr. Pete Hagan of the Los Angeles police department said any ligitimate securities dealer would require identification and proof of ownership.

ROBBERY TRIAL DELAYED

Trial of two men charged with the armed robbery of a Saanich liquor store last April was adjourned in county court Monday to the first week of March.

Accused, Gordon Norman Comley, who was 22 when arrested in mid-April, was granted an adjournment to enable him to prepare a defence which he said would involve 40 witnesses.

He and Robert Joseph Gélineau, then 21, were charged with the $19,000 holdup of Tillicum liquor store at the Gorge shopping centre and were represented by the same counsel.

Court was told Monday that Comley had decided to defend himself but had not the opportunity to read the transcript of his preliminary hearing or to summons witnesses.

Guest Conductor for Two VSO Concerts

Second of this season's guest conductors will be on the Victoria Symphony podium for the next two concerts Sunday and Monday at the Royal Theatre.

Donald Thulean, recipient of numerous musical and humanitarian awards, has had a varied musical career leading to his present position as music director of the Spokane Symphony Orchestra.

He has been assistant dean and chorus master of the Aspen Music School in Colorado; dean of music at Pacific University in Oregon; associate conductor of the Portland Symphony and assistant conductor of the Seattle Symphony from 1962 to 1968.

In 1962 he also took over the Spokane Symphony and it has grown artistically and professionally under his direction.

He has done a considerable amount of guest conducting and will undertake a tour of the Orient this summer and later of New Zealand and Australia.

Guest artist on the program will be Boyde Hood, principal trumpet of Victoria Symphony and a noted soloist of rapidly developing stature.

Music has been part of his life since early childhood. By the age of 18 Hood was playing first trumpet with the Dallas Symphony. From there he went on to play with the Rochester and Milwaukee orchestras, then branched out into jazz, backing famous singers such as Vic Damone and Nancy Ames.

He obtained his musical degrees from Eastman School of Music in Rochester, and Bell State in Indiana.

He has lived for the past five years in Victoria, leading a musically active life in the areas of performing and teaching.

Hood is on the faculty of music at the University of Victoria, director of the Gabrieli Choir and one of the founders and the leader of the Western Brass Society.

He will perform the Trumpert Concerto in E flat Major by Haydn in the weekend concerts.

Also on the program will be Prelude for Orchestra by Gagnon, Hungarian Peasant Songs by Bartok and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8 in D.

CAMPBELL CALLED WRONG ON ISLAND TRUST NEED

A weekend meeting of environmentalists disagreed with Capital Regional District Chairman James Campbell that the $236,000 Island Trust budget is a waste of money.

Bob Dickhout, president of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, said the Island Trust is a watchdog for more than 200 Gulf Islands.

"A federal study has shown that the Gulf Islands are a most valuable resource," he said. "The Island Trust put a damper on over-development and organized community planning."

Campbell, after chairing a "closed" meeting with island regional districts directors last week, said he would like the Island Trust abolished.

The environmental meeting, sponsored by TPNSA and the Victoria Sierra Club, was called to hear an illustrated lecture on the need for coastal management in B.C. It was presented by four University of British Columbia students — Brian Copeland, Robin Adam, Anne Coates and Margaret Symon. About 250 attended.

The students observed that 47 per cent of the shoreline in Australia is publicly-owned compared to nine per cent in Canada. Britain also protects its shoreline and doesn't allow homes to be built along the shore, they said.

In British Columbia, there is no coastal management legislation, they reported.

In the Gulf Islands, only 15 per cent of the shoreline (mostly parks) is publicly-owned.

"The alientation of the shoreline, is resulting in a growing antagonism between people and all levels of government."

They said governments also have turned a blind eye to the blocking public accesses to beaches by property owners.

Grain Firm Fired for 'Conflict'

Canadian Press

A possible conflict of interest resulted in the immediate termination Tuesday of services provided by a Vancouver firm of consulting engineers to a federal commission on health and safety in grain elevators.

C. D. Howe Western Ltd. was relieved of its consulting task by Dr. W. D. Liam Finn at the opening of the commission's one-day hearing in Victoria.

Dr. Finn said in a statement to the hearing that he was terminating consulting firm's appointment because it was recently approached by Alberta Pool Elevators with regard to matters before the commission.

He said the company was in a position "where it is open to charges of conflict of interest" and demanded an explation from both sides of events that gave rise to the possible conflict of interest.

Dr. Finn, dean of applied sciences at the University of British Columbia, said the commission must conduct its business openly and fairly and he was forced to act immediately on any suggestion that there might be a conflict of interest.

The one-man commission was appointed following a disastrous fire Oct. 1 last year at the Burrard Terminals Ltd. grain elevator in North Vancouver which claimed five lives and cause $8 million damage.

The commission held two hearing in Vancouver which were mainly concerned with the North Vancouver explosion and fire.

The Victoria hearing was the commission's first attempt to get expert testimony on general health and safety regulations in grain elevators.

The commission viewed a 35-minute film assembled by the North Vancouver fire department from television footage of the fire.

It also heard testimony from Sam Rycroft, superintendent of the Victoria Elevators Ltd., who said dust accumulation is extremely dangerous because it could result in an explosion if ignited by a heat source.

Rycroft told the commission that in the Victoria operation dust was "blown down" with air pressure hoses but the commission was told this method caused dust to whirl up and remain in the air.

Dr. Finn, who toured the Victoria grain elevator Monday, commended Rycroft on the "good housekeeping" that was apparent at the site.

Crown Corp. To Lose Ministers

Canadian Press

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said Tuesday it is his department's policy to phase out appointments of cabinet members to Crown corporations.

Consequently, he said he would remain on the board of directors of the B.C. Development Corp. for an interim period of six to 12 months on a transitional basis.

"I believe that the affairs of the corporation should be managed by the board of directors without interference," Phillips said.

"It will be up to the board of directors to set the policy and direction of the corporation."

The minister made the comments when announcing the appointment of six new members to BCDC's board of directors, one more than the board had previously.

Named to the board of directors are:

—Michael McGillivray, chartered accountant with the firm of Winspear, Higgins, Stevenson, and Co. of Prince George;

—Harold Blakely of West Vancouver, recently retired president of Columbia Brewing Co. Ltd. of Vancouver;

—Maurice Young, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd. of Vancouver;

—David Radler, president of Sterling Newspapers Ltd. of North Vancouver;

—Herb Doman, president and chairman of the board of Doman Industries Ltd. of Duncan;

—William Sauder, president of Sauder Industries Ltd. of Vancouver.

Hit-Run Car Just Like White Streak—Deaf Mute

An inquest into the hit-run death of a 38-year-old deaf mute at Royal Oak resumes Feb. 5 after opening Tuesday with evidence from her husband.

Kenneth Hughes, himself a deaf mute, told in sign language how he was walking arm-in-arm with his wife Betty on Elk Lake Drive about midnight Jan. 9 when a car approached from behind.

Through interpreter Annie Odynsky he said:

"I saw a very bright light and I turned to see it, and it was already there.

"And it was just like a white streak going by my face, so close — just inches away.

"I thought, where is my wife? Where is Betty?

"She wasn't even there."

The couple had just left Royal Oak Inn where they had spent two hours (he had two glasses of beer and she had a cider) and were walking to their home at 5199 Rambler.

Hughes said he was walking on the sandy shoulder, his wife on the pavement of the east side of Elk Lake Drive heading north toward Patricia Bay Highway intersection.

Hughes testified that after the car passed on the wrong side of the road, it continued north and Hughes next saw his wife as she rolled off the left fender about 40 feet away from him. The car stopped a moment, then drove on toward the highway, Hughes said.

He went to his wife, then flagged down a car coming from the intersection to get help. Near the body, he picked up a piece of chromium and later gave it to police.

Motorist Teresa Williams, 670 Goyette, said she and her daughter were stopped on Haliburton at the Patricia Bay intersection waiting for the light to change to cross the highway on to Elk Lake Drive.

Opposite them were two cars waiting to enter the highway, one without lights, she said, but the lights went on before the car drove on. As she passed the two autos in the intersection she saw the one that had been without lights was a beige color and similar in shape to a Chevrolet Impala.

Karen Alexander, Mrs. Williams' daughter, said she noticed the other vehicle was a green station wagon with woodpanels and a ski rack on top. Hughes stopped their car and Mrs. Williams ran back to the highway and flagged another motorist to get police and ambulance.

The following day Cons. Norman Ellison said he located a 1965 Meteor sedan with a damaged front fender and left door, a piece of grille missing and droplets of blood on the left side.

A piece of chrome picked up at the accident scene fitted the damaged car perfectly, the inquest was told.

Ellison described the car he examined as a kind of green with a black top.

The inquest under coroner Edmond de St. Jorre will sit at 7.30 p.m. Feb. 5 in the Saanich court to hear some eight more witnesses.

Guild Slate

Both major locals of The Newspaper Guild on the west coast are now headed by women.

Bridget Petersen, a Victoria Press copywriter and layout artist, was elected Sunday as president of the Victoria Newspaper Guild and Lorraine Shore of the Vancouver Sun is already serving as president of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild. Guild.

Other executive member of the Victoria local include: Nancy Brown, first vice-president; Roger Stonebanks, second vice-president; John Hutchinson, secretary; Margaret Thomson, treasurer; Dick Gibbons, Lillian Munch and Harry Faerber, directors.

94 GUNS STOLEN

Victoria police say an inventory of stock at Robinson's Sporting Goods, 1307 Broad, has indicated 94 handguns worth a total of $12,237 were taken in a break-in overnight Sunday.

In addition 250 rounds of ammunition were stolen.

The handguns includes 23 U.S. Smith and Wessons, 14 French Rugers, 13 English Webleys, 11 U.S. Colts, 11 English Brownings, five German Lugers, three German Herbert Schmidts, two German Walthers and two English Navy guns.

Also taken were one each of Arminius, Astra, Baby Dragoon, Enfield, Euroarms, Fobert (an antique), High Standard, Iver Johnson and Uberti.

Calibres ranged from .22 to .45 and .357 Magnums.

A police spoksman said a complete stock inventory would likely take the rest of the week.

Ex-Vic Press Employee Dies

Bert Pickup, a member of the Colonist-Victoria Press mechanical department for 44 years, died Tuesday night in hospital following a heart seizure. He was 74.

Pickup joined the Colonist as an apprentice stereotyper in November 1924, when he was known as an active hockey and ball player, and retired Nov. 30, 1968 after many years as stereo superintendent.

He continued working as a spare in the Victoria Press plate casting department until the end of 1971.

Funeral arrangements will be by McCall's.

Kidnappers His Business

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The businessman on the phone has a multi-million-dollar problem. Foreign terrorists have kidnapped one of his top executives and are demanding a huge sum for his release.

It may sound like a scene from a movie, but it's not. The drama has been played out frequently at the offices of the John T. Lynch Co., an international private investigation firm with headquarters here.

That first phone call to Lynch will probably cost the businessman $15,000. From then on, says the company's president— John T. Lynch—"the fee would run in $50,000 multiples and would never be less than $100,000."

Those are stiff rates, but Lynch—a former FBI man who founded the company 22 years ago—claims a 100 per cent batting average in kidnapping cases.

"The most important element is the safe return of the victim," said Lynch. "That's what they're paying me for."

In addition to large corporations, Lynch's clients have included sheiks and shahs, princes and presidents. He will not discuss individual cases except to say: "You've read about them in the newspapers."

But the fact that James Hoffa's family consulted him after the labor leader's disappearance gives some idea of his stature.

"Most of the hostage-kidnapping cases we handle are outside the United States," said Lynch, since domestic abductions come under FBI jurisidction.

In the case of a foreign kidnapping, Lynch's first move is to send a man to the scene.

"He's the one who evaluates the field situation and then gets back to us on what he needs in the way of talent," Lynch said.

There is a lot of talent to draw from. Among Lynch's more than 400 employees are investigators trained in "photography, telephotography, electronics, microelectronics, sound, defensive driving, surveillance and all the eavesdropping equipment," Lynch said. His staff is primarily composed of former FBI, CIA or Internal Revenue Service men.

Lynch says kidnappings are likely to increase, both in North America and abroad.

"It's a very profitable business," he said. "Where else could you get $1 million or $2 million—in one case $14 million—in a few hours tax free? There's no other occupation that pays so well—outside the U.S. Inside the U.S., I wouldn't bet a nickel on a kidnapping being successful because of the FBI."

Lynch said his men have come face to face with organized crime and, although none have ever been shot, some have been threatened.

Lynch said banking executives are particularly vulnerable to kidnappers.

Although his firm makes a lot of money from kidnappings, Lynch said the company stresses prevention and offers a special seminar "designed for top executives who must travel and those in the banking field." He tells an executive to cut down on risks by "not announcing to the world what his itinerary is and by not going into high-crime areas."

If an executive has received a kidnapping threat, or is fearful of an attempt, Lynch also will provide around-the-clock protection for a fee of about $2,500 a week.

Lynch, who describes himself as being in his mid-50s, says he became a private eye after 10 years with the FBI.

"I decided Hoover (J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director) was never going to quit, so I'd never get his job," he said.

PAINT REMOVERS KILL

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two researchers at the Medical College of Wisconsin say at least three Milwaukee area men died of heart attacks after using paint and varnish removers containing a common ingredient, methylene chloride.

The researchers say methylene chloride converts to an excessive concentration of carbon monoxide in the blood, thus robbing the heart of oxygen.

They say the United States government was told of the danger, but did nothing to require adequate warning labels on the products.

"It's been verified that a number of deaths occurred where without question the presence of a small amount of carbon monoxide was a factor," Dr. Richard Stewart of the college's Department of Environmental Medicine says.

"This is a real threat to anyone with significant coronary artery disease,"

Pot a 'Killer Drug'? Tests Show It's Not So

NEW YORK (AP) — Marijuana, the "killer drug" of the 1930s and 1940s, is being exonerated from the more extreme charges made against it.

New evidence, based on studies of heavy, chronic use in Costa Rica and Jamaica, does not show any signs of brain damage or other significant differences between users and non-users.

In the 1930s and 1940s there were fears that the drug would cause brain damage and it was associated with insanity and murderous conduct. Now scientists says new research shows that's not so.

"The evidence is fairly clear that chronic cannabis use is not accompanied by the things written in the medical literature in the 1930s and 1940s and re-emphasized in recent literature," said Dr. Max Fink of the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Dr. Fink was one of a number of scientists who spoke to reporters Tuesday during a New York Academy of Sciences conference on chronic cannabis use.

Dr. Thomas Bryant, president of the private Drug Abuse Council in Washington, said the evidence so far is enough to support decriminalization of marijuana.

Dr. Rhea Dornbush of New York Medical College cautioned against overemphasizing the current controversy whether marijuana use lowers blood levels of the male sex hormone testosterone. Whether it does will not be known for sure until more research is done, she said. There have been conflicting reports.

Stanford University researchers reported that marijuana did not have the same socially disruptive effects as alcohol use in a group of adolescent delinquent boys.

Although the two drugs were used with about the same frequency, alcohol use was greater in fights, difficulties with authorities, trouble with family or friends and automobile accidents.

Marijuana was used by the youths for tranqulizing purposes to avoid difficulties, while alcohol was used to "bolster courage."

RESTRAINING ORDER BLOCKS U.S. DYE BAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has issued a temporary restraining order which blocks the U.S. Food and Drug Administration today from imposing a ban on the nation's most widely used food coloring, red dye No. 2.

District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. Tuesday issued the order and set a hearing on the issue Feb. 6. The FDA had planned to implement the ban today. It is expected to appeal the action.

Last week, the FDA announced it intended to halt use of the dye because of tests raising questions about its safety, including a possible potential for causing cancer.

NO LEG SHOW

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — A major who banned soccer in his town because of "the inhibition of hairy masculine legs" has relented provided the players wear long trousers.

Olympic Village 'Vast Profits'

MONTREAL (CP) — The contract for construction of the Olympic village provided the developers with an enormous and highly unusual profit, according to the Montreal Star.

The RCMP and the Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the contract awarded Les Terrasses Zarolega Inc. by the Olympic organizing committee (COJO) to build the apartment structure.

"It is a deal that astonishes Montreal building consultants in its enormous and highly unusual profit while COJO and eventually the taxpayers of Montreal and Quebec lose a fortune," the newspaper says in a copyright story. "It gives Zarolega no incentive to keep costs down."

Mayor Jean Drapeau unveiled his plan in June, 1974, for an Olympic village that would be financed, built and marketed as a condominium project, entirely by private enterprise with no cost to taxpayers.

The Star recalls Zarolega's cost estimate at the start of construction in December, 1974, was $33 million. Four months later, "when it was too late to cancel the plan," the estimate had soared to $74 million, and now is $77 million. COJO must lend Zarolega the difference without any guarantee of repayment.

The paper says Zarolega stands to earn $5.2 million in management costs, while experts consulted said the fees should be less than $2 million.

COJO and Zarolega have drawn up two contracts, the second of which is yet to be signed, the paper notes.

Under the first contract, the federal Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) was to guarantee an $18.4-million first mortgage by the Bank Canadian National (BCN), while Zarolega was to put in $4 million—$2 million immediately and $2 million later.

The Star says Zarolega put up $2 million in cash, $1.5 million in a loan from the BCN. All further costs were to be covered by COJO in the form of a second mortgage, now totalling $57 million.

In the first contract, if Zarolega did not pay back COJO's $55-million loan in five years, the loan would be cancelled outright, Zarolega would own a village it had not paid for, and COJO would own the debt.

The second contract was drawn up on the orders of the provincial government to give better protection to COJO's investment. It extends the term of the COJO loan to 38 years, but does not allow COJO to take over the property if Zarolega defaults in payment.

Zarolega is allowed $1.25 million in depreciation each year before COJO is paid anything.

Developers estimate the value of the buildings at $55 million, leaving COJO, and ultimately the taxpayers of Montreal and Quebec, with at least a $45-million loss, the newspaper says.

STAMPEDE INVADED BY SPIRIT OF '76

CALGARY (CP)—The 1976 Calgary Stampede has been declared an official project of the United States bicentennial, a Stampede official said Tuesday.

Getting approval from Washington means the Stampede will be able to fly the American flag and use all insignia associated with the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution.

President Stu Barker of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede said the Stampede is the only event outside of the United States, except for an event in Berlin, Germany, to be given the official designation.

The Stampede this year is scheduled July 9-18.

A Stampede official said the designation is expected to make it easier to obtain American acts and dignitaries for the annual Stampede.

Earnings Dip 25% At BCFP

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Tuesday announced net earning for 1975 of $15.9 million or $2.04 a common share, compared to earnings of $21.1 million or $2.73 a share in 1974. That represents a decrease of approximately 25 per cent.

The 1975 net sales were $273.4 million, compared to sales of $290 million the year before.

Ian A. Barclay, company president, said the year's results were affected by high inflation rates and production curtailment because of labor disruptions.

B.C. Rail Workers Back on the Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Rail yard crews were back on the job in North Vancouver today after a majority of Teamsters Union members voted Tuesday night to end picketing.

The union resumed picketing of the provincially-owned railway after back-to-work legislation passed last fall by the former New Democratic Party government and a two-week extension of the legislation by the Social Credit government expired.

Earlier Tuesday Labor Minister Allan Williams forced the fifth union involved in BCR bargaining to submit to a non-binding industrial inquiry commission.

Williams said the order to the United Transportation Union was the first time a labor minister has ever used his power to order a union to submit to an industrial inquiry commission.

Such commissions have been used in dozens of cases since the B.C. Labor Code was adopted in 1973 but always at the request of the parties involved.

The labor minister said the decision to order the union to submit to the commission was "not taken easily," but was made because he believes "there is a real advantage to the unions and to the company in having all of these disputes dealt with at the same time."

Before the order to the UTU, three other railway unions, the International Union of Operating Engineers, the Brotherhood of Maintenance and Way employees, and the Transportation-Communication Division of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, had agreed to submit to the commission.

Teamsters spokesman Ed Zimmerman said workers in North Vancouver and Squamish voted overwhelmingly to return to work.

He said he understood that workers in Prince George voted 55 per cent against going back to work but they agreed to be bound by the over-all majority.

$1,776 A WEEK . . . FOR LIFE

Times News Services

A 26-year-old hairstylist in Montclair, N.J. has won the largest prize ever offered in any U.S. state lottery—$1,776 a week for life.

Eric Leek was selected Tuesday at the final drawing of the 1776 Instant Lottery. If he lives to be 76, he will collect more than $4.5 million. If he doesn't, his heirs are guaranteed $1,847,040.

Leek said he plans to open a youth centre in his hometown. He also said he wants to make his honeymoon journey a trip around the world.

Meanwhile, Gerald Houde, of Asbestos, Que., is $1 million richer after Sunday's Olympic lottery drawing.

The money won't change his life or his dreams, he says.

"I won't be happy if I change my dream," Houde said Tuesday.

Houde, 33, a machinist, has always wanted to build a home himself on a plot of land he owns. The $1 million will allow him to build in a few extra luxuries — like a dishwasher and carpets.

Drunk Accident Victims May Be Sued by ICBC

Drivers who are drunk at the scene of an accident may be sued by the Insurance Corporation of B.C. if regulaitons being considered are approved, general manager Norm Bortnick said Tuesday.

ICBC now pays the claim although the driver makes the policy void by being intoxicated, he said. ICBC is in a different situation from private insurance firms which pay the claim but then sue the individual to recover all or part of the money.

Premier Bennett said Tuesday he hopes lower insurance premiums can be established in the future for accident-free young drivers.

The rates for young drivers who do not cause accidents are "shocking," said Bennett.

But with ICBC starting with fresh claims records, he said, the corporation will be able to study the situation and hopefully come up with some relief for drivers who don't cause accidents but are in high riske groups.

He said he hopes the changes could come in time for next year's insurance premiums.

Meanwhile, Pat McGeer, minister responsible for ICBC, said gasoline prices would increase by 28 cents a gallon if a gas tax were used to balance ICBC losses.

McGeer said a 28-cents-a-gallon increase in the price of gasoline "would be very harmful to the economy."

Price Freeze Thaw?

B.C.'s price freeze is scheduled to expire at midnight Saturday but the provincial cabinet will hold final discussions on the freeze Thursday.

Premier Bennett said Tuesday the government's anti-inflation committee will present a report on the price freeze and cabinet will make a final decision on termination of the order made by the NDP government in October.

There will be an announcement Thursday or Friday, said Bennett, if there is any change in the government's original decision to end the freeze Feb. 1.

The price freeze was instituted Oct. 24 by the former NDP government and was to end Jan. 1 but was extended to Jan. 15 and then to Feb. 1.

The cabinet committee and the staff group working on B.C.'s position in the federal anti-inflation program will have reports prepared for cabinet, he said.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe will go to Ottawa Monday and Bennett said he will be "very well prepared" on B.C.'s position in the anti-inflation program.

But the premier said he did not know when B.C. would arrive at its final position on the program. He said previously the province will decide by early February how it will participate in the scheme.

BIG ENGINES LEAD FOR SMALL AUTOS

DETROIT (AP)—Despite increasing concerns with fuel economy, small-car buyers in the United States continue to place a premium on performance by ordering bigger engines for their autos.

Ward's Automotive Reports this week showed a trend by consumers who purchased small cars in 1975 to select optional six-cylinder and V8 engines over four- and six-cylinder power plants.

The percentage of small autos sold with four-cylinder engines fell to 74 per cent last year, compared with 86 per cent the year before. Sales of small cars with V8 engines, unavailable in 1974, accounted for a 16 per cent share last year.

The shift came even though bigger engines cost more and get poorer gasoline mileage.

Small-car buyers paid an average $50 to $250 more for the better-performing engines.

Ward's concluded the trend indicates "an insatiable desire by the public for performance in virtually all U.S. cars regardless of size."

7 Months In Limbo, Epp Quits

Edgar Epp, deputy minister in charge of corrections, announced today he has resigned effective April 15.

His resignation comes after more than seven months of uncertainty as to his future with the provincial government.

Epp, 44, was relieved of his duties last June 16 but continued to receive the deputy minister's salary of $40,000 a year.

Although no reason was given for his dismissal it was believed at the time to have been over irreconcilable policy differences between him and deputy attorney general David Vickers.

John Ekstedt replaced Epp as acting head of corrections.

Following his dismissal Epp was given three months leave of absence with full pay and then returned to the government last fall to work on special projects being carried out by both the attorney general and human resources departments. He has not worked since Dec. 10, the day before the provincial election.

Regarded as an expert in his field, Epp served as vice-chairman on the Justice Development Commission, and has sought reform in the provincial jail system.

During his two years as head of the department, his aim has been to reduce the size of the institutions. The Community Corrections Centre program was one result of those efforts.

New Outbreak of Fighting Flares on Sahara Desert

Times News Service

ALGIERS — Algerian and Moroccan armed forces clashed today in violent new fighting over the former Spanish Sahara, Algeria's national news service said.

President Houari Boumedienne conferred with his aides and military commanders while diplomatic efforts were under way in various Arab capitals to stop the fighting, now in its second day.

The news agency said the fighting "related to the aggression of the monarchist army"—a reference to Tuesday's clash in the Spanish Sahara between forces of the two northwest African neighbors.

Algeria opposes the planned division of the desert territory between Morocco and Mauritania when Spain formally ends colonial rule on Feb. 28.

Egypt, Syria and Iraq launched efforts today to try to head off war between the two countries.

Damascus radio announced that Syrian president Hafez Assad had dispatched Vice-Premier Mohammed Heidar and army chief of staff Maj. Gen. Hikmat Chehabi to Algeria and Morocco on a mission "related to the explosive situation between the two countries."

In Paris, the Moroccan embassy charged Algeria oepnly committed an armed intervention on Moroccan territory.

The embassy was referring to official Moroccan and Algerian reports the two nations' armed units clashed Tuesday morning at Amgala, inside Western Sahara which Spain recently turned over to Morocco and Mauritania over angry Algerian protests.

A special Algerian military mission arrived today in Tripoli for talks with Libya, which recently aligned itself with Algeria in the conflict over the phosphate-rich territory.

PM Ducks Cuba-Angola Issue

HAVANA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau began his first round of formal talks with Premier Castro today without once mentioning Angola.

Castro himself, Canadian officials indicated after the first 1¾-hour meeting, came closer than Trudeau did to bringing up the issue over which they differ most.

The Cuban leader thanked the Canadian prime minister for making the trip which was planned well in advance even though certain major events had taken place in international affairs in the meantime.

It sounded, the way Canadian officials described the incident, as though Castro thought the involvement of Cuban troops in the Angola civil war might have forced Trudeau to cancel or at least postpone his visit to the Communist Caribbean island.

The closest Trudeau came to referring to Angola during the formal meeting was his general acknowledgement that differences of opinion exist between the tow countries.

But, he added, Canada accepts the right of all countries to freedom of opinion and that if his country dealt only with those that it agreed with, there would be no need for the external affairs department.

The talks were the highlight of Trudeau's first full day in Cuba after weeks of buildup in the Cuban press and over the radio for the first visit from a NATO head of government.

His public appearances were before small crowds compared with the hundreds of thousands of cheering Havana residents who lined the streets to welcome him.

At one of the public functions a visit to a cattle cross-breeding farm using Canadian Holsteins—that he was hailed as "comrade" and thanked for resisting pressure to support the U.S. in its blockade against Cuba.

MAJOR SAANICH HOUSING NEEDS

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich municipal planner Gil Laurenson has warned he will be asking for "massive programs of services — even frightening."

He says the services are imperative if sufficient housing and commercial enterprises are to be built to help balance Saanich's economy are to be built.

He and members of the council's lands, planning and housing committee agreed Tuesday that the major problem facing Saanich is the lack of sewers.

"We've been zoning by sewer capacity and that's not right," Ald. Sandy Noel said.

Chairman Ald. John McDonald noted, "It is fully intended that all the land within the urban containment boundary will be developed for urban use. Every year of delay makes it more expensive to do so and raises the serviced land prices because of inadequate supply."

At McDonald's suggestion the committee will meet realtors, developers and others to plan extensive development.

First, however, the committee will hold a 3½-hour in-camera session Feb. 24 so that Laurenson can spell out all the problems.

Mcdonald stressed that large tracts of serviced land must be made available, not in 50 and 100 acre areas but on a broad basis.

"What is needed is the servicing of large acreages of land to meet middle income housing needs and where mixes of townhousing, duplexes, patio and other more innovative housing styles can be introduced on a scale large enough to have an effect upon the housing market and housing prices," he told the committee.

He said aldermen will have to be prepared to stand up to opposition from residents.

"Council must have the courage to provide enough serviced land and, indeed, rezoning," he said, "The attitude we witness at public hearings of 'the have and the have-nots' and the 'We're all right Jack, you worry about your housing' must be seen in the proper perspective by council."

Laurenson said he will oppose land banking because of the delay in developing the Royal Roads housing complex, for which Saanich amassed many lots.

"We were bogged down by other governments," Laurenson said, "Those lots could have been sold for $2,500 at the time. That's five years ago and now they would cost $10,000. I would never be in favor of land banking."

Stressing that delay in providing sewers and other services will only mean much higher outlays in future years, Laurenson said there are means by which money can be found.

"At the moment we stand in danger of seeing a major change in the structure of social life in Saanich. As alderman Noel said, we have massive servicing problems," Laurenson added.

"If a sufficient amount of land is serviced and on the market there is just so much a land owner can grab," Laurenson replied when aldermen noted that lots, after being serviced to provide homes in the Gordon Head area, had zoomed in price to beyond the reach of the average wage-earner.

McDonald was confident funds could be received from the senior governments to help develop land.

Hartwig Report Ordered

For the second time in less than a year Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier has complained that developer Hans Hartwig is refurbishing a heritage Wharf Street building at variance with officially-approved plans.

City council called for a full report on the matter, to be discussed in two weeks, after Glazier filed his complaint at the caucus meeting Tuesday.

The alderman said he's concerned about structural alterations to the Norwestra building at 1218 Wharf, an 1856-vintage building which is the "oldest standing stone structure in Western Canada."

He said the developer received his building permit from the city last summer after his plans were approved by council's Heritage Advisory Committee and Advisory Design Panel. But some of the structural changes actually carried don't conform to those plans.

Glazier noted that as the building has been designated a heritage structure it cannot be altered externally in any way without the specific approval of council.

"This is a prime heritage building," he said, "and the manner in which we handle it is crucial. Whatever we do here becomes a precedent for other buildings."

In February last year Glazier raised a similar complaint about the adjacent Finlayson Building, 1202-1214 Wharf, also redeveloped by Hartwig. A stop-work order was issued by the city until the problem was sorted out.

New Town Proposed By Dunhill

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Plans for a giant new community in Colwood unveiled by Dunhill Development Corporation today call for housing not 15,000 but 22,000, in highrises, condominiums and townhouses, on 850 acres two miles northwest of Albert Head.

Prior to the presentation to the Capital Regional Board, chairman Jim Campbell said he thinks such a project would take at least 15 years to complete.

The Colwood Development Project, as Dunhill calls it, would be located on both sides of Latoria Road, from Wishart Road to approximately Klahanie Road.

While Dunhill, a Crown corporation, has bought about 270 acres, it envisages this as part of an 850-acre development, with 220 acres set aside for parks and greenbelt and another 50 acres for schools.

There is no provision for single family housing. Dunhill proposes 1,000 units of low density housing, presumably townhouses, 5,000 units of medium density housing, probably condominiums, and 1,200 units of high desnity housing, which would include high rises of 10 or 20 storeys.

Howard Drummond, regional director for Colwood, said that while he thinks the concept is good, he is concerned about a transportation system, sewage disposal and the proposed high density.

Dunhill's brief says its purpose "is to convey Dunhill's intention to establish a significant residential land development initiative within the western communtiy."

It adds that it intends meeting criteria of the official regional plan.

The geography of Greater Victoria together with various government policies has produced a growing shortage of serviced land for housing of a kind most families can afford, the brief says.

When potential for servicing such land is considered, the most obvious location for such a development lies in the Colwood area of the western community.

Among other features of the project not detailed in the brief, said Drummond, are plans to dispose of sewage through an 8,500-foot outfall at Albert Head.

DRUMMOND
. . . hard to "sell"

"Selling that will be a hard part," he said. "We've asked Dunhill to estimate the cost of a tertiary treatment plant."

Both Campbell and Drummond said they are worried about a transportation system capable of handling that sort of population.

"The road system has to be improved drasticaly to accommodate the sort of population they'e proposing," said Drummond.

Campbell said a feature of the plan he considers important is what is called "point density"—centering population at various points suitabe for building and leaving a lot of open space in between these clusters.

The plan will result in minimum disturbance to vegetation, he said.

The project, which does not encroach into Metchosin although close to the boundary, follows over a year of planning and land-buying by the provincial government's housing development agency, undertaken for the department of housing.

Drummond said the plan is to provide housing at a cost, which he estimated about $45,000 which will allow for federal financing assistance.

The new community would have a recreation centre, including swimming pool and rink, built by Dunhill and paid for out of the servicing charge on land sold for building, he said.

Wiring would be underground and the community would have storm drains, sidewalks and street lighting.

"The type of housing would be different for us," Drummond said, "but it's got to come."

No Soft Petaling In Daffy Project

Lucky Pierre and his flower child wife will get a nosegay of Victoria posies next week, suitably inscribed in Canada's two official languages.

They will be among dozens of second-class citizens (that's anybody living east of Oak Bay) slated to receive a bouquet of early bloomers from the best bloomin' city, as Chamber of Commerce has dubbed us.

Feb. 1-7 is flower-count week in the B.C. capital. Citizens are invited to take part by counting all new blooms in their own gardens and reporting to special telephone numbers for relay by The Canadian Press and CBC to the rest of Canada, most of it frozen.

The prime minister and Margaret will get a special bunch; others will be delivered to other chambers, morning show radio men, newspaper editors and weather offices across the country.

The object is to interest those with the mid-winter mopes in coming to the sunny seaboard to do a little flower-counting of their own.

Meanwhile, project chairman Carmella Costigan has had some botanical experts draw up a few rules for the official count, which she declares is "supposed to be fun."

Residents may count each bloom of single-blooming stems, except where there are tight clusters. But where there are individual clusters, as on the branch of an ornamental fruit tree, each open blossom may be counted if the counter has that kind of time, sharp eye and a good ladder.

Carmella herself is counting on amateur gardeners in every part of the capital to help tally the first flowers of spring, including such newly-formed groups as the Green Thumbs of James Bay highrise apartment balconies.

Municipal parks departments will be among the first to check in.

Residents are urged not to count their neighbors' flowers, nor the blooms on public property, which will be surveyed by parks people.

Among current and upcoming blossoms are cyclamen, pansy, iris, snowdrop, crocus, heather, primrose, polyanthus, daffodil, Japanese plum and cherry, witch hazel, hazel nut, forsythia, camellia, rhododendron, azalea, strawberry tree, jasmine, tulip, St. John's wort, aubretia and alyssum.

A tabulation centre is to be in operation behind the Douglas-View window at Eaton's where flower hostesses will tally calls via 382-3111, 3112 and 3113. Results will be posted on a "flower-ometer" as proof to the world that when it comes to narcissim, Victoria doesn't exactly soft-petal its canoe.

FIVE HURT

Five Greater Victoria residents were taken to hospital early today following a single-car accident at Esquimalt and Dominion roads.

Listed in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital are Brenda Lee Hockin, 21; while the other four — William Deroon, 23; Dennis Houghton, 26, of 1698 Lansdowne, the driver; Rhoda Lobb, and Pat Farrow, both 19 — are in good condition with unspecified injuries at VGH.

Police said the car was demolished at 2:53 a.m. when it struck a pole.

American Jailed For Illegal Entry

A 31-year-old U.S. citizen was sentenced in provincial court today to one month in jail for illegally being in Canada.

Prosecutor Scott Marshall told court that Ronald Curtiss Cook had entered Canada four times without permission and had been deported three times.

"People decide through their elected representative who is to be here and who is not," said Judge William Ostler.

Cook told court he re-entered the country after his last deportation order March 24, 1975, to visit his wife and child.

"I wasn't allowed to take my possessions with me," when deported, he said adding he had written to Immigration Minister Robert Andras asking for visiting privileges but he received no answer.

Murder Hearing Set Set for May 17

The week of May 17 was set aside in provincial court today for a preliminary hearing of a murler charge against David John Ross, 32, arrested in Winnipeg last week.

Prosecutor Scott Marshall estimated 30 witnesses will be heard in connection with the shooting in November of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 27, whose body was found in bush near E and N Railway tracks at Langford Dec. 22, 1975.

Police described the killing as a drug-related "gangland style" murder, in which several shots were fired from a carbine-type weapon.

New Deputy Police Chief

A 49-year-old Victoria police inspector who joined the force in 1947 has been appointed deputy chief of the department.

Announcement of the appointment was made today by Victoria Mayor Mike Young in his capacity as police board chairman.

The new deputy is Leslie Mottershead who was made sub-inspector last Nobember in promotions following the resignation of former deputy chief Ray Maitland.

Mottershead became a Victoria policeman in 1947 and left in 1952 for a tour of duty with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

He returned to the police force in 1957 and worked his way up through the ranks to sergeant before his promotion last fall.

Mottershead has been well known for his leadership of the Police Mutual Benevolent Association committee which brings a circus to the area annually and raises large sums for charitable groups. He has also helped lead an association fund providing emergency help to people in need, such as families left homeless after a fire.

After Maitland's retirement the Victoria police union asked the police board to reconsider its planned open competition to fill the post of deputy chief and instead choose a member of the force.

The union was assured that preference would be given to applicants from within city police ranks.

The competition was opened by the five-man board to all senior police officers in the province — including women.

Mottershead's hobbies — when he has time — include fishing, boating and golf.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Could you give me the address of the Hallmark Society? C.C.

A. The president is Donald Reksten, 2636 Lincoln, Victoria.

Q. Can you please tell us what became of the Irish Rovers (TV show). We like them a lot and we don't see them any more.

A. The Irish Rovers regular series is being preempted by The National Dream. They will be back in their regular time slot Feb. 29 until the end of the season but are not planning to return to series format after that, preferring to do the occasional special next season. At the moment they are on tour in Australia.

The Probation Service Goes 'Community'

Tucked away in a little office in James Bay, a young English woman is going against the grain and taking the probation service into the community.

For the first time in either of the province's two main urban centres, one probation officer will operate directly from a suburb and handle a combined caseload of adults and juveniles.

When you track her down to her office in the James Bay Community Project complex in the new shopping mall on Simcoe Street, Dorothy Hayward admits she is "moving against the general philosophy in the province."

"The recent Berger Commission on family law came out strongly in favor of a separate body handling children's cases," she explains.

And yet Dorothy felt strongly enough about community involvement to apply — and her peers felt strongly enough about it to accept her application — to move into James Bay and give the combined caseload idea a try. At least, for a while.

"I'm here on a six-month trial basis," she says. "We had no idea just what the caseload here would be—and we still have no idea."

Dorothy, who was born in Staffordshire and came to Canada about six years ago, was working in Vancouver when she was posted to Victoria by the probation service in August, 1972.

Prior to her switch to James Bay, she worked from an office in the family court building on Cameron Street and handled only juvenile cases for James Bay and Fairfield. Adult cases are not regionalized at all and are handled from the adult probation office on Johnson Street.

"On Cameron Street, we were working right next to the court," says Dorothy. "And I am finding it far easier to work away from that situation, that atmosphere, and I'm hoping the kids I'm working with will find this office more relaxing, too."

case summary reports from the police. Then she is bound by law to do what is called a probation officer's inquiry which involves seeing the child and the rest of the family. Mostly, these children are never taken to court.

Then there are cases where a parent or a friend will go in to see Dorothy about a juvenile, much the same as they would go to see a social worker.

"They'll come in and say 'my kid has run away' or 'I think my kid's using drugs' and I would like to get more

Most of her young clients are referred to her through of these cases," she adds. "But a great many parents don't see something until it's too late or don't know where to go about it anyway. Or the parents don't want to betray their kid by going to someone else and yet aren't able to cope with the situation themselves."

This type of involvement, Dorothy admits, is not strictly her job "but it prevents me from having to deal with the child later on," she explains.

Often a social worker having problems with a child will take the child in to see Dorothy.

"As a sort of law figure, to the kids I have more control . . . and a lot of kids see me as having more clout."

With adults it's different. They are strictly court referrals, either put on probation by a judge, referred for a presentence report, or on parol from jail.

But, to Dorothy anyway, the adults and children are all part of the family structure and she feels it is unnatural for them to be treated as separate entities.

"According to the law, when you're 17 you're an adult and sometimes I would be handling two kids and another probation officer would be handling a third child (over 17) in the same family," Dorothy points out.

"Often, too, a mother or father may be picked up for impaired driving and may be put on probation to one person while their son or daughtr of 13 or 14 may be on probation to me," she adds. "It got pretty ridiculous sometimes."

"People don't change in one day when they turn 17," says Dorothy. "I had seen many children I'd handled reach 17 and overnight the ball game changed for them, and I felt this was very artificial."

Okay, you've sold me. the idea seems logical enough. But why James Bay?

"James Bay," says Dorothy, "is different from many other parts of Victoria. The park and the water cut it off and people are more likely to walk and get to know their neighbors. It seems a logical place to try this."

Bob Dill, the James Bay Community Project co-ordinator, is thrilled. He's got Dorothy to include with his health clinic (complete with doctor and nurse), social workers, volunteer bureau, community educaton and day care programs.

"I think in the past there have been as many as six or seven adult and juvenile probation officers coming in to James Bay at the same time." Dill points out. "I feel one person based here will be able to work in far better with the community.

"And, aftrer all, that's just what this project is all about . . ."

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. 9 IN MEMORIAM

DeMACEDO—In loving memory of Tom deMacedo, who passed away January 28, 1974.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep
green and never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Lily and sons Neil and Raymond and families.

FANSTONE—Frederick, who passed away January 28, 1975, at the age of 92.—Lovingly remembered by his wife Lillian Rose, Daughter Marjorie and all the family.

8 CARD OF THANKS

WHEELER—Dorothy.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away;
God took her home—it was His will;
Within our hearts she liveth still.
—Your son Peter and grandchildren, Noni and Jordi; and Sharie and family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Off and again, a leaf blown
by the wind

'Tis never lost; where'er it
fate may blow,

The imprint of its settling's
left behind.

And so with every life,
whate'er its kind,

It shapes itself a place,
'tis destined so,

If hence in peace or turmoil
it should go,

Its influence ever lives,
as 'twas designed.

A LOVER-LY ACCENT ON THE GIRLS

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — When four English mechanics arrived in North Baltimore, Ohio, it drove the women at the local hamburger factory wild, the men said.

They said the women chased them around the factory, queued up to buy them food and drinks, and some even pursued them to their motel — all because of their English accents.

"All most of the girls wanted was to hear us talk," said 35-year-old Anthony Tew. "They reckoned our English accents were cute."

"I tell you anyone who goes out there with a midland (Birmingham) accent or any kind of Britich accent, has got it made," said Gilbert Farmer. "You literally had to beat them off."

"One night five married women from the factory drove 11 miles from town to the motel where we were staying in a car loaded down with drinks," said John Price. "We had to send them away."

But not everyone in North Baltimore was impressed, an industrial tribunal was told Tuesday. The vice-president of the American company told the men's boss that Tew had better "stay out of town" because of his behaviour. Tew, married with three children, was fired.

But the tribunal ruled that Tew was unfairly dismissed and awarded him $532 compensation.

It ruled his behavior had not interferred with his work and reports of the men's reputation had become exaggerated in the small religiously-based community, the tribunal ruled.

A CHANCY DEAL SEWER LINK-UP

The Isherwood family, which owns the Royal Oak Inn, will be asked by Saanich to "take a chance" on sewers.

Saanich's land, planning and housing committee decided Tuesday to recommend to council that the Isherwoods' application to hook a temporary connection to the Broadmead service trunk be approved.

In moving approval, Ald. Sandy Noel said it would be given providing Mr. Isherwood (Joe Isherwood, who attended the meeting) will take his chances on the ultimate sewer development in that area."

Isherwood told the committee that ultimately a convention centre for 1,500 delegates is planned, and equal hotel accommodation. Isherwood said the first phase, to increase the present 100 uints to 500 units, will cost $14 million.

The problem is the Broadmead trunk is planned to also service the Cordova Bay area. If the needs of the area to the south increase and the Colquitz sewer is delayed (its construction is tied to the provincial government's Roy Road housing project) the Royal Oak Inn could be left without sufficient sewers.

"These people have been paying commercial taxes for about 10 years without getting any benefit," committee chairman Ald. John McDonald noted.

Power Shift Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Donald Rumsfeld warned Congress on Tuesday that the United States must act now to reverse a military power shift toward the Soviet Union.

Rumsfeld, in his first formal report to Congress since becoming the defence chief, urged approval of the Pentagon's record $101.1-billion proposed budget.

He said U.S. forces currently are strong enough to balance Soviet strength, but he warned that the Soviets have been making substantial gains in nuclear and conventional forces. The Soviets display no signs of slowing this build-up, he said.

Accompanying Rumsfeld before the House of Representatives armed services committee was Gen. George Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of military staff, who said improvements in Soviet nuclear weaponry in the last year were "somewhat greater than anticipated."

Rumsfeld said missiles capable of hitting Soviet targets with pinpoint accuracy are needed despite the claims of critics that they give the appearance of U.S. intent to make the first strike in a nuclear war.

COMPANY SLIPS UP ON BANANA BRIBES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without admitting or denying guilt, United Brands Co. has consented to U.S. federal charges that it agreed to pay $2.5 million in bribes to Honduran officials in exchange for a lower export tax on bananas.

The company also allegedly paid $750,000 to officials of a European country, believed to be Italy, for a period of about five years.

United Brands, the largest fruit importer in the United States, distributes bananas under the "Chiquita" label.

Business-Like Bandits Net $1.5M

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It had to be a well-planned operation," said Police Sgt. Alan Varner after two men in business suits robbed a securities firm and fled with nearly $1.5 million in negotiable bonds.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said the robbery was one of the largest of its kind.

Varner said the men entered the Century City offices of the MuniciCorp. of California Tuesday and said they were waiting to speak with someone about buying some bonds.

But a short time later they accosted an unarmed messenger bringing two bags of securities to the firm from a nearby bank, the policeman said. He said they apparently were aware of the messenger's schedule.

"The total time was about 10 or 15 minutes," said Varner.

"The messenger was coming back, on foot, and they were waiting for him. As soon as he returned, it was over. They pushed him into a room and came out with the bags."

MuniciCorp's president, Kenneth Rogers, said both men were armed with handguns.

"The men told the secretaries to shut up, then took the deliveryman into my office, told him to sit down, then took his bags from him," Rogers said. "They had their guns in his ribs all the time."

Varner said the two then made their getaway with the aid of an accomplice waiting nearby in a 1962-model van with out-of-state plates.

He said police were investigating the possibility that the two men were known to employees of the firm.

MuniciCorp deals in municipal bonds, debt obligations issued by cities and other governmental agencies. Such securities are frequently issued in "bearer" form, meaning that whoever has physical possession can cash them.

However, both police and Rogers said the men will have difficulty selling the bonds.

Cmdr. Pete Hagan of the Los Angeles police department said any figitimate securities dealer would require identification and proof of ownership.

ROBBERY TRIAL DELAYED

Trial of two men charged with the armed robbery of a Saanich liquor store last April was adjourned in county court Monday to the first week of March.

Accused, Gordon Norman Comley, who was 22 when arrested in mid-April, was granted an adjournment to enable him to prepare a defence which he said would involve 40 witnesses.

He and Robert Joseph Gelineau, then 21, were charged with the $19,000 holdup of Tillicum liquor store at the Gorge shopping centre and were represented by the same counsel.

Court was told Monday that Comley had decided to defend himself but had not the opportunity to read the transcript of his preliminary hearing or to summons witnesses.

The GAF XL Sound Movie Camera – It's a Must for the Action Buff!

SOUND Home MOVIES AT THIS UNBELIEVABLE LOW PRICE

Some of life's brighter moments happen in intimate, dimly-lit settings. Now you can capture them without destroying the mood. That's saving a slice of life. The mood. The look. And the sound. That's what the new GAF XL Sound Movie Camera is all about. Saving the scene, not setting it. In almost any normal lighting situation without special movie lights. Shoot almost anywhere, anytime and save that moment – with all the unrehearsed beauty of it – to see and to hear and live again.
